Board Backs Football Ban; Student Body Talks Strike

Cancellation Arouses Indignation at Tech, but Action Pends.

Officials Sustain Voiding of Series

Investigation of High School Athletics Is Ordered.

After listening to four hours of testimony from school heads, coaches and players, the Board of Education yesterday voted to call off remaining games on the Washington high school football schedule.

On the motion of Henry I. Quinn, the board voted 6 to 1 to uphold cancellation of the championship series recommended by the Board of Principals with the approval of Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer and Superintendent Robert W. Ballou.

Investigation Ordered.

Immediately following this action, and again on the motion of Mr. Quinn, the board voted that its president, Dr. Hayden Johnson, appoint a committee of five to study all phases of high school athletics and to propose changes in the conduct of games.

The action was taken in the face of testimony by Frank C. Daniel, principal, and Elmer P. "Hap" Hardell, coach, both of McKinley High School, that the Board of Principals acted under the influence of Drs. Kramer and Ballou in recommending cancellation of the football schedule.

Daniel testified that Dr. Kramer had called the principals of the five high schools together to determine what action should be taken following a fight among players in the closing seconds of the McKinley-Western game last Friday.

Decided on Cancellation.

He said that Dr. Kramer, after the principals had deliberated at considerable length, had limited their possible decisions to two, either disbarment of Tech and Western from further participation in football this season, or cancellation of all remaining games in the school series.

"I could not stand to see either my school or my team smeared," he said, "so I moved that the series be discontinued. I chose the better of two evils put up to us."

The football schedule cancellation came just as Tech, with but one game left to play, looked like the certain winner of the city championship.

Ballou Held Behind Move.

Later at the hearing, Hardell, obviously stirred, said Dr. Ballou entered the board of principals meeting and demanded punitive action.

"I will not accept any recommendation that comes to my desk without penalty," Hardell quoted Dr. Ballou as saying.

"Had not Dr. Kramer and Dr. Ballou entered into the discussion," said Hardell, referring to the principals' meeting, "this drastic action would never have been taken."

The Tech coach inferred that other principals and coaches involved in the cancellation order were afraid to express their true feelings on the method in which their decision was reached. Sev-

1 Dies, 11 Hurt In Tanker Fire

Blast Blows Up Bridge; Flames Block Rescue of Mess Boy.

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 9 (AP).—An explosion beneath the bridge of the coastwise tanker, Caliche, set fire to the vessel today and caused the probable death of one seaman and injuries to 11 others.

The Caliche had cleared port here an hour before and was steaming down Mobile Bay en route to Texas City, Tex., with a cargo of 30,000 barrels of oil and gasoline, when she exploded amidships, throwing the bridge high into the air and scattering blazing liquid in all directions.

So rapidly did the flames spread, said a member of the crew, there was no time to launch boats, forcing the crew to dive overboard into water covered with blazing gasoline.

Capt. J. J. Fitzgerald, master, was among the most seriously injured, suffering compound fractures of both legs and a broken arm. He was thrown into the air and landed on the deck.

Mitchell S. Beretich, aboard the shrimping smack Margaret S., which picked up 14 members of the crew, said the ship appeared in trouble just before she exploded.

"It looked like something was wrong," he said, "Then the whole bridge blew up. It was like a quick flash of lightning. It was awful."

A member of the Caliche's crew said he believed Frank Benancho, missing mess boy, was killed in the blast as he had seen him in the pantry near the bridge just before the explosion, and that blazing wreckage prevented an attempted rescue.

Allen to Seek More Officers In Crime War

Commissioner Advocates Better Equipment to Fight Banditry.

An increase in the number of men in the Police Department and complete modernization of its crime suppression equipment will be sought by Commissioner George E. Allen, as a result of disclosures in The Washington Post which indicate that the department is undermanned and improperly equipped.

"Although the police force is not under my immediate jurisdiction, Mr. Allen stated, "I think that Commissioner Hazen shares with me the view that more men are needed in order to guard properly the lives and property of District citizens."

Urges Better Equipment.

Criminals, he said, take advantage of every modern invention and the police should be equipped to enable them at least to combat the lawbreakers on equal terms. The success of policing, he believes, rests in the ability of policemen to keep one step ahead of gangsters and bandits.

"I do not believe that the District is infested with crime. On the contrary, I believe that our police department is the equal of any in the country. Crimes of violence are not as frequent occurrences here as they are in other cities. The District police department has done excellent work with the small personnel and the antiquated equipment with which it has been supplied."

Sees Need of More Men.

The greatest preventive of crime, Commissioner Allen believes, is the presence in a neighborhood of a uniformed policeman. By way of illustration, he pointed out that there are less crimes during the summer months than there are during other months of the year.

The reason is, he believes, that during the summer months the policemen are not engaged in guarding school children at crossings and are permitted to devote their time to suppression of crime. He does not think, he said, that officers should be taken away from street crossings to protect children, but he believes that more policemen should be provided to enable the department to protect the residential sections.

Use Police to Aid Children.

During the school months, he pointed out, there are some precincts in which the time of all available policemen is taken in guarding children from street accidents. The result is, he said, that there was an average of 849 felonies reported monthly.

During the summer months, when the policemen are spread throughout the city and are seen by criminals, the average number of felonies reported each month was 755, an average decrease of 94 felonies a month, or about three daily.

Holdup Suspect Escapes Trap in Rain of Bullets

Carl R. Longerbeam, 20, suspect in several District taxicab robberies, who, police say, has bragged that he "won't be taken alive," escaped from bullets of Washington detectives and Arlington County police yesterday.

Longerbeam burst out of a house in the Wilson boulevard section of Arlington County just as officers were closing around it. He successfully eluded them by reaching nearby woods.

The posse was led by Detective Sergeants F. O. Brass and Elmer Lewis, of the Washington Detective Bureau. Both Lewis and Brass shot several times at the fleeing youth. They believe they wounded him.

Vote Charges Stir Rockville Riot Threats

Angry Fusionists Gather in Montgomery to Argue Democrats' Attack.

Fusionist farmers milled in Rockville last night, shouting denunciations of Montgomery County Democrats who had charged them with stuffing county ballot boxes, and it took the persuasive oratory of Joseph A. Cantrel, newly elected member of the House of Delegates, hurriedly summoned from Chevy Chase by party leaders, to quiet the crowd.

Apparently a spontaneous gathering, most of the group coming from Darnestown, where Democrats said that 15 more persons voted than were registered, the demonstrators arrived in automobiles about 7 p. m.

A few minutes earlier the board of election supervisors had adjourned after failing to act on the Democratic complaint filed by County Commissioner John B. Diamond, who lost his fight for reelection by an official margin of 89 votes. One of the supervisors, Richard C. Birney, said the board felt it had no authority to make a decision in the matter.

The Fusionists, numbering more than 100 persons at 8 p. m., crowded into party headquarters in the Telephone Building across the street from the courthouse, in which the supervisors had met, and shouted that their victory was being stolen from them. They believed that the

Nice Proposes State Inquiry On Fontaine's

Governor-Elect to Sift Political Tie-up to Gambling House.

"Jimmie's Place," the rendezvous of gamblers in Prince Georges County, just over the District line, will be the subject of an investigation by Governor-elect Harry W. Nice as soon as he is inaugurated, he announced last night.

The procedure to be followed will be decided at a forthcoming conference with the new attorney general, Herbert R. O'Conor.

Will Sift Political Link.

For years there have been rumors that "Jimmie" controlled Prince Georges County politics and that he is virtually immune from arrest. The purpose of Governor-elect Nice's inquiry will be to determine whether this situation exists.

In order to conduct a State investigation, he pointed out, it would be necessary for the county officials to appeal to him to eradicate the condition and close down the gaming house.

"I have no personal knowledge of the existence of this place. All I know is that a letter explaining conditions in Prince Georges County because of the reported gambling house was published in a Crisfield (Md.) newspaper.

"The investigation contemplated," he said, "will be sincere, rigid and unbiased. It will be a real investigation and not a matter of whitewash. If nothing is wrong in Prince Georges County it will be money well spent. If conditions are what they are alleged to be, it will be money well spent."

If county officials do not ask State aid in eliminating the gaming house, Mr. Nice said he would be willing to proceed on direct appeal from representative citizens of the county.

Considers State Action.

He is also considering the possibility of starting an original investigation by the State. He will consult with the attorney general, he said, to ask his opinion whether the establishment's location on a State road would give jurisdiction to the Maryland State Police.

"I intend to eliminate all condi-

Germans Arrested In Soviet Embassy

Russian Newspaper in Berlin Is Banned.

Berlin, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Russo-German relations were disturbed today by two recent incidents which were disclosed in the Soviet press, although no word appeared in Germany.

These were the arrest last week of two members of the Soviet embassy staff in Berlin and their wives, all Germans; and the banning for one week of the official Soviet newspaper Pravda (The Truth), which has such a limited circulation in the Reich that Soviet officials considered the ban a matter of spite.

The two Soviet embassy staff men—a chauffeur and the household majordomo— still are in prison and so far no formal charges have been preferred. They are among 30 German citizens employed at the Soviet embassy, all former members of the German Communist Party.

Great Britain Will Discard Its Program Of Disarming

Effort for Peace Vain, MacDonald Tells Lord Mayor's Dinner.

Fears Temptation To Attack Empire

'We Have to Take Steps to Secure' Defense, Says Premier.

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—A brilliant gathering at the annual Lord Mayor's banquet in London's historical Guildhall tonight heard Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald declare that Great Britain's effort to promote world peace by setting an example in disarmament has proved fruitless.

The premier's address was the climax of colorful day-long ceremonies that marked the accession of the new Lord Mayor, Sir Stephen Killik.

MacDonald said Great Britain has proved to her own satisfaction that disarmament by example, "in the present state of mind of the world, is not an effective way to reduce arms or to increase international confidence and so strengthen peace."

Fear an Attack.

"We have never overlooked what this example meant for us in diminished power of protection," the prime minister said. "In some circles it might even tempt an aggressor to attack."

The premier declared "no nation in the world challenges our position as the most consistent and dependable of peacemakers."

A moment later, however, MacDonald, discussing the possibility of an agreement in the present naval conversations, significantly added in an emphatic voice:

"In the meantime we have to take steps to secure that if we were met by agression, we should at least be in a position to defend ourselves."

MacDonald plainly stated Great Britian's decision to do an about face on her policy of setting the world an example in disarmament, and expressed the opinion that the better method now appeared to be some system which would guarantee the spirit of all nations.

The entire diplomatic corps, including United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham, civic dignitaries and brilliantly bejeweled women made up the prime minister's glittering audience, gathered for the final act in the annual pageant that was Sir Stephen's realization of his poor-boy's dream.

"Lord Mayor's Show."

The new executive hurried to the banquet hall from his official residence, the Mansion House, after several hours of parading through the old city's narrow streets in the annual "Lord Mayor's Show."

In this spectacle, witnessed by close-packed thousands of spectators, he went to the Royal Courts of Justice, as required by law, formally to declare that he had been chosen to head the city government the coming year.

Sir Stephen, at 73, one of the most prominent figures in London's Stock Exchange and financial world, rode to and from the Law Courts in a gilded, horse-drawn coach, which has served his predecessors since 1757. A procession comprising 48 other sections, some modern, some medieval, accompanied him.

Although Killik pays half the day's bill, estimated at £5,000 (approxmiately $25,000), he was restricted as to the number of guests he could invite to the banquet this evening. The city official who issues the tickets allowed him only 34, preventing his inviting one of his associates on the stock exchange who is a descendant of Whittington.

Big Liquor Seizure On Private Polo Field

Hingham, Mass., Nov. 9 (AP).—An anonymous tip received by police early today led to the arrest of three men and the seizure of nearly 400 cases of alcohol and liquor in a raid on the polo grounds of the Peter Bradley estate in Hingham. Several shots were fired into the air by the police before the men were captured. Two others escaped.

Those arrested identified themselves as George Hartley, 28, and Francis E. Sweet, jr., 26, both of Revere, and Thomas B. Carey, 28, of Lynn. They were held for arraignment in Hingham court on charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. Chief of Police Harold B. MacFarland of Hingham, said he believed the liquor had been landed at high tide during the night by members of a New York gang of rum runners operating here.

Sect Tries to 'Pray Out' Father Accused of Letting Infant Die

Crisfield, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—The congregation of the local Church of God this afternoon assembled to "pray out of jail" Preston Thomas, member of the sect arrested for failing to obtain medical aid for his 3-month-old baby, who died recently from colitis.

Thomas told Magistrate Fred Holland he believed in the power of prayer rather than medicine in combating illness. When the magistrate ordered him held under $500 bond for the grand jury, he refused to make any effort to put up the bail.

"If you put him in jail we'll pray him out," declared Mrs. Thomas. Hardly had the magistrate rendered his decision before she and other members of her church launched their effort to do just that. The shouting and praying began immediately after they left the court room.

Thomas was arrested on a writ obtained by his brother-in-law, Reynolds McCurdy, after Mrs. Thomas' mother had reported to him no doctor had been called when her grandchild sickened and died.

Petersburg, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP).—Four men were injured, one critically, when five boxes of dynamite, each containing 50 pounds, exploded today at a strip mine near Cato.

Most seriously injured was Mark Stone, 35, a shot firer. Others injured were Shirley Kinman, Lou Hale and Lon St. John. Five automobiles parked near the mine were demolished and houses in the neighborhood were damaged.

Roosevelt Plans Talk To Nation on Relief; Congress Asks Billions

Mounting Demands for Spending Concern Party Leaders.

President Expected To Cut Figure Half

Bonus, Inflation, Relief Advocates Piling Up Deficit Prospects.

(Associated Press.)

Demands for a stupendous outlay exceeding $15,000,000,000 in the next Congress confront the Administration, but Democratic leaders yesterday predicted President Roosevelt would cut this in half.

Conservative party chieftains frankly are concerned over the mounting demands for cash payment of the bonus and huge relief and public works funds.

With revenues already running more than $1,000,000,000 behind expenditures in the present fiscal year and prospects of balancing the budget by July 1, 1935, rapidly fading, they also are worried about plans of inflationists, who increased their numbers in Tuesday's elections.

New social legislation scheduled to come up for consideration calling for old-age pension and unemployment insurance are viewed by some members as entailing additional Federal outlays of unknown amounts for initial funds.

Latest Demand.

The latest demand for increased outlays was made yesterday by Senators McKeller and Bachman, Tennessee Democrats, who announced they would seek an additional $250,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Reviewing demands already made or contemplated by members of Congress for ordinary and extraordinary expenditures and authorizations, Democratic leaders yesterday found:

1. Regular appropriations for maintenance of Government departments in the next fiscal year, more than $3,000,000,000.

2. Cash payment of the bonus, $2,200,000,000.

3. Relief funds, $1,500,000,000.

4. Public works and related activities as proposed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, $5,000,000,000.

5. Increase in home loan bonds to finance home owners, $1,000,000,000.

Other Proposals.

6. Increase in farm loan bonds to finance farm owners, $1,000,000,000.

7. Restoration of veterans' benefits, $100,000,000.

8. Expansion of TVA funds by $250,000,000.

9. Land and waterway program, rivers and harbors, $500,000,000.

10. Public debt retirement and interest requirements, $1,500,000,000.

11. A deficiency appropriation bill to cover other demands, $100,000,000.

12. St. Lawrence Waterway, $185,000,000.

In addition, they considered the possibility of further authorizations for the RFC and numerous other agencies under the New Deal.

On the other side of the ledger, they looked at the condition of the Treasury, where the revenue collected to date in the present fiscal year amounts to $1,319,000,000, in-

Borah Insists U. S. Restore Full Pay Now

Senator Cites High Cost of Living in Urging Return of 5 Pct.

Immediate return of the remaining 5 per cent Federal pay cut, with a possible exemption in the higher salary brackets, was called for yesterday by Senator William E. Borah, Idaho Republican.

Taking issue with Administration plans to delay 100 per cent pay restoration until July 1, 1935, he said increased living costs justify immediate return of a slash that "never should have been made in the first place."

The statement was hailed at once by spokesmen for organized Federal groups as "typical of sentiment in the new Congress."

Babcock Hails Move.

E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, expressed "gratification."

"It simply confirms what we have said right along, that Congress is not going to wait until July to restore Federal salaries. We ask return of the cut as of January 1, and our canvass of congressional views indicates we will get it."

Senator Borah, who led a movement last session for full restoration of pay to all employes receiving less than $2,500 a year, was quick to resume his fight on returning to Washington.

For Restoration Now.

"I am ready to restore the remaining 5 per cent tomorrow, but I would like to exempt high salaries," he said.

"The 15 per cent cut was dishonest and hypocritical from the start, in view of the Administration's policy of increasing purchasing power."

He was asked if he thought Congress would share his ideas on the

Apple Annie, Dead From Gas, Faces Burial in Potter's Field

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Apple Annie, Broadway's Cinderella for a day, lay in the morgue tonight with her husband, both victims of accidental asphyxiation, while police searched for relatives or friends who might save them from burial in potter's field.

Her real name was Helen McCarthy and her husband was Thomas McCarthy, a shoe salesman before times got bad.

But she was "Apple Annie" to thousands of Broadwayites who saw her each night selling apples from a small green cart beside the Hotel Astor, a few steps from Times Square. The people who live well and enjoy fine food were wont to pause at the little cart on the way from a rich dinner at the Astor to some nearby theater, and buy an apple from Annie "just to keep the doctor away."

Annie's great moment came a year ago when a Broadway press agent conceived a stunt for a motion picture called "Lady for a Day." The apple woman was plopped down in a fine car and driven off, with benefit of a motorcycle escort, to a suite in the Waldorf-Astoria. She still had her basket of apples in her hand and reluctantly checked them with a surprised doorman.

At the hotel Annie was shown a selection of fine clothes from which to choose a costume for a luncheon that day at Sherry's. To the surprise of everyone, she refused advice on her choice of wardrobe and herself chose an outfit with excellent and expensive taste—from lingerie to gloves. Later it was learned she had years before been Agriculture, Budget Also Indicated for Chat Next Month.

Speech to Precede Congress Opening

Head of Legion, After Visit, Sees No Bonus Compromising.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

President Roosevelt yesterday disclosed that he plans another of the famous "fireside chats" with the Nation early in December, after his return from his annual vacation at Warm Springs, Ga., and shortly before the convening of Congress.

The radio address immediately assumed first-rank importance, coming as it will at a time when the Administration's far-reaching plans for relief, agriculture and the NRA will be almost ready for presentation to a Congress many believe will prove unwieldy.

Two major subjects—relief and agriculture—were omitted from Mr. Roosevelt's last talk over the air, he remarked, implying they will form the basis of his forthcoming speech. A number of others, including the controversial budget, also were omitted and may be discussed.

Bonus, Inflation Fears.

Asked if he agrees with some Congressional leaders that the coming session should be short, the President smiled as he replied that he always hoped so. Observers are forecasting that the new Congress may get out of hand on such subjects as the bonus and currency inflation.

As Mr. Roosevelt went steadily ahead with his plans for the budget, the inflationary bonus issue bobbed up at the White House in the well-groomed person of Frank N. Belgrano, jr., new national commander of the American Legion, who called to pay his respects.

Insisting that the bonus was not mentioned in his short meeting with the President, Belgrano declared, nevertheless, that he considers the overwhelming vote for the bonus at the Miami Legion convention as a mandate not to be given up by compromise.

The suggestion that the legion might be satisfied with the cancellation of all interest charges on bonus loans, instead of forcing a fight for full cash payment, was made at the White House several days ago by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' administrator.

Up to Committee.

Shaking his head, Mr. Belgrano asserted this was the first he had ever heard of it. He was accompanied to the White House by Col. Monroe Johnson, legion committeeman from South Carolina, who explained, however, that it will be up to the executive committee to decide what should come first on the legion's legislative program. The committee will meet at Indianapolis November 23-24.

Another National leader with hopes for favorable action by Congress—J. J. Pelley, president of the newly formed Association of American Railroads—also called to pay

Cutting in Front By 1,314 Ballots

But Chavez Is Leading in 2 Counties Unreported.

Sante Fe, N. Mex., Nov. 9 (AP).—Returns from the long unreported Sandoval County helped boost the lead of Senator Bronson Cutting (Republican) over Representative Dennis Chavez (Democrat) for the six-year term in the United States Senate to 1,314 on the basis of figures tabulated late today. The 22 Sandoval County precincts reported 2,080 votes for Cutting and 1,761 for Chavez.

On the basis of the latest compilation, the returns from 713 of the State's 761 precincts show:

Cutting, 71,573.

Chavez, 70,259.

Fourteen precincts still were missing in the broad expanse of Rio Arriba County and 21 were unreported from Mora County. Chavez was leading in both, and Democratic leaders said he would increase his margin in those counties in the final official count.

Some 3,000 absentee ballots, to be counted next week, are a factor in the contest.

Hopkins Urges Borah to List Waste in Relief

Quick Inquiry Promised; Return Revives Talks of G.O.P. Change.

By Robert C. Albright.

Investigation of "appalling" waste alleged in the spending policies of Federal relief agencies was demanded yesterday by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, Progressive Republican leader.

Heading the post-election trek back to the Capitol, the independently minded Senator lost no time in throwing down the gauntlet against recent relief outlays, before taking up old cudgels in his war with monopolies.

His return signalized revival of Republican reorganization talk, as members of the G. O. P. throughout the country rose in their wrath against Postmsater General Farley's sounding of that party's requiem.

Quick to Deny Death.

Borah himself was quick to assert the Republican Party is not dead. Asked if he would join with other party leaders in a reorganization effort, he said:

"I could imagine a group I would be willing to cooperate with."

Silent in defeat, Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, returned to the Capitol yesterday, but had no comment to make. From Oregon, however, Senate Republican Leader Charles L. McNary served notice of an early "forward" revision in the party's program. From Michigan, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg called Farley's attention to the Bibilical phrase:

"Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall."

Meanwhile, the Farley victory blast was echoed in a more moderate forecast by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial campaign committee, who predicted a "new Republican alignment upon new principles, guided by new leaders."

To the Democrats, Lewis added a word of warning.

"Having the large majority that we have obtained in both houses, we should be conscious of the danger of conflict in the party opinions and avoid the bitter experience of past Administrations."

Hopkins Ready to Act.

Aroused by Senator Borah's relief charges, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, last night warmly replied to the Idahoan's statement:

"If Senator Borah will be good enough to furnish me with a bill of particulars regarding what he characterized as 'shameless waste' in doling out funds, I promise him quick action."

Senator Borah minced no words in his statement that "one thing about this matter of expenditures for relief must have attention either from Congress or the executive department."

"Everyone wants to see those who need relief get relief, but millions never reach those who need it," he said.

Expense Attacked.

"The amount expended before it gets to those in need is appalling. I have had brought to my attention instances in which the cost, or expense, of administering a fund was about half the fund to be administered.

"Now, the load is heavy enough at best, but this shameless waste, if not worse, will have to have an end, not only in the name of the hungry and the needy but in the interest of decency."

In his reference to "relief," Borah did not specify either FERA or PWA, but FERA apparently took it as a direct allusion. Officials of that agency estimate their administrative costs at less than 12 per cent.

The Idaho Senator "convened" at the Capitol with the usual large attendance of reporters hanging on his words, as he ran the gamut of most of the broad issues of the day.

The collective bargaining section of the NIRA will have to be clarified, he said, so it will not be a "torment" to both capital and labor.

Other Adjustments.

He said other phases of the NRA will have to be adjusted, particularly the removal of the antitrust restrictions, which he said has allowed 402 corporate "monopolies" to earn 608 per cent in the first six months of this year.

Borah favored cancellation of interest on bonus money "borrowed" by veterans, to assist needy former soldiers who are unable to pay up. He insisted he does not favor inflation, however. What he wants, he said, is "reflation" to bring the dollar in line with debts contracted.

He announced for a "Central Bank of Issue" that would give the Government "absolute control of currency," but said he would like to see the Federal Reserve banks continued.

The outspoken Idahoan said the PWA may have provided some jobs, but it has given little impetus to recovery. He would not extend the public works program any further than as a purely relief measure.

Total appropriations for the current year amounted to $7,527,559,327, not including the $2,000,000,000 exchange stabilization fund. This does not include the authorizations for guaranteeing $2,000,000,000 in farm and home loan bonds and numerous others, such as the $250,000,000 cattle relief and similar measures.

Roosevelt's Silence on Election Called Week's Height of Self-Control.

THE height of self-control this week is the way President Roosevelt has been able to refrain from commenting to the extent of a single word on the election returns.

Walter A. Foote, assistant chief of the State Department Division of Current Information, is shoving off on another adventure, this time out to the Dutch East Indies to be consul general at Batavia. He likes it better than wearing spats around Washington.

Walter formerly served in Sumatra but he had the best time at Port Said, Egypt, though not because it is the most wicked city in the world. He knew Lawrence of Arabia. The late King Feisal of Iraq he knew when. Feisal, even before the British set him up on a throne, was a hero to Walter. They often ate in the same restaurant. Feisal was fond of nuts, and he would crush them with his fingers. Walter always wished he could do that.

It's going to be hot and humid out in the Dutch East Indies, but Walter is looking forward to it, after summering here. If he doesn't like it, he'll be welcome back in Washington again.

Nineteen States will be represented in the next Congress entirely by Democrats, both in the House and Senate. Twenty-four States will have no Republicans in the House. Twenty-eight States will have no Republicans in the Senate.

* * * *

When the Democrats turned up with such a large majority, it was thought some of them would have to sit with the Republicans, forming a "Cherokee strip" on the Republican side of the center aisle.

Col. Ed Halsey, secretary of the Senate, has solved the problem another way. He has moved nine seats over to the Democratic side. It is crowded and leaves the Republican side looking desolate with its small clump of 27 chairs in the middle of the floor.

None of the Democrats wanted to sit with the Republicans. That's adding insult to injury.

Disappointing progress in the naval conversations at London may have nothing to do with it but the House Foreign Affairs Committee is looking into the Nation's tin supply. It sent a technical expert to London, where the world's tin industry is controlled. He is back now with some disquieting information. Tin is essential for war materials, not to mention numerous industrial uses. No tin in commercial quantity has been found in the United States. The United States is almost entirely dependent upon other countries for this essential commodity. It buys half of the world's output. An international cartel dominated by the British controls the major supply. The State Department reported recently that the United States has only a two-month supply in case of war.

Japan has been buying American scrap tin in huge quantities, thus further depleting the domestic supply.

Although it's rather late to be bringing this up, I'm becoming confused about the Forgotten Man.

Mr. Roosevelt resurrected him and he's been weaving in and out of the political discussion ever since. At the time Mr. Roosevelt pointed him out, many of us got the impression that he was the downtrodden man who wanted Federal relief, inflation, farm mortgage relief, AAA, NRA and many other things the New Deal has offered and a good deal more. Someone remarked that Mr. Roosevelt heard of the Forgotten Man through a lecture by Prof. William Graham Sumner first delivered about 40 years ago. Most of us let it go at that and continued to think of the Forgotten Man as the down and outer, who craved the New Deal.

That's what happens to a lazy reporter. He hears something and let's it go at that.

David Lawrence looked into the matter recently and has reprinted Prof. Sumner's entire lecture in the United States News. From this it appears the Forgotten Man is pretty much of a selfish individualist and not a New Dealer at all.

Prof. Sumner says this:

"The Forgotten Man is never a pauper. He almost always has a little capital, because it belongs to the character of the man to save something. He never has more than a little. He is, therefore, poor in the popular sense, although in the correct sense he is not so. If you learn to look for the Forgotten Man and to care for him, you will be very skeptical toward all philanthropic and humanitarian schemes. It is clear now that the interest of the Forgotten Man comes the minute that the orator or writer begins to talk about the poor man. That minute the Forgotten Man is in danger of a new assault, and if you intend to meddle in the matter at all, then is the minute for you to look about for him and to give him your aid.

"Hence, if you care for the Forgotten Man, you will be sure to be charged with not caring for the poor. Whatever you do for any of the petted classes wastes capital. If you do anything for the Forgotten Man, you must secure him his earnings and savings; that is, you legislate for the security of capital and for its free employment; you must oppose paper money, wildcat banking and usury laws, and you must maintain the inviolability of contracts. Hence you must be prepared to be told that you favor the capitalist class, the enemy of the poor man.

"What the Forgotten Man needs, therefore, is that we come to a clearer understanding of liberty and to a more complete realization of it. Every step which we win in liberty will set the Forgotten Man free from some of his burdens and allow him to use his powers for himself and for the Commonwealth."

The New Deal apparently got him by mistake. It is up to the American Liberty League to claim him.

subject, or go along with the President's announced intention of allowing the cut to lapse with the close of this fiscal year.

"From the manner in which the Government has been distributing money," he said, "I should think Congress would be willing to restore the cut. I would like to see it do so the first day of the session."

Many Favor Full Pay.

The Borah pronouncement was probably the most important of a long succession of statements from Senators and Representatives that they would not be party to further extending the levy on Federal salaries when general restoration of pay rolls is one of the chief aims of the New Deal program.

The American Federation of Government Employes, which has conducted a poll on the issue, in recent weeks has claimed a clear majority in favor of the restoration move, and has pushed onward toward a 15 per cent pay rise on top of this.

Several "friends" of pay restoration went down in Tuesday's election landslide, however, not the least of whom were Representatives Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania; Fred Britten, of Illinois, and Senators Henry D. Hatfield, of West Virginia, and Arthur Robinson, of Indiana.

Wages Separate Battle.

Not less insistent on "full pay by January 1," the National Federation of Federal Employes, parent organization in the field of employe legislation, from which the A. F. G. E. group seceded some years ago, was waging a fight on its own front.

This group will ask retroactive legislation by Congress, repealing the cut as of the first of the year. On a second tangent, the organization demands classification of all Federal salaries on a more equitable basis, and extension of the so-called "merit system."

Guggenheim Declines Bid.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Harry F. Guggenheim, of the copper mining family, said tonight he had been invited to join the executive committee of the American Liberty League, but has declined to serve. It had been reported that he accepted the invitation.

his respects to Mr. Roosevelt. With him were members of his executive committee, composed of the heads of a half-dozen railroads.

Railroading, declared Mr. Pelley, who described his new job as "rather thrilling," is "about the same" although business is improving.

He added that the new association is now formulating plans for legislation, which are expected to request that Congress place all other forms of transportation on a parity with the railroads by bringing them under the strict supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

No Stand On Pooling.

No stand has yet been taken on the proposal of Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Coordinator of Transportation, for the poolnig of all box cars, Mr. Pelley said. At the same time he declared, "we will give it careful consideration and take what is there."

Mr. Pelley recently resigned the presidency of the New York, New Haven & Hartford to accept the leadership of the railroads—a move that closely followed a conference with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park. Accompanying him on yesterday's call were F. E. Williamson, of the New York Central; Daniel Willard, Baltimore & Ohio; J. J. Bernet, Chesapeake & Ohio; Carl Gray, Union Pacific, and H. A. Scandrett, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific.

In his efforts to knit together a broad program of relief and recovery, involving both social and economic planning for the future, Mr. Roosevelt revealed he is holding night meetings once each week with small groups of advisers.

Budget Progress "Rapid."

He said that progress with the budget has been rapid, and that only three or four departmental estimates remain to be completed. They will be ready, he said, for the attention of House appropriations sub-committees when they are called to Washington by Chairman James P. Buchanan early next month.

Conferences on the budget and other matters will be crowded into the few remaining days before Mr. Roosevelt leaves Thursday for Warm Springs. Administration leaders also are to be summoned there for conferences on the legislative program before he returns about December 5.

New Houde Act Likely to Avert 30-Hour Week

Administration Also Seeks Wider Powers for Labor Boards.

Enactment into law of the National Labor Relations Board's celebrated Houde majority rule decision probably will be asked of Congress by the Administration, it was learned yesterday.

It is also likely that the Roosevelt high command will seek drastic tightening of the powers of the several labor boards. These major concessions to labor are expected to be granted to head off threatened passage of a 30-hour week bill for all industry.

While the legislative program remains in a somewhat tentative state, officials interested in its formulation realize organized labor resents its failure to put through the bills it wanted at the last session and will exert stronger pressure when Congress returns in January.

Move for Compromise.

Administration leaders have decided the only way to pacify labor will be to engineer an attractive compromise. They are willing to grant almost anything to block passage of a 30-hour week bill, which they regard as highly impractical and likely to retard instead of encourage recovery.

If present plans materialize, Congress will be urged to give the Federal labor boards authority comparable to that already vested in the Federal Trade Commission. The boards would be empowered to subpena witnesses and evidence, institute contempt proceedings in the courts against person who refused to testify, cite to the courts firms or individuals who failed to comply with their decisions and investigate labor disputes on their own initiative when strikes were threatened and neither side asked their intervention.

There is little possibility, however, that any move will be made to empower the boards to enforce compulsory arbitration of controversies because such a provision would require hundreds of trained arbitrators, whose services would be difficult if not impossible to obtain.

Labor unquestionably would be overjoyed to have the principles embodied in the Houde decision written on the statute books. Any move to obtain its enactment would be opposed by the National Association of Manufacturers, which already has advised its members to disregard the decision.

Soon after the Labor Board issued the ruling, September 1, the Houde Engineering Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., which manufactures automobile parts, announced its refusal to comply. The NRA revoked its Blue Eagle, but the Justice Department so far has failed to prosecute the company, as recommended by the board. The last word from Attorney General Cummings was he was awaiting evidence.

The meat of the board's decision:

"When a person, committee or organization has been designated by the majority of employes in a plant or other appropriate unit for collective bargaining, it is the right of the representatives so designated to be treated by the employer as the exclusive collective bargaining agency of all employes in the unit, and the employer's duty is to make every reasonable effort, when requested, to arrive with this representative at a collective agreement covering terms of employment of all such employes."

Suggestions that the Administration also would support a bill to outlaw the company-sponsored union were discredited in responsible quarters. If Congress puts its stamp of approval on the principle of the Houde decision, however, labor would not be particularly anxious to have company unions legislated out of existence.

Guffey and Earle March to Funeral Of 5 Slain Miners

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 9 (AP).—On an autumn-browned mountain top, 10,000 men and women, among them leaders of the State Democratic Party, stood silently today as five miners, slain in the ambush of an election eve parade, were buried in a mass ceremony.

Five hearses, moving abreast, led the procession up the hill while church bells tolled. Behind them walked the thousands, including Joseph F. Guffey, United States Senator-elect, and George H. Earle, the next Governor.

State police and county and town officers maintained quiet and order as the throngs filled three churches, where requiem ceremonies were chanted.

The services over, those who filled the churches joined crowds in the street in the procession that followed the cortege to three adjoining burial grounds above Kelayres, the mining settlement where the tragedy occurred.

Mines were closed, business was suspended, shops and stores were locked and shades drawn. Even the postoffice in adjoining McAdoo did not open.

Fatal Train Collision Laid to Faulty Brakes

Ayer, Mass., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—A conductor was killed, several other trainmen injured and many passengers shaken when two passenger trains of the Boston & Maine Railroad collided at a crossover at Ayer Depot tonight.

A locomotive pulling milk cars, a baggage car and several coaches from Bellows Falls, Vt., rammed the locomotive of a passenger train en route from Lowell to Worcester. The crash was attributed to inability of the Boston-bound train to stop because of defective air-brakes.

Senate Will Get Revised Pact On Waterway

Changes Are Proposed to Canada on Secret Trip by Phillips.

With a view to submitting a revised St. Lawrence Waterway treaty with Canada to the next Senate, the Administration, it was revealed yesterday, already has approached the Ottawa government concerning several slight modifications in the pact rejected last winter.

President Roosevelt revealed that Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, when in Ottawa last week, spoke informally with Prime Minister Richard B. Bennett concerning several changes in the treaty which this government hoped the Canadians might be willing to discuss.

Incidentally, Mr. Phillips' visit to Ottawa remained a secret until it was revealed at the White House. The impression was given that the discussion regarding the St. Lawrence treaty was incidental to some other mission which took the acting chief of American foreign affairs to a conference with the prime minister of Canada.

Mission Kept Secret.

Whatever else Mr. Phillips discussed with the Canadian premier remained veiled in mystery. In some quarters the guess was hazarded Mr. Phillips went to Ottawa to sound out the prime minister regarding a reciprocal trade agreement, but this could not be confirmed at the State Department. Nor was there any explanation of why the usual diplomatic machinery was not used in approaching Canada on the waterway pact.

The President did not reveal what changes were contemplated in the treaty.

The President, however, made it plain he did not propose to make any further concessions to Chicago in the way of water diversion from Lake Michigan. The Illinois Senators bitterly fought the treaty last winter on the ground that it permitted diversion of too small a volume of water for navigation purposes on the Chicago Canal.

The treaty would limit Chicago's diversion to 1,500 cubic feet of water per second plus domestic pumpage.

Possible Modifications.

Possible modifications in the treaty might be in the sections regarding the nationality of labor employed on the American side of the huge waterway project and clarification regarding sovereignty over Lake Michigan. Aside from the Illinois opposition, the severest attacks made on the treaty last winter came from Senators representing Atlantic Seaboard and Gulf States. They feared construction of a navigable waterway from the Great Lakes to the St. Lawrence would diminish or destroy port interests in their States.

Although several of those who bitterly fought the treaty were defeated in this week's election, their successors in some cases, due to local situations, are expected also to be opposed to the treaty as long as it threatens the interests of other ports. Whether the President can win two-thirds of the Senate to the treaty remains in doubt.

Sharp U.S. Note Insists Persia MakeApologies

State Department Asks Details on Detention of American Fliers.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

In a curtly worded note the United States Government demanded in effect yesterday an apology from the Persian government for the detention of two American fliers who were obliged to land in that country during the England-to-Australia air derby last month.

John H. Wright and John Polando, the American contestants, were forced down by minor engine trouble between Mohammerah and Abadan on October 23. According to affidavits obtained by the State Department the plane and passports of the two fliers were seized and not returned to them until the next day. They abandoned the race because of this enforced delay.

This incident has disturbed the State Department for some days but it was decided not to act hastily. Protestations were withheld until a full investigation had been completed. Meanwhile the Persian legation here has contented itself with issuing general denials of press reports concerning the affair.

The department yesterday instructed William H. Hornibrook, American Minister at Teheran, to hand the Persian government a note which made no pretense to diplomatic or guarded language. The note asserted this Government was at "a loss to understand the action of the Persian authorities," and added that the "lack of consideration" shown the fliers has made a most unfavorable impression in the United States."

Persian Visas Valid.

The note recited the seizure of the passports of the fliers and the detention of their plane for 24 hours and pointed out that the seizure of their passports, which bore valid Persians visas, was tantamount to the detention of their persons since they obviously could not proceed without travel documents."

"In view of the official assurances understood to have been given by the Persian government prior to the race that blanket permission has been granted to all contestants to fly over Persia and that it was prepared to render all possible aid to facilitate the race," the note continued, "the American Government is at a loss to understand the action of the Persian authorities in seizing the passports of the American fliers and in detaining their plane for a full day after they had been compelled to make an emergency landing on the direct route of the race.

"It may be added that the lack of consideration shown to these two American fliers under the exceptionally difficult circumstances in which they were placed, has made a most unfavorable impression in the United States."

Japan Moving Secretly to Win British Accord

Commercial Concessions Offered for Naval Equality Support.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

London, Nov. 9 (U.P.).—The impression rapidly gained ground tonight that, parallel to the naval negotiations, intense secret activity has broken out between the British and Japanese on the economic and political front, with Japan strongly bidding for British naval support to her naval equality demands.

According to a usually reliable source, the foreign office and British board of trade are considering a Japanese secret offer of concessions regarding the new Manchukuo oil monopoly and the Japanese government control of the oil trade in Japan.

Japan's purported efforts to win the British over to naval favor via commercial overtures, however, were believed by observers to extend beyond the oil monopoly issue to the vital question of restraint of Japanese competition against British textile and other exports.

The fact that Admiral Isoroku, although empowered alone to reply to the British proposal for a "gentleman's agreement" to replace current naval treaties, is consulting with Tokyo on procedure was considered evidence of the importance which Japan attaches to conciliating Great Britain.

The answer which Japan will deliver to the British next week on the naval proposal is certain to be negative, but it is equally certain to leave the door open just a crack to continue collaboration with Britain.

While the United States remains on the sidelines temproarily. The development of these secret Anglo-Japanese negotiations, of which only vague symptoms are as yet visible on the surface, is regarded of such signficance that it was understood Norman H. Davis, head of the U. S. delegation, will remain in London instead of attending the meeting of the world arms conference steering committee at Geneva on November 20.

Also, news that the Osaka Asahi newspaper today published an editorial blaming in advance the alleged obstinate attitude of the United States for immient failure of the naval talks was regarded widely as a sign that hopes of a new Anglo-Japanese understanding had led the Japanese to adopt a sharper tone toward Washington.

Wear Old Suits, Nazis Are Told

Reich Moves to Halt Rapdily Rising Prices of Clothing.

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP).—Clothes don't make the Nazi, Germany was told today. Dr. Karl Goerdeler, Adolf Hitler's new price dictator, ordered all "good" Germans to wear their old clothing "down to the last thread if necessary."

In an address explaining his functions as commissar for control of prices—which have been rising too rapidly of late for the government's peace of mind—Goerdeler said "no one loses one bit of his dignity if he wears threadbare clothes." "On the contrary," he asserted, "he acts against the nation's interests if he hoards clothing."

Merchants throughout the nation, recently threatened with closing if they try to take advantage of Germany's shortage of raw materials to profiteer, were enjoined to refuse to sell unusual quantities of any commodity.

Munich, Germany, Nov. 9 (AP).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, celebrating the eleventh anniversary of his first bid for control of Germany, today called for a fight against the "many, many opponents to our movement."

From the same platform where in 1923 he launched the short-lived "beer cellar putsch" that landed him in jail, Hitler declared: "What you see about you was born behind the Landsberg prison walls during my 13 months' confinement there."

Mrs. Vanderbilt Denies Neglect

Gloria Doesn't Know Her Own Mind, Mother Says.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, called back to the witness stand today in the legal battle over the custody of her daughter, Gloria, denied that she had ever neglected the little girl.

"The child doesn't know her own mind," she said, explaining why the 10-year-old heiress wrote letters saying she was unhappy with her mother and told Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew she preferred to live with her aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Asked why her own mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, would turn against her and testify that she treated young Gloria like a "poor orphan," Mrs. Vanderbilt said, "It's beyond explanation."

She insisted she had always been a "wonderful daughter" to Mrs. Morgan—affectionate, attentive and generous.

Casey Jones' Conductor Dies After Long Illness

Canton, Miss., Nov. 9 (AP).—Casey Jones' conductor is dead. J. C. (Chap) Turner, the former trainmate of the famous engineer of song and story who lost his life in a wreck at Ball, died at his home here today after a long illness.

But making the same 'run" with Casey was not Chap's only claim to fame—he was just as proud of the distinction he held of being the conductor on the first trip of the famous Panama Limited, Illinois Central flyer, which was discontinued two years ago but which will soon go back into service.

Grid Cancellation Arouses Tech Revolt

About 50 McKinley High School students played "hookey" yesterday to hear what the Board of Education was going to do about cancellation of the football schedule. Here is part of the group, taken just before the hearing opened. They disappeared immediately a few minutes later when a board member directed principals to take their names.

Ballou 'Forced' Action, Principal, Coach Tell Hearing.

eral times he asked the board if he could "tell the truth."

"Certainly," several board members responded.

"When I asked one man to back me up today," Hardell stated, "he said 'remember I have a wife and child to support.'"

Student Body Aroused.

Meanwhile, out at McKinley, where the feeling against the board's action was high, talk of a student walkout Monday morning continued.

Students received news of the board's decision just as classes were being dismissed for the day, and more than 100 of them gathered on the school plaza, where a senior, described by his classmates and school officials as a Communist agitator, exhorted them to strike.

He urged them to meet in front of the school at 8:45 a. m. Monday, when a decision on the strike would be reached.

Students Bewildered.

The student body seemed disappointed and somewhat bewildered by the board's action, a step which they almost unanimously considered injustice. Many members of the football team and school leaders, in particular, however, were definitely opposed to a walkout.

At the hearing "Communist agitators" were blamed by Coach Hardell as originators of strike talk and for inciting members of the student body and others into burning Dr. Kramer in effigy and storming his home Wednesday night.

"Communist people in our schools have taken advantage of this situation," Hardell said.

Hearing Room Crowded.

Every available seat in the board room in the Franklin School Building was taken and scores, most of them students, overflowed into the corridors as the hearing opened, shortly after 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

The reading of a memorandum on the controverted principals' meeting by Dr. Ballou, absent because of a speaking engagement, was the first order of business. Dr. Kramer then told the board that the football ban had resulted not from the single incident at the McKinley-Western game Friday, but had been based on an accumulation of similar incidents, including fighting on the field between halves of the Tech-Central game. Throughout the hearing, the students' viewpoint was constantly upheld by Henry Gilligan, the only member of the board to vote with them on reinstatement of the grid schedule.

Engage in Debate.

At this juncture he questioned Dr. Kramer's version of the Tech-Central game fracas, and the two entered into a spirited discussion of their perceptive abilities.

Several times the student members of the audience broke out with applause and Chairman Johnson asked that they refrain from thus expressing themselves.

Through most of the proceedings students sat quietly in their seats, their faces intent, absorbing every word.

Mr. Quinn suggested that those students not present on "official business" return to their classes. None moved. Then George M. Whitwell, board member, directed principals to take "note of those here without permission and take customary action," reminding the school heads of the law against truancy. Some 50 students jumped up and left the room.

Students Driven Out.

Mr. Quinn and Mr. Whitwell took cognizance of published reports of proposed student strikes.

"As far as I am concerned they can strike till kingdom come. It will not influence me," Mr. Quinn said.

Daniel insisted that the presence of both Dr. Kramer and Dr. Ballou at the principals' meeting had a decided influence on their decision, though when Mr. Quinn asked him if he had not always in the past found "Dr. Ballou and Dr. Kramer fair," and if he might "without fear" have dissented from their views, he answered:

"Yes."

He also admitted when questioned by Dr. Kramer that he had been under no compulsion 'to accept my alternatives."

Newton Defends Action.

Dr. Elmer Newton, Western High School principal, said he didn't think "we were limited in choice of action," and that he considered the action taken proper. He said he was sorry that the series had been called off and disliked to "retreat under fire."

Dr. Newton said he believed a trained student patrol and adequate police protection "plus a good fence" would serve to keep game crowds in hand in the future.

Throughout the hearing the Metropolitan Police Department was censured for failing to provide the schools with enough policemen to handle crowds in emergencies, it being pointed out that professional sport attractions, such as baseball, were abundantly supplied with officers.

Other school principals—Harvey Smith of Central, Charles Hart of Eastern, Allen Davis of Roosevelt—were heard from. Each agreed with Mr. Daniel's version of their meeting, each expressed the wish that the games could be continued, but each denied they had acted under pressure from Dr. Ballou and Dr. Kramer and to a man they replied in the affirmative when asked by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, board member, if they still stood by their decision "in the light of all that has happened."

Football Arbiter Urged.

Mr. Davis suggested the appointment of a football "czar" with powers corresponding to those exercised by Judge Landis, organized baseball's high commissioner, as one answer to the game control problem.

"If Kramer or Ballou had tried to coerce me," he declared, "I would have voted the other way."

Officials of the McKinley-Western game, including Referee Paul Magoffin, who said "there is nothing unsportsmanlike in an occasional fight," and players involved in the fracas testified. These were Alexander Cohen, Francis "Reds" Daly, Adrian Smith and John Josselyn, of Tech, and Frank Wynne, Bill Krause and Jack Waddell, of Western.

Coach Denies Issue Forced.

Coach Daniel Ahearn, of Western, said he didn't believe either Dr. Ballou and Dr. Kramer had "forced the issue."

Heads of the High School Teachers Union and the High School Teachers Association read resolutions backing Dr. Kramer and the cancellation order and Lynn Woodworth, Roosevelt coach, blamed lack of game control on failure of "character education."

Mr. Quinn, in making the motion upholding the principals, repeated an assertion made by several board members that their action was not taken to penalize the schools involved in Friday's fight, but to "avoid trouble" because the schools apparently were not yet ready to handle game emergencies.

Hitler's Police Terrify Saar, League Hears

Geneva Told of Reprisals Hinted if Annexation Is Defeated.

Geneva, Nov. 9 (AP).—The League of Nations heard again today that German Nazis have armed forces working secretly in the Saar Basin for the territory's annexation to Germany.

The league's commission governing the Saar advised Geneva that secret police numbering 10,000 are busy terrorizing Saarlanders believed to be opposed to joining Germany, while newspapers and German radio facilities are used to persecute and slander individuals, including priests.

(The Saar will vote January 13 whether to keep the league as its governor, unite with France or rejoin Germany.)

Documents that have been seized prove that the German front and the secret police are using extreme measures to promote the German cause, the commission reported, and those opposing the Nazis have been denounced to German authorities. Reprisals after the plebiscite have been threatened, it was stated.

An intricate, far flung organization to advance the Nazi cause in the Saar was outlined by the commission's report, which said "the Catholic clergy seemed to be under special observation."

It charged secret police with spying upon Nazis and members of the commission itself, with trying to kidnap anti-Nazis and with provoking frequent disturbances. The German government was directly accused of interfering with affairs in the Saar territory.

Asserting 1,500 women belonged to the secret police organization, the commission said the entire Saar valley was divided into small sectors which secret agents constantly patrolled. A sharp eye is kept on every resident of the Saar, the report said.

Occupation of Saar Protested to Powers

London, Nov. 9 (AP).—Ambassador von Hoesch, of Germany, called at the Foreign Office today to protest against the possible use of French troops in policing the Saar Basin territory.

The protest, ordered by the German foreign ministry, was also delivered to the governments of France, Italy and Belgium by the German envoys to those nations.

Italy's Control By Corporation To Begin Today

Il Duce to Set Up State in Which Divisions Make Own Laws.

Rome, Nov. 9 (AP).—The wheels of Benito Mussolini's new corporative state start turning tomorrow.

A reform designed to tear out the roots of parliamentary government, the long-prepared state, in which industry, commerce, business and the professions are to make their own laws, will be formally set up by Il Duce.

He and his formidable propaganda machine were advertising it to the whole world tonight as something new in modern-day government, something soon to be copied by other states.

Mussolini is expected to make one of his most important speeches of recent years at the opening ceremony. In the Julius Caesar hall of the capitol, he will address 739 persons, making up the first General Assembly of the new legislative bodies.

Representatives of capital, labor and the Fascist party will hear him. They will constitute the governing boards of 22 corporations, or "self-governing" category organizations, to be officially brought into being at the meeting.

Each corporation will represent a branch of the nation's productive or working life. In each, delegates of the workers will sit with delegates of capital, and appointees of the party will hold the balance of voting power.

Mussolini will be elected president of every corporation, of the General Assembly and of the National Council of Corporations, which will bring together delegates from the individual corporations, and will be vested with final law-enacting powers.

Farley's Release 'Not Considered'

National Committee Head Waits Executive Word.

President Roosevelt yesterday said he has given no consideration to the retirement of Postmaster General James A. Farley as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Earlier in the year, when the President launched his drive for the divorcement of public officials from party office, it was understood that the genial Cabinet member would resign after the elections.

Still flush with success, however, Mr. Farley has said he has no intention to resign, but that it was up to the President, of course.

Flandin Makes Bid for Backing Of New Regime

Plan to End Depression Wins Support; Revision Made Secondary.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Paris, Nov. 9.—Pierre-Etienne Flandin, newest "truce" premier, promised the nation tonight to fight the depression as aged Gaston Doumergue went back into the retirement from which he was called to rescue France from civil war.

Flandin's program, with which he hoped to win the backing of France's watching millions, included these important points:

1. Continuation of the policy of political truce inaugurated when February's bloody Stavisky riots scared politicians into agreement.
2. A fight against poverty and unemployment.
3. Economy in government.
4. Rapid adoption of the 1935 budget.
5. Strengthening of the authority of the State.

Revision Secondary.

His program, in general, resembled Doumergue's. There was, however, one important difference.

Doumergue gave constitutional revision prominent place. He insisted his plan, which would have stripped the Senate of power to dissolve the chamber and given it to the president and premier, should be voted before the budget. On this rock his ship of state wrecked, for the powerful Radical Socialists, headed by Vice Premier Edouard Herriot, refused to support him.

Flandin's program relegates constitutional revision to secondary place, with the result his government is assured of an adequate majority when it faces the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday.

Flocking to his support today were the Radical Socialists, who got eight portfolios in the government as against six they held under Doumergue; the Republican Federation; the Poular Democrats; the Social Republicans; the Republicans of the Left and the Radical Left.

Senate Favorable.

In the Senate, as well, the majority of political factions have adopted resolutions favorable to the new government.

Doumergue, cheered by street crowds here and elsewhere last night, emptied three drawers of his desk—he said they were all he used during his nine months in power—and again went into retirement.

The new cabinet took the oath from President Albert LeBrun at midnight.

The ministry was the ninety-seventh since the foundation of the republic and the eighteenth of the present legislature. In the last 17 years France has overthrown 30 ministries.

Contractor Slugged By Intruder in Home

G. J. Lowe, a contractor, was treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday after he told police he had been beaten in his home at 303 C street northeast, with a pair of his own brass knuckles.

Lowe told police he was slugged by an unidentified assailant as he entered his home in the early morning. Police found a pair of blood-stained brass knuckles, said to belong to Lowe, who said $9 was taken from his pockets during the affray.

Cardinal Takes Stand for Insull Co-Defendant

Catholic Leader Tells of Church Honor Given Harold L. Stuart.

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—George Cardinal Mundelein, the red at the throat of his black clericals signifying his rank as a prince of the Catholic Church, gave character testimony for one of the Insull mail fraud trial defendants today.

The archbishop of Chicago described the reputation of Harold L. Stuart, LaSalle street investment banker, who is accused, along with Samuel Insull and 15 others, of swindling investors of a hundred million dollars, as "splendid."

"Has he received any honors from the Roman Catholic Church?" asked Defense Attorney Charles Lounsbury.

Honored by Church.

"On my petition and recommendation, Mr. Stuart received one of the highest orders the Catholic Church can confer," said the cardinal.

"That was the Order of Pope Pius the Ninth. Only one other non-Catholic holds that—the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood."

"Without Mr. Stuart's services," the cardinal added, "we could not have built the International College of the Propaganda Fide in Rome."

"What were the circumstances of your first meeting with Mr. Stuart?" he was asked.

"Mr. Stuart came to my residence, in company with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo," said the cardinal, "when Mr. Stuart was chairman of the first Liberty Loan drive."

Accountant Testifies.

It was the first time Cardinal Mundelein had ever appeared as a character witness, he said before court convened. A former Vice President of the United States and figures of military and business importance previously had testified for the defendants. Consul General Berthold Singer, who followed the cardinal to the stand and also vouched for Stuart, represents Turkey, Nicaragua and Costa Rica in Chicago.

Clarence R. Whitworth, the accountant who certified statements of the Insull company under fire in the case, took the stand later as the sixth defendant to testify in his own defense.

Whitworth declared the Insull financial statements he had approved contained all the information it was "customary" to give investors.

H. L. Stuart, wealthy Chicago bachelor who heads Halsey Stuart & Co., will be the next witness when court resumes Monday.

Scrip Acceptance In Part Advocated

NRA Committee Suggests Change for Stores.

Limited acceptance by retail stores of scrip paid workers by some employers was proposed yesterday by an NRA committee headed by Dr. C. B. Fowler, of New York.

The retail code contains a provision prohibiting acceptance of scrip. The committee recommended company stores should be permitted to accept such paper up to 25 per cent of the wages earned. The investigators said the scrip should be accepted at par value.

Employers, the committee added, should be required to pay all workers a "reasonable portion" of their wages in cash.

Gaming Inquiry Proposed by Nice

tions, which I may legally do, that constitute a detriment to the citizens of Maryland, or which might be a menace to their lives and property," he said.

Resort Runs 20 Years.

"Jimmie's" has been a gaming house for 20 years and it has experienced little difficulty with the law. Each time a grand jury started to investigate the place, it closed down. It promptly reopened when the grand jury was not in session.

In the past two years, it is reported, Philadelphia gambling interests have "taken over" the supervision of the games and are abstracting a cut of 50 per cent on all profits.

In 1932 James A. "Jimmie" La Fontaine was sentenced to a nine months' term in jail for failure to pay his income taxes. He paid the Government $206,000 in back income taxes and penalties for the years 1925 and 1926.

It is estimated that each day from between $50,000 and $100,000 passes through the cashier's window at the gambling house.

County Fusionists Meet for Protest meeting of the supervisors was still going on. Reports rushed in that more demonstrators were coming down from Damascus and Clarksburg, and Fusion leaders, seeking to quell the storm, called in their best oratorical talent.

Miss Vivian Simpson and Edward Peter, law partners, who headed the Democratic wing of the Fusion group, spoke to the crowd, and so did Clay Plummer, of Gaithersburg, former sheriff.

Cantrel arrived dramatically in his automobile after the crowd had been arguing for an hour and a half, and was cheered. He spoke briefly, telling the crowd that the ballot boxes were safely locked and sealed in the local jail, guarded by two Fusionists and a county policeman, and succeeded in convincing his supporters that the situation was under control.

Slowly and reluctantly, the group dispersed.

Ivy Lee Dead; Brain Tumor Is Fatal at 57

Rockefeller's Adviser Made Press Agency a Profession.

ation. As his condition became critical, his family was summoned.

With him when he died were his wife, his mother, Mrs. James W. Lee, sr., of St. Louis; his two sons and his daughter, and a brother.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday from the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. George A. Buttrick, the pastor, officiating. Burial will be private.

Lee, who as adviser to the Rockefellers, the Pennsylvania Railroad and other clients had remained in the background, found himself in the public eye only four months before his death in connection with a Congressional committee's investigation of anti-American activities.

The committee disclosed he had testified privately that he had received $25,000 a year from the German dye trust for supplying information and advice on debt and armament questions for the German government's guidance.

The statement, made public while Lee was in Germany, said that he and his firm had no direct connection with the German government, but that the agreement with the dye trust was an oral one. On a trip to Germany last January, he said, he had met Hitler and other officials.

"A Santa Claus."

His son, James Lee 2d, the statement continued, was stationed in Berlin as a contact man. The son was paid $33,000 a year—$8,000 more than the dye trust contract.

"I stipulated in the beginning that there should be no dissemination whatever by me of information in the United States," Lee said.

He once before came into public attention when he represented the Rockefellers in the strike against the Colorado Fuel & Oil Co. in 1914.

When news of the Ludlow, Colo., shooting reached New York, crowds gathered in front of the Rockefeller offices and had to be dispersed by police.

It was within the next two years that the senior Rockefeller began giving away dimes and creating philanthropies.

Contemporary writers commented that Rockefeller had been transformed in the public mind from "an ogre to a Santa Claus."

Lee consistently denied he had anything to do with the dime-giving touch.

Helped Red Cross.

He had become associated with John D. Rockefeller, sr., in 1914, nine years after he left nwspaper work to engage in public relations.

In 1910 he went to Europe as general European manager for the banking firm of Harris, Winthrop & Co. After two years he returned to the United States, becoming executive assistant on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

He established an office here in 1916, and thereafter was public relation adviser to Mr. Rockefeller and numerous industrial corporations, banks and other business and philanthropic enterprises.

He was publicity director and later assistant to the chairman of the American Red Cross during the World War.

Born in Cedartown, Ga., on July 16, 1877, Lee was the son of the late Rev. James W. Lee and the former Emma Ledbetter. He entered Emory College and later Princeton, from which he was graduated in 1898. He then studied at Harvard and Columbia.

His newspaper work began as a reporter on the New York American, and he later was with the New York Times and the New York World. His first experience in publicity was for the Citizens' Union when Seth Low was elected Mayor of New York in 1903.

He married Cornelia Bartlett Bigelow, of St. Paul, in 1901. Besides his widow and his mother, he is survived by three children, Mrs. Chandler Cudlipp, James W. Lee, 2d and Ivy Lee, jr.; two brothers, James W. Lee, jr., and L. H. Lee, both of New York, and three sisters, Mrs. Wilbur T. Trueblood, Mrs. Mortimer Burroughs and Mrs. Robert S. Hoxie, all of St. Louis.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., a close friend, was notified of his death, but associates said Rockefeller, sr., who is in Florida, had not been informed.

High Efficiency Of Police Radio Cited by Brown

$36,000 Equips Station Which Coordinates Anti-Crime Work.

What is the exact truth about crime conditions and law enforcement in Washington? In a series of articles, of which this is the ninth, The Post undertakes to answer this question.

The Metropolitan Police Radio Unit is the one bureau in the department which is beter equipped and better manned than any similar unit in the country, in the opinion of Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown.

Its duties are to broadcast alarms of crimes, send appeals to ambulances to go to stricken persons, caution policemen in scout cars and cruisers to be on the alert for known nad escaped criminals, and coordinate police activity the instant a crime is committed.

Answer Calls Speedily.

As an indication of the efficacy of its work, Maj. Brown pointed out that 3,798 calls were broadcast during October, and of this number 3,429 were given responses within 4 minutes.

This means that from the time the appeal was received at headquarters, it was relayed to the radio dispatcher, broadcast, and the scout or cruiser was on the scene and had reported the disposition of the case, within four minutes.

Alarms sent to scout cars totaled 3,507, of which 3,363 were cleared in four minutes. In this group 37 were answered in 1 minute, 740 in 2 minutes, 2,055 in 3 minutes, and 531 in 4 minutes. No reply came from a scout car later than 10 minutes after it had been received.

Lieut. Kelley Heads Unit.

The radio unit, quartered in the Tenth Precinct, is under the command of Lieut. James Kelley, whose hobby is radio and who is recognized as the country's outstanding expert on police radio equipment. He personally assembled the two transmitters which furnish the department with its broadcasts. One is for emergency use.

His staff is comopsed of radio engineers, one who has had years of experience as a radio man in the Navy. The station itself has a navy-like appearance. The floors of the broadcasting room always are waxed, the bronze equipment is highly polished and the entire station is immaculately kept.

$36,000 Equips Station.

Through Kelley's efforts, the entire station was equipped at a cost of $36,000. Virtually all the labor was done by Kelley and former carpenters and plumbers who are now in the Police Department. New York City's station, which is not considered the equal of the Capital's, cost $100,000.

The station broadcasts police alarms to the 37 police cars which constantly cruise through the city. In the next few weeks, due to an appropriation of $11,000 by Congress, the department wil lequip 11 more cars with radios and a network of amplifiers will be placed in each precinct so that the entire department may instantly be advised on police matters.

Apple Annie Dead Of Gas in New York

a lady's maid for wealthy families and had traveled extensively.

So Annie, lady for a day, looked like a blue blooded matron in her new finery and at the luncheon was quite the most poised lady there, among a group of motion picture stars and other guests.

She enjoyed it hugely and talked a great deal about herself—of the sights she had seen abroad, how she had met the Pope, and how she had danced with the purser on the ship.

When the day was over, Apple Annie, like Cinderella at the stroke of 12, went back to her dingy flat, her aging husband and her daily round of selling apples in all weathers.

Almost a week ago her body and that of her husband were found, dead of gas fumes in their one-room place, and today the police announced Annie's identity.

Robberies Put Washington 3d On Crime List

299 Thefts Committed Here in Six Months, Statistics Show.

Among nine cities of like size in the United States, Washington outranked all but two in the number of robberies committed in the first six months of this year. During that period 299 cases of robbery were reported to the metropolitan police. Compared to population, the six-month average was 61.5 robberies per 100,000 citizens.

Figures tabulated from the uniform crime reports submitted by police departments to the Department of Justice for the first and second quarters of this year show the following comparisons for the nine cities having approximately the same population as the District of Columbia:

Capital Third on List.

Population	City	Robberies	Rate per 100,000
669,817	Pittsburgh	426	63.6
464,356	Minneapolis	325	70.0
486,869	Washington	299	61.5
442,337	Newark	287	64.9
451,160	Cincinnati	130	28.8
634,394	San Francisco	128	20.2
458,762	New Orleans	98	21.4
573,076	Buffalo	83	14.5
578,249	Milwaukee	40	6.9

Robbery, as defined by the District of Columbia code, is the act of "taking by force or violence, whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure, or by snatching, or by putting in fear, from the person or the immediate actual possession of another anything of value." The above figures have been compiled in accordance with that general interpretation of the crime of robbery.

These figures do not include pickpocket and purse-snatching cases, which constitute robbery under the District code, but do not under the standard of scoring crimes in the uniform crime reports.

647 Theft Arrests Made.

During the fiscal year of 1934 the police made 647 arrests on the charge of robbery, as against 586 in 1933 and 409 in 1932. In the past 15 years the annual rate of robbery has increased almost 200 per cent, since there were only 224 arrests in that classification in 1920, as against 647 for the past fiscal year.

Few crimes outrank that of robbery in the menace of life of law-abiding citizens, because few robbers go unarmed or unprepared to inflict bodily harm if they are cornered in the act of committing their crime or if they ecounter resistance on the part of their victims.

That the outhorities recognize the presence of danger to life in the commission of a robbery is indicated by the fact that a bill has been passed by Congress making the possession of a deadly weapon during the commission of a robbery ground for an additional charge against the criminal carrying a penalty of 5 years' imprisonment for the first such offense, 10 years for the second and 15 years for a third such conviction.

153 Sentenced to Jail.

Typical of the disposition of robbery cases by the courts may be cited the figures for 1932. Of the 409 arrests made on the charge that year, 73 were dismissed in Police Court or not presented to the grand jury; 125 suspects were not indicted by the grand jury; 24 cases were nolle prossed; 18 prisoners were placed on probation; 22 were acquitted, and 153 were sentenced to jail.

An outstanding case in which a citizen aided the police in the prevention of a robbery and the arrest of those involved took place in April of this year when a motorist upon observing what appeared to him as an attempted robbery of a filling station on Pennsylvania avenue southeast, immediately located three police officers and informed them of what was going on. The officers hastened to the scene of the reported crime and arrived in time to capture the "lookout," who was stationed in a car at the curb.

Policeman Kills Robber.

Two of the officers went to the office of the filling station in which two robbers were at work on the safe. Breaking a window glass with his pistol, one of the officers ordered the robbers to throw up their hands and surrender. One of the criminals jumped through a trapdoor into the basement and was captured as he tried to leave the building, the other robber replied to the command by leveling a gun at the officer, upon which the policeman shot and killed him.

For his courageous conduct in this case Officer Watson Salkeld, jr., was decorated with the bronze bar of the Police Department.

Gold Trimming Used In Renovating Treasury

Although the country has been off the gold standard for some months, the Treasury Department still has a hankering after the glitter that characterizes the outlaw metal.

Painters are now engaged in redecorating portions of the interior of the Treasury, and they are using gold trimming again.

The old trimming had become so dull and dirty that many Treasury employes had forgotten its original color.

Escaped Convicts Push On in Donated Boat

Aruba, D. W. I. Nov. 9 (AP).—Ten escaped Devils Island convicts sailed a donated boat along the northern coast of South America tonight in their long flight to freedom.

Members of the American and English colonies contributed toward the purchase of the 25-foot craft in which the men set out at dawn from this port. The boat was equipped with an auxiliary gasoline motor, enough gasoline for a 400-mile run, a month's provisions, tobacco and money. The convicts, headed by Jean Duvernay, fled the penal colony more than two months ago in a canoe bought by their leader. They pushed on to Trinidad, where they rested for 30 days before setting out again today.

Fay Denied Permission To Question RudyVallee

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Fay Webb Vallee today lost her appellate division attempt to question her estranged husband, Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader, before trial of her suit to set aside an agreement under which she receives $100 a week from him.

Vallee said his wife might question him November 19, when trial is scheduled to start. The appellate division was unanimous in denying Mrs. Vallee's application for the pretrial examination.

Snyder-Gray Jury Head Secretly Wed in Nevada

Carson City, Nev., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Iva Reinhart, of Brooklyn, divorced wife of William Young, foreman of the Snyder-Gray murder jury, and Thomas F. Ryan, Reno attorney, formerly of Chicago, were secretly married today by Judge Clark Guild.

Miss Reinhart divorced Young in 1931. Shortly afterward she married Henry Lincoln, Standard Oil millionaire, of Los Angeles and Boston, when at a bridge party he offered any woman present $100,000 to live with him for two years. She later divorced Lincoln, winning a large settlement.

Murderer of Daughter Cheats Chair With Knife

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 9 (AP).—Clifford Smith, 48, of Athol, awaiting trial for the murder of his crippled daughter, Phyllis, 22, died at City Hospital today from a self-inflicted throat wound.

After slaying his daughter with an ax September 27, he cut his own throat with a razor blade and had lingered between life and death for almost two months. His daughter was crippled from birth and Smith said he killed her because he could not bear to see her suffer more. He was also despondent over the death of his wife three months previous.

New Mood Greets Peace Day

All Peoples Are Animated by Deep-Flowing Desire for Tranquillity; Bible Puts Finger on Need of the Hour.

By William T. Ellis.

Back from the trenches, I was in Boston when Armistice Day dawned. I had spoken in Springfield the evening before at a great meeting wherein I found the families of boys I had help bury in France, and whose heroism I had told in detail. Spent by the strain of the ordeal, I was sleeping late when awakened by the sudden outburst of whistles and horns and other indescribable commotion. Half awake, there flashed into my mind, unforgettably, the words, "Thanks be to God, Who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." All day, as I moved amidst the frantic throngs of joyous celebrants, that text was in the background of my thinking. I then believed, and still believe, that it was the principles of the Master for which the Allies were confident they were fighting, that gave victory to our arms.

Not for an instant did I then dream that it would take so long for the lesson of the war to be learned. Sixteen troubled years have passed, and we are still conning, in a stern school, the consequences of the World War. Directly or indirectly, the economic depression is an outcome of that titanic struggle.

And it seems strange that only now should we be getting round to unmasking the munition-makers and war-mongers, the propaganda liars, the business-controlled statesmen and the other baser forces that were controlling forces in the conflict. Perhaps so great a lesson needs a long time for its learning. The price of peace is worth all that it has cost us. And peace the masses of mankind are determined to have. Before the eyes of all discerning statesmen stalks the grim alternative of peace or revolution.

Is War Imminent?

Does that sound brash? Am I not aware of the saber-rattling to be heard in Europe and Asia? Have I not read the countless prophecies of wiseacres that another world war is inevitable and imminent? Have I forgotten Mussolini and Hitler and France and the Japanese war lords? Do I not know that the nations are more fully armed than in 1914?

All this I know. If I were a wave-watcher I would expect civilization shortly to be engulfed. But my business is to study the tides, not the waves; and I see, all around the horizon, a rising tide of the will to peace, of a purpose to be done with that futile anachronism, war; and an earnest quest for some new order of life that will forever remove the nightmare of armed conflict. At long last the mind of the masses has turned bitterly against the war spirit.

Real statesmen perceive this. Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the dictator of Turkey, told me, with intense feeling, that no true statesman would dare today to lead his people into war. Last of the survivors of the great war leaders, Lloyd George has lifted up his voice in confessional conviction that civilization must be saved from another war—and that the preachers of the Gospel must bear a primary part in saving it.

The New Will to Peace.

Belatedly, others are seeing, with Lloyd George, that the real preventive of war is a more vital presentation of Christianity. I am not a pacifist; for I can not find that the Bible teaches pacifism. I regret the extremes of antinationalism into which many preachers and students have been led. But, out of whatever knowledge and conviction I have been able to acquire, I believe that another world war is preventable and needless; and that the supreme measures to be taken lie within the proper scope of religion.

On every hand I find a purpose of peace which roots far deeper than the efforts of professional peace-promoters and pacifists. The mind of the masses has been profoundly affected by the accumulated evidence that war is usually made by interested persons, who themselves incur no perils and are assured of personal profits. Also the big crowd of folks have slowly come to an understanding of many of the far-reaching consequences of war.

"A Moral Equivalent to War."

Dr. William James, the philosopher, long ago declared that what the world needs is "a moral equivalent of war"—something that will give scope for the heroic, sacrificial, adventurous loyalties of the race. Exactly that is provided by the Bible's program for a new life of liberty, freedom, self-control and service.

Fresh, fearless and open minds are needed to face the truth that what the world has newly been seeking has all the while been waiting in the Scriptures. It would be more flattering to our modernity if some "brain trust" had discovered a novel way out for the world. But the best that our vaunted new philosophies can do is but to lead us up to the steps of the altar whereon is inscribed, in the words of the Scripture, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." A new law of life definitely meant to be practiced by mankind is laid down in our lesson. We shall get away from the jungle code which has so long ruled mankind only by an acceptance of the Christ code.

This is more than a program that the Bible offers, more than a set of desirable rules. It is a new way of life, a transformation of nature, by the substitution of the Divine Spirit for the old self-spirit. That means empowerment as well as guidance.

Selfish, greedy, hate-filled individuals are those who, in the aggregate, make the mass-mind of war possible. To exterminate war, we must have a new order of human beings. Even the prevalent antiwar mood will not continue to suffice, unless there be a fundamental change in human nature—the change which is the province and program and power of the Gospel of Christ to effect.

4 Baltimoreans Mentioned for Speaker's Race

Sasscer, of Prince Georges, Held Likely Choice to Head Senate.

Baltimore, Nov. 9 (AP).—Four prospective candidates for speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates appeared today among the 35 Democratic House members elected from Baltimore.

They are: Frank Joseph Hirt, Second Legislative District; Hugh Allen Meade, Third; Emanuel Gorfine, Fourth, and Joseph B. Griesacker, Fifth.

War Mothers Honor Heroes At Memorial

Woodring Chief Speaker at Tree Planting at Masonic Shrine.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring was the principal speaker at dedication ceremonies yesterday afternoon at the George Washington National Masonic Memorial Temple, when the Virginia branch of the American War Mothers presented two trees to that association. The first, a Lebanon cedar, was in memory of George Washington, the second, a white birch, was in honor of the Virginia War Mothers.

Commonder Everett A. Hellmuth, of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, was the master of ceremonies, and the salute to the flag was led by Mrs. John Leadbeater, of Alexandria. Invocation was by an army chaplain.

Mrs. T. T. Taylor, State memorial tree chairman, presented both trees, and the Washington tree was dedicated by Mrs. Alice Thrift, State president, and Mrs. Westcott, and the War Mothers tree was dedicated by Mrs. C. N. McGroarty, a Gold Star Mother, and Mrs. J. W. Garner.

Keiper Makes Address.

The trees were accepted for the George Washington National Memorial Masonic Association by J. Claude Keiper, secretary-treasurer of that body.

Mrs. Harry White, of Alexandria, sang "Trees," accompanied by the Third Cavalry Band from Fort Myer.

Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, and the American Legion Auxiliary entertained the officers and delegates of the War Mothers at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Legion room at Gadsby's Tavern. Commander Hellmuth presided, and the address of welcome was given by Mayor E. C. Davison, of Alexandria.

Mrs. W. E. Ochiltree, national president of the War Mothers, was the guest of honor, and presented the national officers who were in attendance.

Mrs. Alice V. Thrift, of Norfolk, the State president, presented all State officers.

Greetings Exchanged.

Mrs. E. B. Ale, president of the Alexandria American Legion Auxiliary, gave greetings from that organization, and Mrs. John H. Trimyer, president of the Alexandria Chapter of the War Mothers, extended the greetings of her group.

Mrs. Stead, of Washington, who served as a nurse at the front in France, was present, and was accompanied by seven of her assistants who also served overseas. Mrs. Wallace Chiswell, of the Motor Corps, who also served in France during the war, was a guest at the luncheon.

A vocal selection was given by Mrs. Margaret F. Bailey, a past president of the local auxiliary, and at the close of the luncheon program Mrs. Ale, on behalf of the legion auxiliary, presented to Mrs. Trimyer, the local War Mothers' president, a handsome silk American flag, to be used in their ceremonials.

In preparation for the opening tomorrow for the annual American Red Cross drive in Alexandria, Louis E. DeMoll, roll call chairman, has appointed George Fletcher as vice chairman, and also a special committee to work in conjunction with the roll call composed of Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, chairman; Mrs. Leroy Peabody, Mrs. L. E. Tull, Mrs. Frank O. Purvis, Mrs. Richard B. English, Miss Mary Monroe, Mrs. Albert Smoot, Mrs. Richard R. Baker, Mrs. P. I. Jackson, Mrs. Robert Bowman, Hannon Norris, Armistead L. Boothe, James M. Duncan, jr., Capt. John S. Arnold, J. U. Reardon, Robert M. Reese, Edgar S. Bayol, Marshall Baggett, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, Mrs. Thomas B. Rowland, Mrs. Elliott F. Hoffman, Lawrence E. Rowland, Mrs. Mabel Roop and Mrs. F. Clinton Knight.

Armistice Day services held yesterday at the Alexandria High School, consisting of flag raising and an address by Col. Clarence Deems, jr., were attended by 675 students, who stood at attention during Col. Deems' address. The speaker was introduced by Henry T. Moncure, principal, and music was furnished by the drum and bugle corps of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, under the direction of G. Raymond King, past commander of the post.

The exercises were under the auspices of the legion post, and a delegation of uniformed members attended.

Plans for a reunion of the Scottish Rite bodies in Alexandria were discussed last night at a meeting of Washington Memorial Lodge of Perfection, with Venerable Master C. H. Leachman presiding. It is proposed to confer the degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second at this reunion, and to invite all Scottish Rite Masons in the valley of Alexandria to attend.

Several speakers of National prominence will attend, and it is probable that the supreme commander of Scottish Rite Masons, John A. Cowles, will be present.

The fourth degree was conferred at last night's meeting.

Officials of the Alexandria United Charities have been notified by the officers in charge of the Community Chest drive in Washington that all contributions to the Washington chest by Alexandrians, marked "For Alexandria," will be turned over to the United Charities.

Henry Taylor, who escaped from the chain gang two years ago while serving a sentence of 150 days, after conviction by the Alexandria court for a violation of the prohibition law, was arrested Thursday on a charge of reckless driving, and fined $23 in Police Court yesterday. Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims recognized Taylor, although his appearance was considerably changed, and, in addition to serving a jail term in default of the $23 fine, Taylor will also serve the 150 days on the chain gang, less two days served before he took French leave.

A verdict of accidental death was rendered yesterday by Dr. Llewellyn Powell, city coroner of Alexandria, in the fatal injury of Mary Hamilton, colored, of 84 D street southwest, who died in Freedman's Hospital, Washington, from injuries received Sunday in an automobile accident. Frank Stultz, colored, driver of the car, was absolved by the coroner.

There have been 198 hunting licenses issued so far this month by Elliott F. Hoffman, clerk of the Alexandria Corporation Court, and in October 272 were issued. The season for ducks opened November 8 and that for birds and rabbits will open November 15.

The number of licenses is about up to the average, it is stated, but a rush is expected during the coming week.

Funeral services for Miss Esther Trogler Heishley, who died Thursday at her home, 124 South Fairfax street, Alexandria, will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector. Interment will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.

U. S. Marine Corps Today Will Celebrate The 159th Anniversary of Its Organization

Group of Marines photographed in 1886.

Marines back in the day of wigs and flintlocks.

"Leathernecks" Glory in Martial History of Famous Unit.

"From the Halls of Montezuma,
To the shores of Tripoli.
We fight our country's battles
On the land as on the sea."

No one knows who wrote this verse, but it has been sung by Marines in a thousand posts in as many places, and it will be sung again today at the Marine Barracks here, and wherever there are Marines, for this is their 159th anniversary.

This famous corps, best known to newspaper readers for service in France and later the occupation of Haiti and Nicaragua, was founded as the result of an act of the Continental Congress, passed November 10, 1775. Two battalions of Marines were authorized by these early legislators who met in Philadelphia.

Ancient Marines.

But even before this there were Marines. Since ancient times the nations of the world have had their corps of these fighters. The rude ships of the Pharaohs which plied up and down the African coast, the barks of the merchant princes of Tyre and Sidon and Carthage, the triremes of Greece, the war galleys of imperial Rome, the Scandinavians and the German corsairs—they all carried a complement of men whose duty in battle was to mount into the rigging and shoot at the crew of the enemy vessel.

Today every major navy of the world has a corps of Marines. The French call them "Devil Dogs" because of their disregard of danger. Often they are called "Soldiers of the Sea," and we call them "Leathernecks," because of the stiff leather collars they formerly wore.

The American Marines have fought in every battle of importance since the birth of our Nation, but their greatest job has been that of pacifying backward countries.

2,000 Men in 1898.

In the Spanish-American War in 1898 the corps consisted of 2,000 enlisted men. It was steadily increased until 1917, when 13,124 men were ready to fight for Uncle Sam when this country entered the World War. But when the battles of Belleau Wood, Soissons, Champagne, Mont Blanc, Meuse Argonne and of the Rhine were brought to an end there were 31,824 Marines serving with the A. E. F.

In its organization, duties and training the Marine force was modeled after the British corps of the eighteenth century. Today it remains virtually as organized—a military and administrative organization, complete in itself, forming an integral part of the naval service. It is commanded by a major general commandant, who at present is John Henry Russell, and it functions under direction of the Secretary of the Navy. Under this country's naval policy, its work is "to support the fleet, or any part thereof, in the accomplishment of its mission."

This embraces a great deal of territory, as can be seen from a glance at what the Marines have done and what they are doing. They guard navy yards and bases here and abroad; they guard American legations in foreign countries; they land special forces for the protection of American lives when conditions in some foreign country become upset; they restore order and maintain peace in disturbed countries such as Haiti and Nicaragua, and they serve as an expeditionary force with the fleet in time of war.

"Semper Fidelis."

In 1928 the strength of the Marine Corps had fallen from its war-time high of 31,824 to 18,000 enlisted men. Today there are 16,000. And since the first recruiting office was opened up in the Tun Tavern, on South Water street in Philadelphia, more than 150 years ago, there always has been a group of eager young Americans ready to join under the emblem which is enscribed with the words "Semper Fidelis."

These American shock troops have a spirit all their own. You can feel it when you hear their world-famous band play and again when you hear them shout at the end of their song:

"If the Army and the Navy
Ever look on Heaven's scenes,
They will find the streets are guarded by United States Marines."

2d Newspaper Route Man Shot

Wounded by 4 Assailants as They Flee Police Near Upper Marlboro.

The second shooting of a newspaper route man in nearby Maryland within a month occurred yesterday near Upper Marlboro.

The victim, Vernon Calhouer, 35, of Baltimore, was shot in the leg after being held up by four colored men who, police said, had fled a store robbery in Baltimore.

Prince Georges County police said the men were approaching Upper Marlboro when they struck and killed a mule belonging to Mrs. Edward Danenhower, mother of a Maryland State policeman.

Calhouer, making his early morning deliveries, stopped to investigate and was commanded to leave his delivery vehicle. After obeying, the men shot him in the leg, left him on the road, and escaped in his auto.

He was taken to Providence Hospital. His condition was pronounced not serious.

Allen B. Wilson, Washington newspaper route man, was shot and killed recently.

Army and Navy Dinner Planned at Winchester

Winchester, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, U. S. A., retired, will be the Armistice Day speaker at an Army and Navy dinner for ex-service men here Monday, Harry W. Butler, commander of Robert Y. Conrad Post, No. 21, American Legion, said tonight.

Butler and Adjutant Wendell B. Goode have issued invitations to ex-service men to march in a parade following a memorial service Monday morning. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Robert B. Nelson at the Episcopal Church.

Attorney Cites Cuts in Salary

Arlington Official Tells Hearing of Board's 'Discrimination.'

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Lawrence Douglas, Commonwealth's attorney of Arlington County, appeared before the State compensation board today and in a hearing to determine the salary and office expenses to be allowed him for next year said that owing to his recent prosecution to oust the chairman of the board of that county, the board had adopted a resolution to cut off all pay such as he had been receiving for extra legal services.

He said that he doubted the legality of such a resolution, but referred to it to show that conditions had changed since the board held its hearings in July to determine the amount of pay and expenses which should be allowed for the last half year of 1934.

Today was the second day in the hearings which the board is holding on the matter of the 1935 salaries and expenses of Commonwealth's attorneys. About a dozen of these officers were present and it is expected that the hearings as to the attorneys will be completed today. For similar purposes the board on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week will hear the commissioners of the revenue of the State. Treasurers will be heard on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of the week following.

Kelley Seeking Writ to Block Ouster Order

Applies to Appeals Body in Fight to Stay on Arlington Board.

Richmond, Nov. 9 (AP).—Application for a writ of mandamus to force suspension of the order of Judge Frederick W. Coleman removing Lyman M. Kelley from membership on the Arlington County Board of Supervisors has been filed with the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Kelley's removal was ordered after he had been found guilty by an impeachment trial of soliciting and accepting a bribe.

In the application presented by his counsel, Leon M. Bazile, of Richmond, Kelley said the removal order should be suspended because important matters are pending before the Arlington County board and that Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Arlington Circuit Court, might appoint some other man to the board to the detriment of the county's business.

Judge McCarthy disqualified himself when the Kelley case arose and designated Judge Coleman to sit in his place.

Replying to the suspension plea today, Judge Coleman said there was no good reason for it and that Judge McCarthy already had appointed William A. E. McShea to succeed Kelley on the board.

War Mothers' State Officers Are Reelected

Session Told About Care of Overseas Service Women.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

The American War Mothers of Virginia, in annual convention this week at Falls Church, reelected all State officers.

They are: Mrs. Alice V. Thrift, president; Mrs. D. E. Satterfield, first vice president; Mrs. N. L. Williamson, second vice president; Mrs. Mary G. Derrickson, third vice president; Mrs. Lydia L. Spofford, treasurer; Mrs. W. L. Turner, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Booth, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lillie Garner, historian and Mrs. O. J. Wamble, chaplain.

The convention is being held in the Masonic Temple in East Falls Church. The organization was welcomed in an address by Mayor L. P. Daniel.

Miss Faustine Dennis, national president of the Women's Overseas Service League, reported that of the 22,000 women who went overseas, 10,000 are being cared for by the Government, 2,000 by various organizations and the remaining 10,000 have had no provision made for assistance.

She declared that the league and the American Legion Auxiliary posts are making every effort to aid these women.

Mrs. Flora was 29. She is survived by her husband, Grant M. Flora, and four children; a sister, Mrs. Alton T. Embrey, and three brothers, Jack, Wallace and Gordon Grady. Rites were held from Salem Baptist Church in Spotsylvania County, with burial in the church cemetery.

Three Seeking Mayor's Office In Mt. Rainier

Successor to J. H. Beall to Be Determined in May Election.

Mount Rainier, the only Prince Georges County town to have its municipal government disrupted by county elections, yesterday turned its attention to the selection of a mayor.

Four men, three of whom are members of the town council, have announced themselves as candidates. They are Floyd B. Mathias, Norman A. Pruitt, and John T. Deaver, of the town council, and William A. Jones.

The man whose shoes each desires to fill is Mayor John H. Beall, who piloted the town through the troublous days when the local government was subjected to repeated attacks against its traffic light system.

Mayor Beall, a Democrat, has been elected to a judgeship of the orphans' court. Replacing him would ordinarily fall the task of the town council.

However, since three of the council are running for the office, it is expected that the position will be left vacant until next May's election. Mr. Pruitt, president of the council, in this case will be temporarily in power after Mayor Beall relinquishes office the first of the year.

Meanwhile, many county Republicans joined the celebrating Democrats in a "victory ball" last night at the Beaver Dam Country Club at Landover, Md. They declared they had an equal right to celebrate since their State candidate, Harry Nice, had been elected Governor.

The Young Republicans Club of Hyattsville also went forward with plans to hold the first celebration for Mr. Nice. They expect to give a dinner in his honor in the near future.

The final total and official tally of the county vote was also completed yesterday by Samuel A. Wyvill, clerk of election supervisors, at Upper Marlboro.

Roanoke Work Relief Projects to Be Halted

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Work relief projects will be halted here on November 22 to bring expenditures within a budget curtailed by a smaller allocation by the Virginia Emergency Relief Administration.

The Social Service Bureau requested $43,000 for operation in November and received a check for $25,000. The October allotment was $29,500. The cost of administration of relief funds here in October was reduced to about 11 per cent.

Out Of The Running.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker seems to be determined to keep on breaking his own transcontinental flight record until a fast commercial air line between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts has been established. His latest dash from Los Angeles to Newark required only 12 hours and 4 minutes. A transport service spanning the continent in 10 hours, he thinks, is not unfeasible. In five years, he predicts, heavily loaded planes may be making the trip, with one stop, in six hours.

Washington, like other cities, can not fail to be interested in the remarkable strides that commercial aviation is making. But at present this city can entertain only faint hopes of being included in the fast air transport network which is certainly in the process of development. The local airport is hazardous even for the operation of small planes. With the use of heavy modern equipment the danger of a tragedy would be greatly accentuated.

It is reported that the Douglas air liner in which Capt. Rickenbacker made his latest record flight may be used on the New York-Washington-Miami route. Before definite arrangements are made, however, the plane will be brought to Washington to test the adequacy of the local airport. Large planes of this sort must attain a speed of 100 miles per hour, or more, to lift a heavy load into the air. Consequently, they require relatively long runways. At Washington Airport the runways are bisected by an open highway.

So long as the Nation's Capital is confined to the use of an airport hardly suitable for a country village, expansion of its air service will be sharply curtailed. Indeed, there is danger, with the construction of larger and faster craft, that the Capital may lose some of the service it now has. It is a humiliating situation—too humiliating as well as too dangerous to be tolerated beyond the coming session of Congress.

Mr. Prettyman's Idea.

It is a sound idea to amend the laws that apparently do not class the numbers game as gambling in the District of Columbia. Corporation Counsel Prettyman has drawn a bill for submission to Congress, providing penalties for the numbers racketeers, and the average citizen will heartily approve.

More than the proposed law itself, however, the disfranchised Washingtonian will like Mr. Prettyman's action in submitting his bill to various business and civic organizations, for study and comment. Though the dwellers in this District may not vote, that is no indictment of their capacity for thought. The Corporation Counsel may not only get valuable aid in putting his bill in final form for passage, but considerable personal prestige as well.

It is a pleasant thing, even for a dweller in Washington, to be consulted about the laws under which the people of the Federal District must live and work and play.

Close To A Show-Down.

Japan's naval policy seems further crystallized by Admiral Yamamoto's hostility to Premier MacDonald's effort in behalf of a compromise between the American and Japanese viewpoints.

It has been widely assumed that Japan's chief objective is to secure naval equality in principle. The conversations at London have proceeded on that basis. Certainly the British delegates were under that impression when they formulated their alternative plan. But now authorities in Tokyo are quoted as saying that Japan "can not accept any naval formula which, theoretically allotting parity, actually asks Japan to accept inferiority."

The strength of Japan's case lies in her demand for the principle of parity. It is contended that the 5-5-3 ratio impairs that country's prestige. Capt. Sekine, in a recent article, went so far as to call the naval treaties "humiliating shackles." Admiral Yamamoto, as chief Japanese delegate at the London discussions, has argued for naval equality as a matter of national honor. The case for removal of any stigma of inferiority from Japan has been well presented, has aroused much sympathy and has encouraged hope that "equality in principle" could be made consistent with the American viewpoint.

The British, it appears, are making a conscientious effort to reconcile the Japanese and American positions. Indeed Mr. MacDonald's suggestion is perhaps too fatal to the existing ratios to merit American approval. Its chief provision is that the Japanese should have "equality in principle," with the understanding that they would in practice adhere to a restrained building program. Impractical though it may be, this proposed compromise certainly tends to dissipate the theory that any common Anglo-American front is as yet established.

If so liberal a suggestion should prove definitely unacceptable in Tokyo there will remain an extremely tenuous margin on which negotiations can continue. And if this British trial balloon falls to earth there will fall with it the similar Foreign Policy Association proposal for "an agreement admitting the principle of defensive equality for Japan, but providing for the approximate maintenance of present tonnage."

Behind The Scenes In France.

The resignation of the Doumergue ministry and the formation of a new cabinet pledged to continue the party truce that prevailed under its predecessor, has happily been accomplished in an atmosphere of comparative calm. At least there has been no recurrence of the bloody street encounters of last February, which led to the formation of the cabinet of National Union.

Nevertheless, the profound nervousness which has prevailed since M. Doumergue failed to secure support for his proposed constitutional reforms reveals the strength of the popular disaffection toward parlimentary institutions. Although his plan to concentrate more power in the hands of the premier might not have been the best solution for French political troubles, it seems quite certain that his successor, Premier Flandin, will not make much headway under the existing system of divided authority.

The French multiparty system, which prevents any single party from commanding a working majority, makes it necessary to govern through shifting and ceaselessly compromising blocs. The result is endless strife, unsatisfactory log-rolling and constant changes in the cabinet make-up. During the 63 years of the present republic, for instance, France has had 95 cabinets, with an average life of only eight months.

Although these lightning-like changes are exasperating to the average citizen, he has little incentive to rebel openly so long as political instability does not seriously affect the ordinary affairs of life and interfere with his ability to make a living. Since the war, however, France, like other countries, has been confronted by grave social, economic, and financial problems whose solution calls for a firm guiding hand and especially for a coherent, consistent and decisive program of political action.

It required a Poincare armed with dictatorial powers to save France from complete economic collapse after the war, simply because the French parliamentary system failed the country and permitted inflation to proceed until heroic remedies were essential. Today France is again suffering from economic troubles, although of a somewhat different sort. Her budgetary problems are less pressing, but very painful readjustments are required to preserve the gold standard and to remove obstacles to an expansion of foreign trade.

It is the combination of impotence and erratic meddling that disgusts and terrifies the French voters. For that reason the antiparliamentary movement is an extremely serious manifestation, which it would be perilous to ignore. The people will not be satisfied with the makeshift compromises of political opportunists. They ask, as thinking people are everywhere asking, for fundamental changes that will enable democratic government to function effectively by careful adaptation of the political system to the needs of a modern economic society.

Fulfillment.

There was quite widespread excitement when Walter Lippmann came up from Park Row, where the battling World had expired but a short time before, to take a seat in the dignified editorial department of the Herald Tribune. Those who had been reading the Tribune since a childhood passed under the trenchant animadversions of Horace Greeley, bristled to think that one of Mr. Pulitzer's bright young lads was entering their preserve. Those who had followed the World's stormy career wondered what would happen to one of its arbiters who had youthfully leaned to the suspect columns of the New Republic.

Their questions were answered this week. Walter Lippmann on Thursday was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, thus taking on almost the ultimate accolade of dignity and decorum. Certainly he stepped into the company of the conservative elect, taking his place beside our own Dr. Phelps, the scholarly Dr. Cross of Connecticut, Mr. Gibson of Gibson girl fame, Elihu Root, and Nicholas Murray Butler, whose liberalism has sometimes been more appreciated by his banquet audiences than by his students.

We cock an ear towards the murmurs that will come from the throats of those who thought they were doing something daring by reading Mr. Lippmann a year or so back. But close examination of his columnar critiques may none the less reveal that he is in excellent company. For it seems a long time since Mr. Lippmann was young, not in years, but in theory. And now he is a member of the Academy.

Prestige is his, and the happiness that comes from knowing that once a year he can attend a dinner and learn, in advance of the public, what Dr. Phelps regards as the five best novels of the year.

Teapot Tempest.

The free-for-all fight which concluded a football game between McKinley and Western High Schools last Friday was certainly less serious than the cycle of blunders that has arisen as a consequence.

Youngsters, and even their elders, are sometimes unable to restrain their emotions when their team goes down to defeat. Such reactions are puerile, but they are not necessarily vicious. This does not mean, of course, that the schools can afford to condone such absence of sportsmanship. But it does appear that cancellation of all the remaining games in the high school football series was unnecessarily drastic punishment.

No doubt the difficulties could have been ironed out, even after this action had been taken, if student leaders had gone about it in the right way. Their silly threat to strike, however, has gone far to close the door to compromise. And the District Commissioners' expressions of sympathy for the cause of the students have further complicated the issue. Tactical mistakes of this sort can be easily forgiven when they are made by impetuous youngsters. Not so, when high officials take part in a school row outside of their jurisdiction.

Regardless of whether the cancellation of the football series was justified by unsportsmanlike conduct, the students must realize that attempts to coerce the Board of Education will redound to their own injury. No official body of this kind can be expected to yield to threats from the beneficiaries of our free educational system.

Why Banks Don't Lend.

Bankers have been berated by New Deal spokesmen for alleged inactivity in lending, lack of confidence and lack of enterprise. In that respect the New Dealers are at one with the Old Dealers. President Hoover used to scold the bankers in much the same way and for similar reasons, and the bankers used to make the same answers in refutation.

Heretofore, the bankers have been inclined to rely upon categorical assertions of their willingness to lend, unsupported by adequate proof. Now they have produced some first-rate evidence to show that while they are really disposed to lend, industry is slow to borrow.

On the basis of an inquiry addressed to banks holding about 35 per cent of all commercial deposits, the Association of Reserve City Bankers states that these institutions have established "credit lines" for customers totaling over $6,000,000,000. In other words, the banks have agreed to lend that amount, if and when desired. Actually, less than $2,000,000,000 of loans against these "credit lines" is outstanding. This leads to the conclusion that, for the country as a whole, from $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 of banking credits await utilization.

It is important to realize where all this discussion points. Recovery from previous depressions has started from such accumulations of redundant bank funds and surplus reserves as are now present. But in former years two other vitally important developments were able to play their contributing parts. One was renewed activity in mortgage lending by institutions accustomed to lend in that field. The other was the active issuing of investment bonds, following a rise in the price of outstanding issues.

The best grades of investment bonds are now selling at dizzy prices, with the lowest yields in the history of the domestic bond market. Nevertheless, this familiar preliminary to an expansion of investment activities has not, as in the past, led to offerings of new securities or refunding of callable issues. That is the inescapable, outstanding fact.

However debatable the question as to the willingness of industry to borrow new capital for investment purposes under present conditions, there can be no doubt about its willingness to refund outstanding issues at the low rates now prevailing. Until the Securities Act is made workable, however, and until the mortgage market is restored to activity, all efforts to expand bank credit will be futile. Increases in bank credit will accompany and follow, but will not precede the revival of mortgage lending and the expansion of securities issues. That cart can not be put before the horse.

Hats Off.

America, Germany and Great Britain have this week set three new records simultaneously on air, water and land, respectively. Ticker tape is in order for Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace, who broke his own record by an hour when he piloted a monoplane from Burbank to Newark in 12 hours, 3 minutes and 50 seconds, a distance of 2,626 miles.

On her 100th voyage across the Atlantic, the North German Lloyd liner Bremen spanned the ocean at a sustained speed of 28 knots in 4 days, 14 hours and 27 minutes. In so doing, she not only broke her own best crossing time, but also set a record run for the North Atlantic trade.

Great Britain was heartened yesterday when Queen Mary forsook a self-established tradition and abandoned her ungarnished toque for a more fashionable type of headgear. Queen Mary has for many years held the record for wearing the most unbecoming hat in the empire on which the sun never sets. It is said that Viscount Lascelles, her son-in-law, attempted repeatedly to lure her into newer, more up-to-date millinery channels, but apparently clinging to the adage that "the Queen can do no wrong," she refused to venture afield.

America, still in her experimental infancy, and Germany with her much-heralded "rebirth" are doing no more than is expected of any child prodigy. But Great Britain, whose growing pains have long since settled into a comfortable maturity, is to be congratulated on having a Queen who recalls the moral pointed by one of her regal predecessors. Like King Canute, Queen Mary evidently realizes that not even royalty can control such curious rhythmic forces as the tides, and styles in women's hats.

An advertiser says that good furniture constitutes practically a permanent investment. Yes, there's no telling how long it would last if the women didn't wear it out relocating it.

Now and then up bobs the question, "What is love?" We thought that had been settled a long time ago by the mathematical formula, "Love is nothing divided by two."

But the dollar isn't nearly so well adapted to talking as it is to flying. That's why they put an eagle on it instead of a parrot.

Home is the place where you can say what you please and nobody will pay any attention to you.

A shrewd candidate is one who promises the poor something the rich would have to pay for.

No Inflation Involved.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In your issue of November 1 a comment was made upon my conference with the President and his monetary advisers which seemed to indicate that I was advocating an unsound plan to end the depression.

In brief, the plan was submitted some six months ago for study. It is proposed that the Government buy the stock of the Federal Reserve Banks, and make the 12 Reserve Banks one central bank with 12 branches, retaining the same powers, but putting the Reserve System under the Federal Reserve Board and not having the Reserve Banks compete with privately owned banks in lending money or receiving deposits.

The legislation proposed involved a legislative mandate requiring the banks to buy Government bonds and thus create demand deposits and member bank reserves until the supply of bank credit money was restored to normal or until employment and national production and property values were restored to normal.

The plan proposed involved no inflation whatever. Every dollar of bank credit created would represent dollars already existing in the bonds bought. The plan proposed to prevent inflation of credit by selling the bonds bought to the extent needed to stabilize the purchasing power of the dollar and keep its index at 100.

The plan contemplated also authorizing the Reserve Board to control the discount rate, the ratio of reserves to deposits, to forbid usury, and other safeguards needed to insure the stability of credit and currency and the value of property.

It proposed a managed currency and managed credit system and to carry out the constitutional duty of Congress "to coin money and regulate the value thereof."

The Sound Money League has been organized in the District of Columbia to advocate this reform. Our present national distress in which the national property has suffered a loss of $200,000,000,000 is due to a contraction of our money supply in the form of bank credit of about 40 per cent. Every informed student of monetary science knows that our money can be made stable with a permanent debt paying purchasing power.

Common—But Famous.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In connection with the celebration of the 300th anniversary of historic Boston Common (December, 1934, and in 1935), the statement has been made that this famous "public ground for the people" is the oldest piece of publicly owned land property in America.

It was purchased by the Puritan colonists in 1634 from William Blackstone, the preceding solitary white settler, through the efforts of the first Massachusetts Bay Governor, John Winthrop, and its original character of service to the community has been maintained to this day. The purchase price was about $150; the city assessor's valuation is now over $45,000,000, assuming the possibility of such a material estimate of its worth.

The Boston Common Tercentenary Committee desires to know if the claim that this is the oldest public park or municipally owned land in America can be disputed; if anywhere there is a counterclaim. If no evidence turns up to the contrary, the committee will make use of this now seeming fact in its celebration announcements. Communications may be addressed by mail to the committee at 9 Park street, Boston, Mass.

JOHN STUART BARROWS,
Acting Chairman, Boston Common Tercentenary Committee.

"Out Of My Way!"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Is there any hope that civilization will assert itself on the matter of the ever-increasing abomination of the motor horn—the continuous performance of the nerve-racking, ear-splitting, hair-raising, blood-curdling idiocy of the degenerates and smart-alecks with cars?

It would be laughable if it were not so devastating to the health. Is it any wonder so many people are going crazy? I, myself, almost forget to come in when it rains. A little thing would stop it. Why not a soft electric bell and a good stiff fine?

It all means "get out of my way." To see a beautiful car—the last word in luxury—streaming down the street, emitting these weird noises, is about as incongruous as a dressed up, braying donkey.

MRS. LAURA LINDSAY KERLIN.

Remembered Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The issue of the New Deal was submitted to the American electorate last Tuesday and received its emphatic and impressive indorsement. All reactionary opposition and obstructive antagonism were swept away like chaff before the wind of popular disfavor. Henceforward the New Deal will be given a full, fair and unhindered trial to work out the fulfillment of its promise. All patriotic citizens will now proceed, in solid phalanx, to rally around the standard of Franklin D. Roosevelt and hold up his hand as he proceeds to carry this great adventure to its logical conclusion.

It is interesting and significant to note the practical unanimity with which the Negro voters contributed to the New Deal victory. The overwhelming majority in the free voting states of the North and West joined in to swell the tide. In the State of Pennsylvania there are nearly 200,000 qualifiable Negro voters. They were prevailed upon to qualify and vote by both standpatters and New Dealers as has never before occurred in the political history of the State.

The Negro vote was undoubtedly the decisive factor in the most strategic victory of the Nation-wide election. What took place in Pennsylvania was but a sample of what was going on in other States. The colored voters of the First Illinois District supplanted Oscar DePriest, the veteran standpatter, with Arthur W. Mitchel.

The black forgotten man has contributed the full measure of his strength to support the philosophy of the forgotten man. He naturally expects that President Roosevelt will take particular pains to see to it that he will share equitably in the New Deal which he fervently hopes will also be a square Deal.

KELLY MILLER.
Washington, Nov. 8.

The Municipal Center.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The recent suggestion of Commissioner Hazen that one-half of the four city blocks bought for the purpose of building a municipal center be sold to the Federal Government might be a commendable economic measure if the present financial condition of the Nation and Capital City District is never to be in a more healthy state. I have sufficient faith in my country to believe the future justifies the more pretentious municipal center plan.

From the new Supreme Court Building to the Lincoln Memorial Bridge all Government buildings are white. As we went back to the Greek philosophy of Plato and Aristotle for our philosophy of government, we paid compliments to their contemporaries in the art of building, but in our enthusiasm forgot their color scheme. Who among the modern architects has dared to put in mosaics on the outside of public buildings as the Greeks did?

In connection with our proposed municipal center, it would be cheaper to build with soft-colored red brick and stone trimmings. With the proper setting of generous space, green grass and trees, what would be more typical of Colonial Maryland and Virginia? Surely the District of Columbia is Colonial in history, and why should it not have its origin perpetuated and preserved?

These Colonial buildings set far back in their own parking, thus shielded from the more pretentious but dreary Federal buildings, would in no wise detract from the substantiality of Federal greatness—and harmony, if there be any.

I am for economy, but I also am for Colonial architecture in the city center of the Capital of the United States. GROVER AYRES.

Still "Forward Together."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

May I extend my personal thanks for the editorial, "Going Forward Together," which appeared in your issue of October 30? I am quite sure that the attitude here taken is not only sound, intelligent and well phrased, but timely as well. One finds here a clear note of progress, which can not but appeal to the more progressive men in the ministry and also to kindred spirits in the laity.

I trust that you will see the need, and I am sure you do, for the regular exposition of this quality and type of philosophy which at the present time is coming rapidly to the fore in religious thinking.

I might add that the young branch of ministers in the church (the branch to which I belong) stands solidly back of this intelligent approach, and I am quite sure that if none has written you it is because of pure negligence, and not because of any disagreement with your underlying, yet quite evident philosophy. Please give us more of these editorials; there is so much yet to be said.

Minister, Gorsuch Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Finest Sentence?

What opinion of literature has the man in the street? Which parts of it please him most? Material toward an answer has recently been provided by the readers of an English daily newspaper whose public is chiefly drawn from the working classes.

These readers have been selecting what they consider to be the finest and most appealing sentence in the English language, and their choice has ranged from Shakespeare and Burns and the Bible to a passage of Sir William Temple's comparing human existence, in the manner of Ecclesiastes, with a "froward child."

Only rarely does the choice appear to have been dictated by admiration for the pithy expression of a sentiment whose validity would gain the general suffrage. One such selection is Burns' "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn;" and another is Shakespeare's phrase about finding sermons in stones, and good in everything. Most people, however, fixed on such passages as "Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken," and Wordsworth's "Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns," and Shakespeare's "Gilding pale streams with heavenly alchemy."

These latter hold perhaps the distinguishing mark of the highest literature, whose chief appeal lies not in direct assertions, but in suggestions of a beauty not otherwise to be ensnared in words.

Breakfast for Two.

Post Office, Saturday.

L. Y. KNOTTE won't plead insanity when brought to trial for the murder of his wife, at Fourteenth and F streets yesterday.

Knotte's lawyer, Nathan R. Adams, is our authority for this statement. We saw Mr. Adams last night, just after he had had a three-hour conference with Knotte.

According to Mr. Adams, the tragedy occurred within 12 hours of Mrs. Knotte's arrival in Washington, where she rejoined her husband after a long separation. She had been living with her brother and his wife in Trenton, N. J.

Knotte came here last winter, securing a clerical position with the FERA. Mrs. Knotte took shelter in the New Jersey city until the Government job should prove secure. By the first of the present month, security seemed certain. It was then arranged that she should move to Washington immediately.

The Post-Impressionist's own investigations have uncovered nothing in Knotte's life which would lead to an expectation of violence.

Forty-five years old and only 18 months married, he is spoken of by his FERA comrades as a model worker. He had been occupying a hall-bedroom at a house in the 1200 block of New Hampshire avenue. He took his meals at a nearby restaurant, where, though described as set in his ways, he was respected by the waiters. They described him as exhibiting only two peculiarities: entering at exactly 8 o'clock each morning, he insisted on immediate service—once said the one thing he could not bear was to be kept waiting for breakfast—and he always gave a 15 per cent tip.

His landlady assures us that he was very quiet, but always the gentleman. He seemed delighted at the reunion with his wife.

Yet here is Knotte's own story as repeated to us by Adams:

"Although we had not known each other very long, my relations with my wife had always been unruffledly affectionate. I had believed her to be thoroughly reasonable.

"Nevertheless, she had never before gone out for breakfasts. During our brief time together between our marriage and my coming to Washington, she prepared those meals herself in our Trenton apartment. Later, living at her brother's, she ate her breakfasts there.

"I also prefer to eat breakfast at home. I particularly detest the interval between dressing and breakfasting, which is necessary to a man compelled to live as I live in Washington. However, I make the best of a bad business.

"We slept late yesterday, but when I suggested that I must hurry to the office, and that Lottie (Mrs. Knotte) might as well take her time and breakfast alone, she insisted on accompanying me. She said:

"'You know it doesn't take me more than five minutes to dress, and all I want to eat is a cup of coffee and a doughnut. I hear Washington doughnuts are famous.

"She rather underestimated the time it took her to dress. But we finally started out together.

"We went to my regular restaurant and sat down at my regular table. It was about 8:30. She ordered before I could open my mouth: Coffee and doughnuts for her. The waiter said the doughnuts were all gone. I said that was O. K.—she could get her doughnuts tomorrow. But Lottie declared she wanted her first taste of Washington doughnuts on her first morning in Washington. She said she'd seen another eating place a block ahead. So we had to go there.

"And there we got the same answer. Lottie said, why, she thought thousands of Washingtonians ate doughnuts for breakfast. The waiter said that was the trouble: they did. We'd come at the heels of the office rush, and so his place was out of doughnuts. Lottie said that was nonsense. There must be doughnuts left somewhere in Washington. She didn't want anything but doughnuts. She wouldn't eat anything but doughnuts. And we'd go somewhere else.

"At first I protested—she wouldn't listen. And by-and-by I got too faint to protest. Once we found a doughnut on a counter, but it turned out to belong to the chocolate species. Lottie walked out on it because she said it was well known the real Washington doughnuts were all of the common or garden variety, with sugar on them.

"I was in a kind of dream when we finally reached a lunch counter near Fourteenth and F. I couldn't believe my ears when the waiter said they did have sugared doughnuts. He asked me if I wanted some, too, and I said I wouldn't eat doughnuts now, not even for the Nobel prize. I ordered bacon and eggs. And then Lottie delivered the last insult. She said:

"'Why, that does sound good! I believe I will wait till tomorrow for my doughnuts. Today I'll have bacon and eggs, too.'

"I told you I was weak. I was. But that gave me strength. With the fake silver knife that was beside my plate, I cut her throat . . .

"No, I will not plead insanity. I said I was in a dream, but I knew what I was doing. I will plead justifiable homicide."

Half A Century.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The anniversary of your paper (and ours) sets this old lady calculating how long she has read it—more than 50 years certainly, as our home on Nineteenth street was built in 1882; and when we moved in, The Post went with us. Recent Flights Show Prowess Of U. S. Planes

Feats of Rickenbacker and Kingsford-Smith Answer Critics.

By Harris B. Hull.

CAPT. EDWARD RICKENBACKER'S record making transcontinental flight and Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith's recent crossing of the Pacific shed illuminating light on the state of affairs in American aviation based on what engineers call "airplane performance." It should be explained that the veteran Australian aviator flew an American built plane, while Rickenbacker was in charge of a domestic airliner that soon will go into service on a route serving Washington.

Without endeavoring to depreciate the benefits reaped from the numerous investigations and studies made of the important aircraft industry, these flights do provide fresh data on the subject, and a somewhat different insight to that developed at the recent Congressional hearings. In the case of the transpacific crossing the selection of an American airplane is significant. And the successful completion of the trip is even more important.

From the military aspect Sir Charles' flight shows us once again that America must look for adequate coastal and air defenses from powers that once were thousands of miles away, but which now are only hours from our shores. Our isolation is a thing of the past. From the commercial viewpoint, the trip of the able Anzac aviator and his navigator, Capt. P. G. Taylor, demonstrates that Postmaster General Farley must not be classed as a dreamer when he states that the Postoffice Department is encouraging the establishment of a transpacific air line by American interests.

It is important to note that this is not Sir Charles' first crossing of the Pacific. He has carried on a series of routine flights across these broad expanses of water, tending to show that the trip can be made on regular schedule. The only extraordinary feature of his most recent trip is that he landed at his destination two hours in advance of his announced hour of arrival.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH the easy thing is to heap laurels on Kingsford-Smith and Taylor for their fine trip, there is one note of slight criticism that must creep into any discussion of their latest exploit.

The crossing was made in a land plane. Therefore, if the motor had failed at any time during the flight the plane, having to alight on water, would have sunk quickly, probably taking the pilot and passenger to Davey Jones' locker. In this particular, Smith's crossing was just another "stunt attempt," unlike the others only because it did not end in disaster. But as long as the Australian's confidence evidently was well placed, it is not fashionable to get too critical in this regard.

Rickenbacker's transcontinental flight presages even faster commercial schedules between California and New York and on our entire network of air lines. Today the traveler can leave his office at the conclusion of a work day and reach the other side of the country in time for an appointment the next morning. It is apparent that even this fast cross-country time will be reduced further.

In addition to this, Rickenbacker's trip shows conclusively that America has developed the finest transport airplane in the world, a ship that could be converted with little difficulty into a defensive weapon, should the occasion arise.

Commenting on the performance of this Douglas transport airplane a writer in the London Evening News said. "Only one Royal Air Force fighting plane is as fast as this flying train. Comparison with our civil aircraft is too degrading."

• • • •

GOING into a foreign field again for an insight into our domestic aviation situation, the London-to-Melbourne air race provides another viewpoint. This blue ribbon international air classic was won by a British-built De Haviland Comet. Second and third, however, were captured by two American ships.

The Comet plane flown by Scott and Black was especially built for the London-to-Melbourne race. On the other hand the two American ships which outdistanced everything else in the contest are stock transport airplanes similar to those carrying Uncle Sam's air mail, passengers and express on domestic air lines at the present time.

When the Robertson race to Melbourne was announced its sponsor said that the objective was to stimulate the development of commercial transport aviation, especially between England and Australia. The British-built "Comet" has little if any commercial value, while the two American ships could be placed in service on this line tomorrow.

As a matter of fact, one of them is destined to go into service on this route. Parmentier and Moll, who flew the Douglas transport, a sister ship to Rickenbacker's plane, into Melbourne in second place, are regular pilots for the Dutch line K. L. M. Their plane will be added to the fleet used by this company. This ship has a top speed of 213 miles an hour, carries 14 passengers, mail and express at an altitude of 22,000 feet. It weighs 11,350 pounds empty, is 60 feet long and has a wing spread of 85 feet.

The third-place winner in the race was the Boeing transport flown by Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn. Like the Douglas, this plane is in regular use on American lines.

• • • •

IT is not my intention to give the impression that everything is ideal in the domestic aviation picture. Rather, it is intended to set forth certain facts that tend to disprove that all is black on our flying horizon. There have been abuses. A number of high-class promoters, without the courage to get into airplanes, have played a part in the flying business that sheds no credit on them or on the aviation industry. But, on the other hand, the early pioneers, who flew into the sky in several variations of kites, then classed as airplanes, deserve a better fate than to be branded as many of them have been branded in the past year.

When you know that an American-built plane has excited foreign aviation experts into writing article after article decrying the fact that this ship is far superior to anything they have available at the present time, you probably will be impressed.

And when you see one of these ships streak over the Capital at more than 200 miles an hour, while the passengers converse comfortably inside the heated cabin, you will know that there are two sides to the picture.

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Wall street, looking to the White House for its next move now that the country has given it a mandate to carry out its program, received favorably Mrs. Roosevelt's announcement that wine would henceforth be served at the White House. That this decision has been in the making for some time was accepted in all quarters, because of the promptness with which it was announced.

BARGERON

At first the market was inclined to take a bullish view of the news, looking upon it as tending toward inflation. But when it was subsequently analyzed and it was learned that only two glasses of wine were to be served to each guest, trading subsided and prices steadied.

Among the more conservative traders the fact that only two glasses would be served was taken as another indication of the White House's desire to swing neither to the right nor the left. Private advices for the past several weeks have held to this opinion.

Five glasses, it was pointed out, could be served by Mrs. Roosevelt, but this would be a decided swing to the left. The serving of only two glasses emphasizes the view held here that what the White House really wants to do is to steer a middle course. It further supports the contentions of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt's friends that they are neither leftists nor rightists, but what they really are are buffers standing between the country's two extreme forces.

There was some speculation, however, as to why Mrs. Roosevelt didn't decide to serve two and a half glasses, thereby striking a mean, or something, between the two opposing forces. However, if there must be a slight leaning either way Wall Street was thankful that it was toward the conservative side.

The decision to serve only domestic wines was subjected to conflicting views.

J. P. Warzburger, leading domestic wine grower, hailed it as a great boon to home industry.

"The sooner," he said, "this country realizes that it must protect its own people the better off we will be."

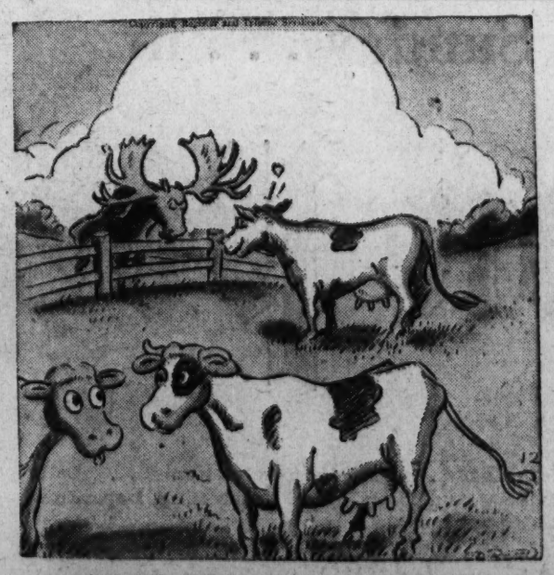
On the other hand, H. K. Loffowosky, leading importer, insisted that excessive nationalism was what is holding us in the depression. How Mrs. Roosevelt's decision could be squared with Secretary Wallace's brochure, "America Must Choose," was something he couldn't understand.

"We have got to restore international trade," he said. "A free flow of commerce between countries is essential to the orderly living of the world."

Immediately upon receipt of the news several of the country's more aggressive wine growers rushed representatives to Washington with a view to landing the White House business and at the same time to petition that at least two and a half glasses per person be served.

This action on the part of these growers was viewed indignantly by W. W. Modusk, who had been out of the city and who did not arrive in the street in time enough to send his representative to Washington, too.

"It is this cut-throat business that is creating chaos in our trade," he said. "It is rugged individualism of the crudest sort. It disturbs the orderly and managed commercial trends by which we were moving. There ought to be a code."



"That Esmeralda, anything with horns!"

New Faces in the Senate — — Mr. Bilbo of Mississippi

Sensationalist Denies He Will Raise Hell in His New Job.

This is the second of a series of sketches of the newly elected Senators, written by competent observers. A third will appear in this space on Monday.

By Mark Ethridge

THEODORE BILBO, the new Senator from Mississippi, sensationally claimed prominence in the bitterest political fight in the history of a State which, next to Tennessee, has the greatest rough-and-tumble, free-for-alls in the country.

One day in the latter part of December, 1909, Anselm J. McLaurin, United States Senator and political boss of Mississippi, died peacefully in a chair before his desk at his home in Brandon. The Legislature was to meet the next month and Mr. McLaurin was a candidate for re-election.

Opposed to him was the tall, dark Governor, whose raven hair curled over his shoulder in the manner of Buffalo Bill's. Four years before, James K. Vardaman, then Governor, had challenged the power of the McLaurin machine and had beaten it. Now he was aspiring to the place of the boss himself. The death of McLaurin had apparently left the place wide open to him. The people were apparently for him; he appeared to be a man of destiny.

But it was not to be. When the Legislature met, Vardaman's enemies were able, by resorting to extraordinary procedure, to make the sessions secret. They put through a bill providing that before legislators voted as such, they should caucus secretly as Democrats and select a nominee. That session, which became known as the "Secret Caucus of 1910," nominated LeRoy Percy, aristocrat from the Delta, after being in continuous session 57 days and nights.

• • • •

PUBLIC indignation had already mounted against the legislators before the session ended. The State was blanketed with rumors of dire goings-on at Jackson—of high revelry and low skullduggery—when an unknown young Senator by the name of Theodore Bilbo charged that, using himself as a decoy, he had trapped L. C. Dulaney, a Percy supporter, in the act of bribery.

Bilbo claimed that Dulaney had given him $645 to vote for Percy. The detonation rocked the State and split it into factions that were not eliminated until a few years ago. In an atmosphere of the greatest tension, Dulaney was indicted, tried and acquitted. Bilbo himself was excoriated by and almost expelled from the Senate. The motion lost by one vote.

Immediately Vardaman announced for the Senate and Bilbo for the lieutenant governorship. They stumped the State, from the rain-washed hills of Marshall County down to Biloxi, telling the people that wine, women, and "caleb seed"—a Mississippi provincialism for money—had been used to defeat Vardaman. Both were swept into office by the biggest majorities in Mississippi's history. Every four years since then Bilbo has run for office. He has been lieutenant governor, Governor twice, and now United States Senator. He jocularly says that he has "never been road overseer nor a member of the lower House."

• • • •

THE new Senator comes from a farming family down in the wiregrass country of south Mississippi. His grandfather and his father were both native Mississippians and the family goes back to the days when the State was a part of Georgia. His father was a cattle raiser at Juniper Grove, a settlement five miles from Poplarville. The name is a good old Anglo-Saxon word which means a two-edged sword, or as the Senator-elect says in the dialect of south Mississippi, "a sword that cuts gwine and comin'."

Bilbo is a little proud of the fact that Shakespeare said, as he quotes it, "When they came into close contact, they unsheathed their bilbos and fought to the death." One has the impression that he makes his own analogy from the circumstance that he is related, at least by name, to a fighting instrument.

Young Bilbo attended the schools at Poplarville and then went to Peabody Teachers College at Nashville for three years. After that, he taught in Mississippi public schools for five years, saving enough money to send himself to Ann Arbor for a post-graduate course and to Vanderbilt for a law degree. After one year in Vanderbilt law school, he was admitted to the Tennessee bar and became a law clerk in the office of Bob Taylor, the famous

THEODORE BILBO.

Governor; Benton McMillin, afterward Governor, and James Brown, mayor of Nashville, while he took his second year at Vanderbilt.

Bilbo was 31 years old and still a student at Vanderbilt when he announced in 1907 for the State Senate in Mississippi. He won easily and went to Jackson, an obscure, inconspicuous little fellow whose very stature—he is 5 feet 4 inches high—belied any pretensions to distinction. His sole claim to fame, after two years in the Senate, was the charge that he had taken a bribe. But that charge had catapulted him into prominence and, in the campaign that followed, aroused hatreds of such intensity that they will die only with those who nurtured them. Bilbo himself suffered. Two men walked into a train on which he was riding, and with pistol butts, beat him into insensibility because of statements he had made in a speech.

• • • •

HIS term as lieutenant governor was not without its shadows. There was a scandal over the creation of a new county and Bilbo and another man were indicted for receiving bribes but were acquitted. Whatever the merit of that case may have been, it did not affect his political fortunes in 1915, when he ran for the governorship and received a majority over four opponents in the first primary. The secret was then—as it is now—that no matter what charges are made against him, Bilbo has a loyal following which believes they arise out of the desire of his enemies to embarrass and punish him.

When he left the governorship in 1919 the mansion was in charge of his friend and protege, Lee Russell. A young woman employed by the State sued Gov. Russell for breach of promise. The case was tried in Federal court at Oxford. Bilbo was summoned as a witness, but refused to testify to what he knew about the Governor's relations with the woman. Judge Holmes sent him to jail for ten days for contempt of court.

"I'd be there yet if he had insisted I testify," he said recently. "I don't tell."

• • • •

BILBO ran for the governorship in 1923, but was defeated by Henry L. Whitfield, the college president to whom the State turned in its disgust with factional politics. Whitfield died in office and Dennis Murphree, a pleasant politician, succeeded him. Bilbo defeated him in 1927 and entered upon his second term. It was the most feverish in the history of the State.

The educational structure which Gov. Whitfield had reared was turned upside down. Bilbo installed friendly legislators as bursars and registrars of the educational institutions and created such a great uproar that the State schools of higher education were stricken from their lists by all accrediting agencies. The fight grew so bitter that boys left the State to go to school, swearing they would not be educated in "Bilbo colleges."

Half a dozen other scandals broke during that administration, affecting his appointees. There were fights with the Legislature, fights with unfriendly boards; his marital troubles were aired in court. In fact, Mr. Bilbo's world seemed to be coming down about his head. When he left office in 1931, few people in Mississippi thought it possible ever for him to make a comeback. When he was given a job clipping papers in the AAA, his enemies gleefully took up the nick-name given him in the Department of Agriculture, "the clipping boss," and spread it throughout the State.

• • • •

PAT HARRISON, the old fox of Mississippi politics, had secured a place for Bilbo, who lives in the adjoining county, undoubtedly hoping to keep him from fishing in Mississippi waters, because there is never any telling what will happen when Bilbo fishes. But Bilbo threw up his job at the AAA, went up to the Senate Office Building early this year, and told Senator Harrison he was running against Stephens.

"I'll have to support Stephens," Mr. Harrison told him.

"By all means do that," Bilbo told him. "It won't affect our friendship. I think you owe it to him, and besides, it will give me a chance to make my strongest campaign argument."

"What's that?"

"I'm going to say that you now have two Senate seats in your pocket, but that the constitution provides for two Senators and I'm running for the vacancy."

That line, used in the campaign, made a greater hit with the electorate than with Senator Harrison, but he and Bilbo are still friendly.

Mr. Bilbo made two political campaigns this summer on less than $10, he claims.

"I didn't have any more," he explains. He knows somebody in every settlement in Mississippi and has a friend in almost every farmhouse. He says he bought sardines and cheese and crackers—the same diet he uses in every campaign—with the $10 and gained 10 pounds. His friends filled his battered old car with gasoline and people out in the country gave him their guest rooms.

• • • •

IN return, he made them something like 40 promises, most of them more radical than anything President Roosevelt has advocated. The redistribution of wealth is a cardinal plank in his platform. Another thing he promised was to expose "the invisible forces" that control the Government in Washington.

Newspapers quote him as having said that he would "raise more hell than Huey," but he denies it. He says that what he really said was that he would have done more than Stephens about all the "rottenness" of the air-mail and shipping contracts, "even if I had to raise more hell than Huey Long."

It is a fairly safe bet that, while Senator Bilbo will vote with the so-called radicals, he will observe all the decorum of the Senate, even to remaining silent for his first year in office.

He is capable of rabble-rousing, and he does so on the stumps in the backwoods of Mississippi, where he makes from three to eight speeches in a hot campaign, but he will not resort to it in the Senate. He knows equally well the idiom of the Mississippi red-neck boys and the English of the proud planters of the Delta.

He is apt, like the chameleon, to take on the cultural color of his immediate constituency. Back home, out in the woods at the all-day-singing-and-dinner-on-the-ground festivals, he will talk to his audiences like the politician and licensed Baptist preacher that he is.

Before audiences in Meridian and Jackson and Clarksdale, he adopts the more dignified manner. If anybody forces him to fight, he will scratch and claw and bite and kick shins. But if he is left alone in the Senate, he may even mellow.

'Crashed Plane' Reports Start Wild Goose Hunt

Beacon, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—A tired searching party of 500 persons was informed tonight by officials of Iona Navy Arsenal that the "crashed airplane" they had been looking for all day was nothing more than an experimental rocket.

The rocket, which released a 3-foot parachute, was sent up early this morning in a test, they said. They were quoted by Maj. William A. Welch, of the Palisade Park police, as being astonished when informed that local and State police, two airplanes from New York and a Department of Commerce inspector from Newark had been looking all over the neighborhood during the day for the "lost plane."

Filipino Consecrated Archbishop of Cebu

Cebu, P. I., Nov. 9 (AP).—The first Filipino to be elevated to such high rank in the Catholic Church, Bishop Gabriel Reyes was consecrated Archbishop of Cebu by Mgr. William Piani in elaborate ceremonies here today.

The papal delegate said Reyes would head a new archbishopric of Cebu, with Archbishop Michael J. O'Daugherty, of Manila, remaining Primate of the Philippines.

Medicean Splash

ART, with a $20,000,000 capital "A," dominates the cultural atmosphere in New York this month in the highly impressive Fine Arts Exhibition now open at the Forum Galleries in the Rockefeller Center, R. C. A. Building. This is an attempt to return to the Medican magnificence of the spacious predepression days and if it is successful it will become an annual event in the metropolis.

The exposition sweeps through 20 rooms and the massed effect of the paintings, statuary, rugs, furniture, porcelain, jewels and books is quite breathtaking. The collection is made from the choicest yield of 60 exhibitors and seems to be a finally realized dream of the eclectic connoisseur.

In a sense, the exposition represents the loot of the ages, but the modern note is conspicuous by its absence. The taste and flair of the eighteenth century, which still reflects the substantial elegance of today, despite the impact of modernism, has been the standard of assembly throughout. So rich is the general effect that one can readily accept the figure of $20,000,000 set as a valuation on a gathering of objects, many of which are themselves priceless. Furniture of the formal Georgian period, when Horace Walpole's Strawberry Hill was the microcosm of its time, predominates in the exposition with its profuse accompanying ornamentation.

To list the high spots of the collection would be to become a mere cataloguer. The place of honor, however, has been given to the so-called Samos Aphrodite, a Greek work completely reassembled with the exception of a missing left forearm. The figure is in the Praxitelean tradition, charming and graceful, but is undoubtedly the work of later followers of the great sculptor, though it remains one of the finest Greek originals which have come down to us. The statue was found in scattered fragments on the Island of Samos about 20 years ago and was skillfully put together with a minimum of restoration. It has been in this country about ten years and is now the chief treasure of French & Co. Its calm beauty and polished softness form an interesting complement to three Chinese statues of the T'ang period, which themselves show plainly the Hellenistic influence carried into the Far East with the conquests of Alexander the Great.

THE exposition is weakest, perhaps, in its paintings, though there are good examples of Rembrandt, Rubens and Gainsborough. One of the pictures shown, however, though it is by no means the most notable artistically, is of peculiar interest to Washingtonians, for it is the sequel to Whistler's famous Peacock Room, now in the Freer Gallery.

While he lived Whistler was as celebrated for his quarrels as he was for his nocturnes. One of the most vigorous of these (the quarrels, not the nocturnes) developed over the Peacock Room executed on commission for Frederick Richards Leyland, an early patron and one of the big shipowners of Liverpool. One result of their difference was a free portrait of Leyland, a cruel caricature, which has ever since been known as "The Gold Scab." The picture, never before seen in this country, is an historically important feature of the exposition.

There never has been a meaner portrait painted. It represents Leyland, as a Peacock, playing a piano on which he has piled his money-bags, and using Whistler's Fulham house as a piano stool. The title springs from the sheet of music on the piano rest. This Whistler labeled "The Gold Scab, Eruption in FRiLthy Lucre." The capitalized letters make up Leyland's initials and the very bad pun is a reference to Leyland's habit of wearing elaborate shirt frills. Whistler may only have intended the portrait as a jeu d'esprit in the manner which made him the foremost exponent of "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies." But, while Whistler himself may have faded a little with time, poor Leyland, a decent chap in his day, is now remembered only as a pompous plutocrat.

GERTRUDE STEIN, female Dr. Johnson of the Paris Fauves, has began the series of lectures which brought her back to the United States, and nobody seems the wiser. Not that Miss Stein hasn't received plenty of publicity—on the contrary—and not that there isn't a rush to hear what she says. But it seems to be a case of a Stein at the table with the theme song far from clear.

Miss Stein is now two lectures up. The first was at the Colony Club on "Pictures," which, she said, she liked. She liked oil paintings, the kind that stayed in their frames and didn't go roaming about. The second lecture delivered to the members of the Institute of Arts and Sciences, was on "The Gradual Making of 'The Making of Americans,'" in which she told how she gradually came to master the rhythm of her word sequences, a method by which a universal history of human character could be composed, if you knew the trick.

Miss Stein's lectures are a little like the lapping of waves on a lakeshore at night. They sound considerably like conversation and you are just about to understand exactly what they are saying when you fall asleep. But the audiences do not fall asleep—oh, no. They are alert and some of them seem to half-catch the pitch. Most of them are frankly bewildered, and a few resentful. Still Miss Stein, being a pronounced personality in her solid fashion, has her minor prophets—more of them than when she debarked.

Here are a couple of samples which Miss Stein gave her hearers to cogitate on. Try them on your victrola.

"As one listens to them all the repeating of them this comes to be clear of them the bottom nature of them."

Anyone can understand that, with the proper punctuation, but the commas don't help this one much:

"If the accumulation of inexpediency produces the withdrawing of the afternoon greeting, then in the evening there is more preparation, and this will take away the paper that has been lying where you could see it."

IGNORING the maxim that poets are born and not made, the Academy of American Poets has been incorporated in Albany for the purpose of subsidizing our latter-day bards to the tune of $5,000 a year. Back of the movement there are plenty of people of distinction and money, as well as a militant group of poets.

The awards are to go only to "poets of proven merit," though it isn't quite clear how this is to be proved or whether the hundred neediest cases among our minor Miltons are not invariably unproven. There is also another catch in the articles. If, after due consideration, an award is made, the lucky fellow is not allowed to do anything for a solid year except to write poetry.

That sounds like a reasonably tough assignment for anybody.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Portrait in An Off Year.

He sits alone with heavy heart
And with a drooping eye;
His hair is rumpled o'er his brow,
He heaves a heavy sigh;
He feels an ache in all his bones—
His hair has turned to gray;
He ran as a Republican
On last election day!

II.

He feebly calls for water and
He mutters, "Shut that door!"
He has a splitting headache and
His ligaments are sore.
He thinks he has his sinus back
And water on the knee—
For he was on the ticket
Put up by the G. O. P.

III.

He thinks it may be rheumatiz
With just a touch of gout,
And possibly arthritis and
A fever breaking out;
He wonders why his arches fell
And why his "tummy" rolls—
He ran as a Republican
Last Tuesday at the polls!

IV.

His arches feel as if collapsed,
His molars seem to ache;
A spell of grippe, it seems to him,
Is swiftly on the make;
The world outside looks bleak and bare,
His body reeks with pain -
They called it an election but
It proved a hurricane.

V.

His eyes take on a fearful stare,
His jaws set like a trap
As suddenly he rises up
With fury on his map;
His language here we cannot print,
'Twould make your senses spin . . .
Just let it go, "The blank, blank, blank—
They told me I could win!"

Maryland Mishap.

In the ditchie
Went Governor Ritchie,
But it was quite
An amazing switchie.

Don't You Remember

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

WHEN the novel "Trilby" was published, exactly 40 years ago, something happened that has since been only once repeated. The singing of "Ben Bolt" suddenly revived that sentimental ditty, and it again enjoyed enormous popularity. In the twentieth century, when Florence Barclay wrot the popular novel, "The Rosary," that famous song got a new lease of life. In both cases British authors revived American songs.

The author of "Ben Bolt" was an extraordinary individual named Thomas Dunn English; born, 1819; died, 1902. He went through the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, writing his thesis in phrenology! He received the degree of M. D. Then he studied law, and was admitted to the bar, saying in later years, that he "never was lawyer enough to hurt me." What he really enjoyed was writing stories, plays, and poems, which he did with great ease, and like Arnold Bennett, was frank enough to say that he wrote for money. "So long as I am paid, and no longer, shall I continue to write."

In 1845, he edited a periodical, and among his contributors were Edgar Allan Poe and Walt Whitman! He originally was an intimate friend of Poe, but later they had a violent quarrel, and attacked each other in print and in court.

Besides being a physician, a lawyer, and a writer, English was elected to Congress from New Jersey as a Democrat in 1890 and served two terms. He was in Congress when "Trilby" was published, and he immediately became the center of attention. He had originally published this ballad September 2, 1843, and there are 26 different musical compositions set to its words by composers of various nationalities. English himself composed one of them, using only the black keys.

BEN BOLT

Don't you remember sweet Alice,
Ben Bolt,—
Sweet Alice whose hair was so brown,
Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your frown?
In the old churchyard in the valley,
Ben Bolt,
In a corner obscure and alone,
They have fitted a slab of the granite so gray,
And Alice lies under the stone.

Under the hickory tree, Ben Bolt,
Which stood at the foot of the hill,
Together we've lain in the noonday shade,
And listened to Appleton's mill.
The mill-wheel has fallen to pieces,
Ben Bolt,
The rafters have tumbled in,
And a quiet which crawls 'round the walls as you gaze
Has followed the olden din.

• • • •

And don't you remember the school,
Ben Bolt,
With the master so cruel and grim,
And the shaded nook in the running brook
Where the children went to swim?
Grass grows on the master's grave,
Ben Bolt,
The spring of the brook is dry,
And of all the boys who were schoolmates then
There are only you and I.

There is a change in the things I loved, Ben Bolt,
They have changed from the old to the new;
But I feel in the depths of my spirit
the truth,
There never was change in you.
Twelve months twenty have passed,
Ben Bolt,
Since first we were friends—yet I hail
Your presence a blessing, your friendship a truth,
Ben Bolt of the salt-sea gale.

Wage Boosts Increase Cost Of 2 Schools

PWA Labor Board Ruling to Cast Montgomery County $25,000.

Cost of the new Eastern and Western High schools, now under construction in Montgomery County, was increased $25,000 yesterday by a ruling of the Labor Relations Board of the PWA, which held the work was being done within the metropolitan area, and that workers were entitled, retroactively, to prevailing wage scales in the District.

The ruling came as the result of a protest by the Washington Chapter of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' Union of America, which claimed that the Morrison Co., of Bethesda, contractors on the job, were paying less than the District wage scale. Work had been done, it was reported, for a flat rate of $1.10 an hour.

The retroactive ruling will not retard work on the two schools—Eastern in Silver Spring and Western in Bethesda. Work will go ahead, and the wage increase will be accumulative until the county raises sufficient funds to make up the deficit.

Provisions in the new scale include $1.50 per hour for bricklayers, stone and marble masons, and $1.30 an hour for the tile-setters.

One hundred and twenty men at work on the new buildings are affected by the PWA ruling.

NRA Board Drops Policy of Secrecy

Clay Williams, chairman of the NRA administrative board, yesterday called a press conference for Tuesday.

His decision to see newspapermen followed publication of news that S. E. Thomason, special adviser on public relations, had urged the board to lift the curtain of secrecy which has concealed its actions and return to the "gold fish bowl" policy of Hugh S. Johnson, former administrator.

Johnson ordinarily received reporters twice a week. Williams has held one press conference in his six weeks at NRA.

Thomason was said to have urged appointment of a public relations director who would be authorized to attend board meetings and keep newspapermen informed of its work.

Discovery of Second Century Book Announced.

Vienna, Nov. 9 (AP).—Discovery of the "world's oldest Bible," said to have been written in the second century, was announced today by the Austrian National Library.

Hans Gerstinger, chief of the library's manuscript section, said the pile of dusty manuscripts was found in a Cairo bookshop by Hermann Junker, director of the German Archaeological Institute there. They were brought here for study and their importance confirmed.

The entire Bible was not included in the manuscripts, bound in the form of a book, but the gospels of Matthew and Paul's epistles and portions of the Old Testament were there.

Scholars said the oldest Bible previously known dated from the fourth century.

Silence Continued By Robles Suspect

Wife Battles for Right to Retain Counsel.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 9 (AP).—A hint that Federal operators were waiting for Oscar H. (Buster) Robson, suspect in the June Robles kidnaping, to "talk" was dropped here today as his wife and an attorney battled at court for the right to assist him with counsel.

"Maybe if Oscar ever decides to talk we will learn more about the case," said Joseph E. P. Dunn, Department of Justice agent.

Shortly thereafter Mrs. Margaret Robson, who has resolutely asserted her husband had nothing to do with the long-unsolved desert mystery, was allowed to see the prisoner, in the presence of a Federal agent.

"I don't feel much better since I talked with my husband," she sobbed as she came from the meeting.

Grubb in United States District Court late today denied an application of 14 preferred stockholders for a temporary injunction to restrain the Alabama Power Co., the Tennessee Valley Authority and 14 municipalities from entering into a contract for the sale or purchase of distribution systems in the towns and cities involved.

Judge Grubb did not rule on the merits of the case, and said he would render a final ruling after a hearing on a permanent injunction, which probably will be set for hearing.

Attorneys for the Tennessee Valley Authority then moved that the case be dismissed, and Judge Grubb said he would hold a hearing on the motion within five days.

Washington is fortunate in having one of the lowest rates of child delinquency in the country, thanks in large part to the intelligent work done by Community Chest agencies.

It is not generally known that institutions such as the Chest's Boys' Clubs derive a large portion of their funds from the Community Chest, without which aid they would either have to drastically curtail their facilities or, in most cases, close their doors entirely.

These character-building and morale-sustaining agencies are keeping boys and girls off the streets and laying a permanent foundation for their future manhood and womanhood.

Many Parties Compliment Greek Envoy

Minister Leaving Dec. 1 With Mme. Simopoulos for London.

Social List Started With Farewell Visit to White House.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

It is seldom that a diplomatic couple leaves without a round of entertaining in their honor, but never before has there been such a whirl as that which the departure of the Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos has created. They will sail December 1 aboard the Olympic for England, where the Minister will assume his new duties after having been in Washington for ten years. Since his arrival with Mme. Simopulos December 2, 1924, they have become outstandingly popular with members of resident Washington society as well as in official circles.

If they were to remain until Febuary the same program of entertaining would continue, and it has been suggested to them, with several dinner invitations for each evening, that they accept invitations for soup with one host, fish with another, and so on through the dinner, until they have given all of their friends the pleasure of entertaining at a bon voyage party of some kind for them.

The Minister and Mme. Simopoulous were received yesterday afternoon at the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt for a farewell visit. The minister will call on the President in his offices later to make his adieu. Little did they think when they were received by Mrs. Roosevelt last week that they would be saying good-by so soon, but the orders of transfer arrived a few days after their former call at the Executive Mansion, and since the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be out of town later the farewell visit was set for yesterday.

Mrs. Norman to Entertain.

Mrs. Guy Norman will entertain tomorrow at dinner for the Minister and Mme. Simopoulos at her home on Massachusetts avenue. Maj. and Mrs. William McKee Dunn will give a dinner Monday for them at 1925 F Street Club. Mr. and Mrs. Lee P. Warren will entertain for them at dinner Tuesday and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison will give a luncheon Thursday, November 15. That evening Col. and Mrs. Arthur O'Brien will entertain at dinner at Estebrook, followed by bridge, in honor of the retiring envoy and his wife.

The Minister and Mme. Simopoulos will go to New York, Friday, November 16 for the week-end with the former Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, at their estate at Staatsburg-on-the Hudson. They will attend the dinner to be given Sunday evening, November 18, by the Greek colony of New York, and will return in time to attend a luncheon to be given by the Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye, Tuesday, November 26. That evening the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom will entertain at dinner in their honor. Wednesday, November 21, includes a luncheon to be given by the Minister of Rumania, Mr. Charles A. Davila; a cocktail party at the 1925 F Street Club by Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, and a dinner by the Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil.

Myron Hofer to Be Host.

Mr. Myron Hofer will entertain at a dinner for the Minister and Mme. Simopoulos November 22, at his charming home on F Street, and on November 23 Mr. and Mrs. Philip Coffin will give a dinner in their honor. The Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Harold Sims will entertain at a dinner in their honor November 24, and on November 25 the Chief of Protocol of the State Department and Mrs. James Clement Dunn will give a luncheon in their honor.

That evening Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis will entertain at a supper party and on November 26 the Greek colony will entertain at a dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick will entertain at dinner in their home on Sheridan circle on November 27, and the following day Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benning Spencer will give a dinner.

On their last day in Washington the Minister and Mme. Simopoulos will be feted by their close friend, Mrs. James F. Curtis, at a large dinner at the 1925 F Street Club, and Friday, November 30, as Mme. Simopoulos says, "will be the funeral."

Half of Washington will probably be at the Union Station that day to wave a fond and sad farewell, without thinking that the Simopoulos departure for London is a very signal honor for the Minister.

Mrs. Longworth Gives View of New Deal Fetes

More Casual Entertaining Praised by Socialite in Article.

Vivid glimpses of Washington social life from the inside are given in Alice Roosevelt Longworth's story "Lion Hunting in the New Deal," in the current number of the Ladies' Home Journal. In it she applauds "Happy Days Are Here Again" as an appropriate theme song for the present Administration and declares that "the sun seems always to shine in the White House."

She attributes this change in the White House atmosphere as not due to the personnel brought in by the New Deal, or to any improvement in the type of public official and politician whom one sees there, "but entirely to the personality of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They both like people, enjoy meeting and talking with them," she writes. "Their cordiality and friendliness are natural and spontaneous. They not only seem to be, but I believe are, enjoying themselves, for enjoyment is a capacity which can not be simulated, and their guests feel this and respond to it.

"It is certainly true that, wholly aside from policies and politics, the White House atmosphere under this Administration is more agreeable, gayer and less stilted than it has been in a long time. There is a lightness, ease and absence of stiffness about the big entertainments which has been lacking for many years. Indeed, at even the most official party the atmosphere is much more that of a social occasion in a private house; it is difficult to realize that one is being received by the head of a great nation; the conversation is on relative trivialities, rather than on questions of great moment. No matter how grave conditions may be throughout the country, no matter what problems the Government in Washington may be facing, the genial host gives no suggestion of worry or preoccupation.

"Entertaining More Casual."

"Not only at the White House, but rather generally in Washington, the entertaining seems to me more casual, less formal in character. There used to be a number of big houses—Mrs. Richard Townsend's, Mrs. McLean's, Mrs. Marshall Fields, for example—where things were done on a lavish scale that has no parallel in present-day Washington. Of course, there are still occasional sumptuous entertainments in the big houses which are from time to time opened, but they are comparatively infrequent; in fact, the foreign embassies have the field in that type of entertaining almost to themselves.

"The larger parties are given in the hotels, at the Sulgrave Club and at Mrs. James F. Curtis' delightful old house which a year or so ago she turned into the 1925 F Street Club. The membership of Mrs. Curtis' club includes Democrats, Republicans and New Dealers, and nearly all who come to Washington find their way there at some time.

"Probably the nearest approach that Washington has to the salon of history and fiction are Mrs. Borden Harriman's parties. Ever since the days of the Wilson Administration Daisy Harriman has given Sunday evening suppers to which flocks everyone with any claim to interest and importance in official and unofficial life.

"They are primarily of a political complexion, but if any artists, writers or actors are in town, they, too, are sure to turn up there. She has a gift for making her guests talk. After supper, which is served at small tables, everyone draws back his chair. Daisy propounds some leading question and the symposium is on, lasting, as a rule, well into the night, the conversation and debate skillfully directed by the hostess.

"Wholesale Round-Up."

"The most wholesale round-up of the lions of the New Deal, big and little, has been made by Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey. Mrs. Rumsey is a daughter of E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, and has inherited her share of his vast fortune. Since her appointment as head of the Consumers Advisory Board of NRA her houses in Washington and Middleburg, Va., have become meeting places, almost recreation centers, for professors, brain trusters and bureaucrats of every degreee, who are indeed fortunate to have found someone as hospitable to them and to their ideas as she is. She is in her element in the confusion and scurry and experimentation of the New Deal, and I do not know anyone in Washington who fits into it better."

Mrs. Longworth gives a timely tip to Washington hostesses when she declares that "there is one bet, it seems to me, that Washington hostesses have overlooked—that is, the important and powerful lobbyists whose headquarters are in Washington. If anyone wishes to know people who have real influence over legislators and politicians, they should cultivate them."

She also gives some hints as to her own favorite types of entertainments.

"In my opinion," she states, "the pleasantest form of entertainment is a small luncheon party of not more than six, eight or ten, and there are many such in Washington. People come to them straight from their offices, full of what they have been doing; conversation is general; they are not too long, as the men have to get back to work without undue delay. And equally pleasant is teatime. Real teatime, with tea; a drink for whoever wants one, of course, but emphatically not a cocktail party—that abomination which I suppose is a legacy from prohibition. I see very little to choose between an old-fashioned tea and a modern cocktail party.

"Lunch at the Capitol in the Senate restaurant is also an acceptable Washington diversion. Two or three Senators are usually having luncheon parties for constituents. At the right hand of the door as one goes in is the table reserved for the Vice President, where Mr. Garner is frequently to be seen conferring briskly with assorted senators. There are two long tables: one for Senators who hurry in to gobble down lunch and then scuttle back about their business; at the other long table usually sit members of the House who prefer the Senate dining room to their own. I have gone there for so long that I almost feel as if it were my club dining room."

Luncheon Given For Daughter By Mrs. Spinks

Mary Katheryne Spinks Marks Birthday as Well as Her Debut.

Mrs. William B. Spinks entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel for her debutante daughter, Miss Mary Katheryne Spinks, who celebrated her debut as well as her birthday.

Mrs. Spinks and her daughter received in the Pan American room, which was decorated with autumn flowers and foliage intermingled with palms and ferns. Mrs. Spinks wore a smart black gown, whose severity was relieved by two brilliant clips at the neck. She had on a large hat of black velvet and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Miss Spinks worse a frock of black chiffon velvet made in an unusually quaint style with a spray of pink roses at the high neckline. The bodice fastened down the back with a row of tiny velvet-covered buttons, and the long sleeves were quite full. On her left wrist she wore a bracelet corsage of gardenias and sweetheart roses. Her small hat of black velvet and net had a starched veil.

At 1 o'clock the young debutante, her mother and their guests adjourned to the Chinese room, where luncheon was served. In the center of the handsome blue and gold room there was a large horseshoe table, which surrounded an effective arrangement of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, talisman roses and ferns. On the table at either side of the curve were two symmetrical Christmas trees.

At the close of the luncheon, when these were passed around so that each debutante might have her own cluster of flowers, it was discovered that the trees were old-fashioned nosegays of roses, carnations, miniature chrysanthemums and lacey frills cleverly arranged to resemble a short thick fir.

The guests included Mlle. Gladys Broz, Miss Mary Jane Stanley, Miss Katherine Brown, Miss Louise Waller, Miss Betty Angus, Miss Mary Tyler McCormack, Miss Maria Whitehurst, Miss Diane Rowland, Miss Mary Winifred Brown, Miss Janet Harrison, Miss Mary Katherine Bentley, Miss Silvine Clagett, Miss Frida Frazer, Miss Randolph Richardson, Miss Elizabeth Zimmerman, Miss Majorie Jane Dampman, Miss Betty Marsh, Miss Margaret McMullen, Miss Moss Lee Love, Miss Majorie Walsh, Miss Betsy Rowan, Miss Louise Alexander, Miss Ann Barrett, Miss Dorothy Howe, Miss Margaret Spier, Miss Bette Hartz, Miss Mary Senate Howes, Miss Mildred English, Miss Berbara Baker, Miss Mary Elizabeth Tilghman, Miss Katherine Pearson, Miss Frances Simpson, Miss Mary Patterson, Miss Aileen Harris, Miss Elinor Johnson and Miss Laura Deady.

Social Leaders Sponsor Ball in Philadelphia

Annual Debutante Dance Originated by Niece of Washingtonian.

Of interest to Washington society was the annual debutante ball at the Hotel Warwick in Philadelphia last night. It was sponsored by a group of distinguished patronesses, including Mrs. Nicholas G. Roosevelt, Mrs. A. J. Drexel Paul, Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, Baroness Czoernig von Czernhausen, Mrs. William H. Donner, Mrs. J. Stanley Reeve, Mrs. Nicholas Biddle, and Mrs. Arthur Robertson Fergusson, niece of Mrs. J. de Bree Higgins, of Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Fergusson originated the Philadelphia debutante ball three seasons ago.

A committee of debtuantes of the previous season, gowned in black, received the buds, who had been asked to come attired in white frocks.

Many dinners were given at the Warwick before the ball. Among those entertaining were Marquis de San Carlos de Pedroso, of Biarritz. The marquis will be remembered by Washington society as attache at the Spanish Embassy a few years ago.

Dark and Light Fruit Cake Are Equally Tasty

Both Kinds Win Prizes in This Week's Recipe Contest of Post.

DARK AND light fruit cake are equally popular by the number of recipes for each received in The Post's recipe contest this week.

First prize, $3, is awarded Mrs. H. Otway Millar for her recipe for Delicious Fruit Cake. The second prize, $2, is awarded Mrs. J. F. Abel, 2150 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, for her White Fruit Cake. The third prize, $1, goes to Mrs. Will T. Gordon, 3132 Sixteenth street northwest, for her 150-year-old recipe for The Hope Fruit Cake.

The prize-winning recipes follow as listed above:

Delicious Fruit Cake.

8 eggs
½ pound butter
½ pound of flour
1 package of raisins
1 package currants
½ pound shelled almonds
½ pound shelled pecans
¼ pound each, orange and lemon peel
1½ pounds sugar
⅔ pint wine
1 package figs
½ bottle of cherries
1½ slices pineapple
1 pound of citron
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cloves
Pinch of salt

Many preliminary preparations for fruit cake can be made the day before. The currants and raisins can be washed and placed in large pans to dry. The citron and mixed candied fruit can be cut into ½-inch cubes. Fruit cake of this kind is most easily mixed in a large pan. After thoroughly creaming the butter and sugar, the beaten egg yolks are added. Then the dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, are added alternately with the wine.

Last of all, the beaten egg whites are folded in carefully. The mixture is then placed in a baking dish, which has been lined with ungreased brown paper and then with waxed paper (greased). Cover the cake with two layers of cheese cloth and then with wax paper. Tie these coverings over the cake pan tightly, then the cake is ready to be steamed for five hours. Following that, the cake is baked in a slow oven for one hour.

White Fruit Cake.

1 pound white raisins
¼ pound candied pineapple
½ cup coconut
½ pound citron
1 cup blanched almonds
¼ teaspoon baking soda
3 tablespoons sweet milk
¾ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon salt
6 egg whites

Soak raisins in water until they are plump and then dry thoroughly. Add them to the other fruits.

Cream shortening thoroughly and add sugar gradually, stirring until light and soft. Sift dry ingredients three times and add alternately with the milk. Fold in the egg whites and add the fruit mixture. Mix well and pour into a tube pan, lined with wax or manila paper. The pan may be filled almost full as fruit cake rises very little. Glaze the surface with honey mixed with water before baking in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) an hour and ten minutes.

"The Hope Fruit Cake."

¾ pound butter
¾ pound sugar
¾ pound browned flour
1½ pounds currants
1½ pounds seeded raisins
¼ pound citron
3 ounces rose water
6 ounces brandy
¼ ounce cinnamon
¼ ounce nutmeg
⅜ ounce cloves
Grated rind of half an orange.

Prepare fruit the night before using. Unseeded raisins rather than the small seedless ones are preferred. Pour brandy over the fruit, cover lightly and let it stand until morning. Save a small amount of browned flour to mix in with the fruit. Cream butter and sugar together and add eggs, beaten all together. Add flour by degrees, rose water and spices, and last of all fruit. Bake 1 hour and 15 minutes in one pan. This is exactly one-fourth of the original recipe.

A suite of wide-wale herringbone, made with plain back, passes muster for business or spectator sports.

Covert Color Rapidly Gains In Popularity

COVERT each spring and fall for the past season has shown increasing popularity. Now it becomes a winter shade and a becoming one. It suggests traditional smartness for town and country wear and its subtle coloring, shading from light greenish-tan to deep tannish green, seems to harmonize well with every possible combination of apparel.

The topcoat was the first to make its debut in this color, and now the overcoat of covert colored fleeced and smooth fabric moves into the picture. Camel's hair polo coats of covert tone are particularly smart.

The tapered crown covert hat with a black band and curl brim, worn creased, but undented, or pork-pie fashion, is the newest headwear note.

Dicky bosom shirts, white body, with covert pique tabless tab collar (worn pinned), bosom and double cuffs are as good looking as they are new.

Knitted houndstooth vests in covert or wide wale covert corduroy weskits have captured the sport world. Hose and ties naturally follow the trend.

What's Puzzling You?

TO BE correctly dressed for the occasion without being foppish is the mark of the gentleman. There is a modern etiquette in dress as important as the etiquette governing conduct. The men's fashion editor of The Post is prepared to answer queries on the what, when and why of sartorial good taste. Put your questions to him.

Padding for Round Shoulders?

MEN'S FASHION EDITOR: Should a suit be greatly padded in the shoulders if one is inclined to round shouldered posture?
V. McM.

* * * *

SIR: I would advise as little padding as possible. An easy drape lounge suit will slightly conceal round shoulders, where padding will call attention to a build which you can not carry. Try walking erect, chin in, back hollowed, stomach sucked in, and little fingers touching trouser seams. You'll be amazed what it will do for you and your clothes.

Ill Advised Economy.

MEN'S FASHION EDITOR: Is it possible to get a tailcoat and dinner coat of the same material with one pair of trousers? Would you advise it as a savings? M. N. P.

* * * *

SIR: A custom tailor would make such an outfit. I do not believe it's carried in stock by local merchants. I would not advise the purchase, since the braid on the trousers would be incorrect with one outfit, and the general wearing quality unsatisfactory. If you wear one kit more than the other, you'll have to replace both much sooner, so there's no real savings.

All column queries received last week requesting information on where to buy formal dress accessories will be answered if the writers will forward self-addressed envelopes.

Lounge, Sport and Blue Outfits Filled Out With Extra Trousers

Navy or Oxford Gray Chesterfield. Overplaid Greatcoat, Double-Breasted Dinner Jacket and Tail Kit Provide Complete Attire.

By M. A. Weiss.

CONTRARY to popular belief one does not have to own 15 suits of clothes to be fashionably clad. Three will do the trick (for all but formal functions) and do it nicely if chosen with care.

First choose a two-button, single-breasted notched lapel lounge suit of fine, dark, unfinished worsted. With it select a pair of shepherd check or striped trousers without cuffs. Many establishmeents sell this garment under the name "cocktail suit." But it is more than that. It also is a business suit and correct (with striped trousers) for Sunday calling, church, semiformal occasions, cocktails and Sunday evening functions.

To supplement this outfit, the change off should be a double-breasted dark blue suit, with which the striped trousers may be worn.

Next choose a sport suit with a plain back, probably a wide wale herringbone. With this suit you get a pair of odd flannel slacks, and thus have two sports outfits and a suit that can be worn to business without invoking comment. (That's the reason for the plain back.) With these three you can attend all but formal affairs and be dressed in proper taste.

Next, an overcoat, choose a navy blue or oxford gray Chesterfield, fly front, with velvet collar, because it can be worn for business or dress wear.

To be prepared for more formal occasions add to your wardrobe a shawl collar, double-breasted dinner jacket. If you're going to football games, like a bit of golf, and sometimes travel with the horsey set, indulge in an overplaid norfolk jacket suit that is real sporty.

But suppose your great-grand aunt in Skiuma County leaves you a vast inheritance of some $200 and you decide to splurge. Pick out a horsey polo coat, or better yet an overplaid, hard-finished greatcoat with military collar, raglan sleeves and slash pockets. Here's your football and roadster coat, and a coat you can use for riding. Since you can now afford to take milady to concerts, dances and the theater, you indulge in a tail kit . . . and as you have sunny Sunday afternoon strolling dates with this miss, buy a jaunty covert topcoat, double-breasted, slightly formfitting, with wide lapels.

By this time you will be bitten by the bug that gets well dressed men. You'll probably want to add another tweed or a shetland suit. You'll start picking out mixtures, glen plaids and chalk stripes on dark grounds. You'll experiment with three-button models, side vents and bellows pockets. When you have reached your peak . . . stop buying.

The double-breasted dark blue suit makes an excellent alternate for the single-button lounge suit.

Shops to Have A Variety of Gifts for Men

Wool, Muffler, Hose and Gloves of Same Patterns Suggested.

MAN is a lucky creature this year, judging from previews of the things he may expect as holiday gifts.

There is, for example, the set idea of wool muffler, hose, and gloves all knitted in the same pattern and color scheme, with peasant designs. These come from Scotland.

Silk shorts in deep tones, without buttons, are held in place by an extension waistband with ring fasteners like your sports belt. The waistband comes in contrasting color or deeper self-color.

The popular chalk stripe is being done in cocktail, radio or lounge suits. The jacket looks like a shawl collar dinner jacket and has a shawl collar, usually of polka dots. Pockets and cuffs are trimmed with the same material.

There is a new cocktail shaker set that should please every bachelor's heart. It holds two quarts, and the flask is divided into four parts. It has a slide opened top and you can mix four different concoctions at once and by merely moving the slide top, pour exactly the drink you want. There's a tiny device for marking each compartment so you don't get your signals mixed. Great for parties.

Style Parade Favors Gray

GRAY, usually considered a springtime color, is going to be important this winter, according to a style parade of knitted costumes yesterday at the Goldenberg Co. department store.

Introduced by Miss Pearl Hobson, New York knitwear stylist and fashion authority, five mannequins showed a stunning collection of handmade suits, coats, dresses and sweaters before a crowd of several hundred persons gathered in the store's art department.

Gray was only one of a group of so-called springtime colors featured in the fashion show. Others were yellow, beige and green. Then there was the usual number of warm, wintry tones, including rust, brown, burgundy and maroon. Some black was exhibited.

Most of the knits were the smooth closely woven types which resemble wool fabrics. Several interesting novelty weaves, on the order of lace, also were shown. The lace effect almost always was used for sweaters or for collars on straight, slim dresses.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I read a letter in your column November 1, signed "Septuagenarian," suggesting the organization of a club whereby lonely persons in Washington can get together and dispel the "blues."

* * * *

I am more than willing to help anyone in launching such a project. If this person will write to me, through your column, perhaps we may be able to do something along this line. SOUTHERNER.

* * * *

Dear Miss Haworth: I read with great interest the cases of "Mary" and "Martha," and want you to know I appreciate the interest you take in lone mothers. "Ruth's" letter, also, was interesting. The idea of a "Mothers, Inc.," is indeed a good one and would help many women to be independent.

* * * *

Why not use the experience and the wisdom women have gained by years of diligent service to their own families? Some are excellent cooks; others experienced in child care and nursing the sick. I truly believe nearly every elderly woman has some genuine accomplishment. I have realized the need of such an organization or club as "Ruth" suggested.

* * * *

I am a widowed mother whose children are all married and although not dependent on my children, yet I would join such an organization to encourage others, or would take any part in such work as I could handle.

* * * *

I think we need this help for lone women as much as we needed playgrounds and recreation centers some years ago when we had no place for our children to play except the streets. Five women set out to remedy the condition and soon had the desired results. I hope others who have an interest in humanity will respond to this need. There are many "Marthas" and "Marys." It needn't be an expensive undertaking. Some interested person living only in a small apartment could get the ball rolling. Why not try? M. O.

Leader Is Needed.

DEAR SOUTHERNER AND M. O.: The increasing volume of letters indorsing "Ruth's" suggestion for organizing a "Mothers, Inc.," to meet the economic and social needs of such women as "Martha" and "Mary," gives reason to hope that in the not-too-distant future some such project may be launched. Since both of you are willing to put a shoulder to the wheel, others who have expressed sympathy with the idea should readily fall in line. All that is needed is a qualified leader. M. H.

The well-dressed man builds his wardrobe around a two-button, single-breasted notched lapel lounge suit.

Metallic Copper Makes Effective Wall Decoration

Copper walls may sound weird to the uninitiated, but the new metallic wall papers now on exhibit are undeniably beautiful.

Like most modern wall papers, these papers are fadeproof and washable. And the copper does not rub off as the old gilt papers did.

The metallic copper is used in solid, patternless papers for ceilings or sidewalls, or as backgrounds for other papers.

The copper is often combined with such colors as chartreuse green, peach, ivory and white. The patterns are for the most part geometrical or modernist.

Lecturer Gets Close-up Of Europe on Auto Tour

Mrs. Howard Met Diplomats, Received by Pope on 7,400-Mile Trip.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

GLIMPSING Chancellor Dollfuss a week before he was assassinated.

Seeing Hitler the day he returned from Munich after the death of the King of Yugoslavia.

Visiting the labor camps in Germany with a Nazi colonel who talked freely about Germany's chance to "come back" as a world power, and about the Jewish situation in general and Einstein's case in particular.

Discussing the plight of Europe with diplomats in Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Austria and England.

Being received by the Pope.

Seeing King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace.

These are some of the high lights of Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard's three months' motor tour of Europe from which she recently returned. A trip in which she covered ten countries, traveled 7,400 miles, and visited not only the famous cities but the quaintly colorful villages the average tourist misses.

Prefers Motor Travel.

"There's no more fascinating way to see Europe than through a windshield," Mrs. Howard said.

"What rather surprised me in England was the avid interest in President Roosevelt and the obvious indifference to everybody else in the United States," she said. "The English regard us as inferior people, as a whole, but how they do admire and love our President!"

Mrs. Howard learned this, not so much from her visit to London, but by talking to inhabitants in the smaller towns and rural communities of England. Of all the countries she visited, however, she found Germany the most interesting.

She pointed out that the entire country is completely regimented. The tourist sees young men "goose-stepping" in virtually every German city, town, and village. "And they love it," she said.

"They want, above everything, a strong military dictator; but I do not believe they yet have the leader they need. I don't think Hitler will last.

"German women lend themselves so gracefully and so naturally to domesticity, the tourist hardly notices they have to a great extent dropped out of the business and professional life of the country," she said.

Women have never gained as many privileges anywhere in Europe as they have in the United States, she pointed out.

U. S. Women Better Dressed.

"Furthermore, women of the United States are far better dressed than women in Europe. I didn't see a single well-dressed person—either man or woman, with the exception of the diplomats—anywhere in Europe."

Hessler-Henderson, Inc.

"See the world through a windshield," says Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, above.

District Vote Fight Will Go To Legislatures

Women's League To Make Plea for Memorials to Congress.

IN AN EFFORT to stimulate Nation-wide support of Federal suffrage for the District of Columbia, the National League of Women Voters this winter will take the issue direct to the States.

Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president of the league, in making the announcement yesterday, said: "State Legislatures will be asked to memorialize Congress in behalf of a vote for District residents. A suggestion to State Leagues of Women Voters to initiate appeals to State Legislatures for memorials to Congress in behalf of District suffrage has been issued by the national league's board of directors. Forty-three of the 48 State Legislatures will be in session in 1935."

The League of Women Voters has supported Federal suffrage for the District of Columbia since 1922.

"The equal suffrage battle can never be considered won until suffrage for men and women of the District is an actuality," Miss Wells said. "The question of giving these long-time disenfranchised citizens the right to vote for President and to have some representation in Congress is fundamentally one of simple justice."

Dr. App Will Speak.

DR. AUGUST J. APP, of the English Department of Catholic University will address the Washington Catholic Poetry Society at its meeting at 3 o'clock tomorrow in the University.

500 Handbags Placed on Sale At $2.45 Each

Special Shipment Designed for Much Higher Price Than Offered.

(During the absence of Miss Ruth Anne Davis, her column is being written by Katherine Smith.)

By Katherine Smith.

BAG SCOOP! Five hundred handbags, in more than 50 styles, go on sale today and Monday at $2.45. Tuesday the prices will be jacked up. Go early, you have a wide selection.

There are brown ones, blue, green, and black ones, pouches, envelopes, zippers, new clasps, varied grains and materials. You'll find a bag to match any costume, for any occasion. Large and small, fat and thin, they'll be there.

This is what happens when manufacturers and retailers get their heads together and vote in favor of the public. This special shipment was designed for much higher selling than the sale price. Some styles are duplicated in threes, some in dozens, but the many different styles offer you a full selection.

When your friends admire your bag, smile and agree, then snicker up your sleeve and congratulate yourself as a good shopper.

She'll Lift the Burdens.

If company dinner is too much after a hard day's work, or if you're entertaining your husband's boss and want everything to go smoothly, there's one woman in town who will lift all burdens from your shoulders.

She will go into your kitchen, take over the cooking and serving, with the help of a maid she brings, will see that flowers are well arranged. In short, she will be as efficient a hostess as you would be yourself.

If you don't need her as a competent cateress, let her help with the cooking. By order, she will deliver any dish to your door, whether a roast turkey, a hot mince pie or a dozen rolls, still warm from the oven.

Another thing—she has made rolls for many prominent Washingtonians. They buy hers because she has a special recipe.

When you see her, you'll gladly turn the sanctity of your kitchen over into her careful hands; when you've tasted her cooking, you'll think she has magic powers; when she has been a hostess for your guests, you'll know you've found a friend.

Wool Throws Are Snug.

The latest simile—as snug as a lady in a wool throw. And when you've seen these soft open weave throws, you'll want to be snug, too. They are all wool, satin lined, 60 by 72 inches and in several colors. They're wrapped in cellophane and attractively done up in silver boxes. They fill a need in so many households. With Christmas so soon to come, can shopping lists be far behind?

Sweat Shirt in Colors.

Boys! Here's a sweat shirt that will make you the proudest member of your class. The shirts are in local high school colors; colored letters across the chest, spelling the name of the Alma Mater. So, if you're afraid you'll be taken for a Westerner by a boy from Central, when you're really from Eastern or Tech, wear an identifying shirt and there'll be no mistake.

Aquarium Book Ends.

How about using fishes for book ends? Seriously, tiny square aquariums about eight inches high are listed as such. The frame is white painted metal; over the top of the glass bowl a little curved lid fits, and inside the lid, where you can't see it, is an electric light bulb. The light illumines the fish, and makes the gold variety look fairly molten.

Those on display are appropriately filled with sand, shells, a bit of green fish salad (what do you call it?) and the loveliest blue goldfish you ever saw. Yes, it's blue, with red fringes on fins and tail.

Unfilled, the book ends are $2.50 each.

Colonial Tearoom Opens.

One of the old official houses on Sixteenth street has been turned into a tearoom. The room itself occupies what was the entrance hall and library. The wood paneled walls are painted gray, window curtains are red calico, linen is bright cheerful yellow.

It breathes the Colonial atmosphere. All the furniture is in antiqued pine. Little antique knick-knacks fill the wall cupboards.

There are some lovely handwrought iron pieces for sale, among them flower pot holders, and a glass-topped table.

Chinese Restaurant Opens.

If you like to sit in a little booth and eat delicious chop suey, you'll enjoy a new Chinese-American restaurant that opened in new quarters this week. It's freshly painted in white and greeny-blue; the room with the booths has a ceiling that is lovely enough for a good five-minute scrutiny. Service is excellent, and the food particularly good. The location makes it a fine place for business or shopping luncheons.

Apples, at Their Best This Season, Provide Many Tempting Recipes

Popular Varieties Are on Market at Very Reasonable Price.

By Dorothea Duncan.

THIS IS the season when apples are at their best, and many popular varieties are on the market now at an exceedingly reasonable price. Housewives should take advantage of this opportunity to include apple dishes in their menus and also to lay away a supply of eating apples for the winter.

Apples are generally considered as being of three types: the eating apple, which includes Grimes Golden, Red Delicious and Golden Delicious; the all-purpose apple, which may be used with success for eating or cooking, for example, the Spitzenburg, Winesap, Baldwin, and the cooking apple among which the Rome Beauty is favored for baking and the Greening for pie.

If a cool, dry storage place is available at home, a bushel of apples is not too much to purchase at one time for a medium-sized family. Apples always have been an all-around family fruit as they can be served in breakfast dishes, salads, for dessert, as a meat accompaniment, for the school luncheon or as just a pick-up for hungry youngsters after school.

Here is a new way to serve baked apples that will really give the family a table thrill.

Roast Goose With Baked Apple.

1 eight-pound goose
2 cups bread crumbs
1 chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
¼ teaspoon sage
1 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
6 to 8 apples
¼ cup brown sugar
3 sweet potatoes

Cook the giblets until tender, chop and add to stuffing made by mixing bread crumbs, onion, fat, sage, salt and pepper. After cleaning and washing the goose thoroughly, stuff and sew the neck and back. Roast for 15 minutes at 500 degrees F., then reduce the heat to 350 degrees F. and cook about three hours. Wash and core 6 to 8 apples, sprinkle with brown sugar, stuff with mashed and seasoned sweet potato, bake until tender and serve hot with the goose.

If you ever have stale bread left over, use it for this inexpensive apple recipe. It will dress up the simplest kind of a meal.

Apple Charlotte.

Slices of stale bread, ¼ inch thick
Melted butter
Chopped almonds, if desired
Stewed tart apples, mashed and seasoned with sugar and nutmeg.

Line a greased mold with the bread slices, dipped into or brushed with melted butter. The slices should fit close together and may even overlap. Fill the center with the stewed apples and add chopped almonds if you wish. Cover the top with slices of buttered bread and bake in a hot oven (400° F.) for 30 minutes. The bread should have the appearance of being saute'd and should be well browned. Turn out on a platter and serve hot.

Spiced apples are a delicious accompaniment to meat, especially fowl or pork. The following recipe combines two favorites—apple sauce and spiced apples, and can be served in place of either.

Apple Ball Sauce.

1½ cups apple balls
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
6 cloves
Few shavings lemon rind

Cut balls with French vegetable cutter. Cook remaining ingredients 7 minutes. Remove cloves and rind and cook apple balls in sirup until soft, one-third at a time. Cook sirup until reduced one-half and pour over balls.

Here is an apple salad that is a favorite at bridge clubs, and it is a good dessert, too.

Can Be Served in Salads, Breakfast Dishes and Luncheons.

Layered Cheese and Apple Salad.

1 package of gelatin, lemon flavored
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 red apple, cut in ¼-inch dice
3 ounces cream cheese
1 pint boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup walnut meats, broken

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add a tablespoon lemon juice and salt. Chill. Combine apples, sugar, dash of salt and remaining tablespoon lemon juice. When gelatin is slightly thickened, fold apples into one-half of gelatin mixture. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Place remaining gelatin in bowl of cracked ice or ice water and beat with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in cheese and nuts. Pour over firm first layer. Chill until firm. Serve in squares on crisp lettuce. Garnish with lemon cream mayonnaise. Serves eight.

Lemon Cream Mayonnaise.

1-3 cup mayonnaise
2½ tablespoons confectioner's sugar
Dash of salt
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1-3 cup whipped cream.

Fold mayonnaise, sugar, salt and lemon juice into whipped cream. This makes one cup of mayonnaise.

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

SCHOOL vacations, at Thanksgiving and Christmas, are likely to bring invitations for the children to visit Grandma or other fond relatives. Sometimes parents are loath to let them go.

"There's the expense, new clothes and railroad fare. And suppose they don't get their orange juice and spinach daily? And, oh, dear, the house will be so lonely without them."

In spite of any such objections, it is worth sending the children away for an occasional visit. A change from the home routine does them good in many ways.

I recall one boy of ten whose personal untidiness was the bane of his family. He visited an aunt and came back literally a new boy. He scoured his face until it shone each morning; he slicked down his hair and cleaned his finger nails without being told. What happened on that visit to account for the change, no one ever knew; not even his aunt could recall what she had said or done to influence him. But somehow that visit had accomplished a miracle.

Shirtwaist and Dressy Blouses Are Provided in One Pattern

Pattern No. 824.

THE MOST important part of a costume is, undoubtedly, its upper half. Skirts may go on forever, but the blouse must be smart, fresh and dainty. New blouses are needed each season. And new ones may be had because little yardage is used and they are quickly made.

Each of these blouses has a fashion point of particular note. The shirtwaist design has full bishop sleeves, very new and smart on this type of blouse. It may also be a tuck-in. The dressy design features sleeve fullness, shirred at the shoulders. This is a charming idea for sleeves which is rapidly becoming very popular.

Both of these blouses are in one pattern. Sizes are 12 to 40. Complete yardage requirements are given on the pattern envelope.

Jennifer Hale

By Rob Eden

"ON the desk was a revolver, but you knew about that. Corey had shown it to you the night before.

"You found the bank statement you wanted and you carefully steamed it open in the kitchen—with gloves on your hands. You were leaving nothing to chance. You found the check you wanted and took it out, and carefully sealed the envelope again and put it on the pile on the desk. The check you put in your wallet. You were just leaving, Ives, when you heard Corey's key in the door. You were trapped!"

Kent's eyes left Ives' face, and lowered to his right hand. There was not a quiver in the fingers that held it.

"Off the living room is a long coat closet. You stepped in there, but did not have time to close the door after you. It must have been a trifle ajar when Jennifer and Corey entered the room, and through the crack you could see the desk; you could even see the gun on the desk. Corey and Jennifer were quarreling—but we won't go into that. You saw Jennifer pick up the gun from the desk absent-mindedly, and put it down again. She did this several times. You were very much frightened, I think. You hoped they'd clear out soon—that Corey would suggest taking Jennifer home or Jennifer would suggest he take her home, so you could get out. You hadn't counted on Corey's coming home so soon. A boy came with a cablegram—and went. Jennifer finally decided to go home alone. She went, and you—you, Parker Ives, were still in the coat closet!

"You came out of the closet, and were at the door when Corey came out of the bedroom. At first he didn't recognize you because you had on a cap, and your coat collar was turned up at the neck. He ran for the gun, but you got there first, and before you knew it Corey was dead on the floor.

"In that minute you thought of everything, you even had a witness to the quarrel between Corey and Jennifer, the elevator boy. He, too, must have seen the gun on the desk. Now, let's take the time element. Jennifer left at 9:15. By 9:17 at the latest Corey was dead, and you were throwing the gun in the wastebasket.

Ready to Heave.

"Next you stooped over his body and took out his check book, and next you went to the desk, reopened the bank statement you had sealed, took your forged check from your wallet and put it back in the envelope. You were ready to leave now. There was nothing more to be done, so you did leave, by the stairs, not by the elevator. You didn't know then that Jennifer had left by the stairs, too, but you must have been very happy when you found that out.

"Sherman was still asleep when you arrived home, and your servant was gone. He had left the house even before you had, for his night out. You awakened Sherman, told him about your car, and then got the conversation started on Corey. Sherman was feeling badly about Corey. You suggested you both go over and he apologize.

Things Went Well.

"At 11:30 you and Sherman and the night manager of Moore House entered Corey's living room. From then on everything went as you had expected it to go.

"You were a little too nervous during the trial, Ives. That's when I started to suspect you. Am I right?"

"You're right, Young, too damned right for your own good. I'm going to kill you first, then Kent—and then myself. And you, Young, because you are so smart and clever, are going to die by your own gun!"

Kent's eyes left Ives' face and jerked to the first finger of Ives' left hand, nestling around the trigger. It moved closer, it pressed against the trigger, and in the split second that followed Andy leaped forward and caught up one of the chairs.

Kent dropped to the floor, just in time, for a shot rang out above him on the plaster wall. Another shot, but this one went wild, for Andy's chair had hit its mark—Ives' shoulder.

Kent was over the desk first, but there was no struggle. Ives, his face white as paper, had toppled into his chair in a faint.

Ives Needed Watching.

In a few moments Ives was lying on the rug in the middle of the floor, a cord from the window drapes bound securely around his feet, and his left hand handcuffed to the leg of the desk.

"Your gun didn't fire," Kent said shortly. "That was what saved our lives."

Andy chortled. "Of course, it didn't fire, and I knew it wasn't going to fire. That was what I was counting on. My gun wasn't loaded, and I knew it, but Ives didn't know it."

License Secured.

It was the next afternoon, however, when Jennifer and Kent were riding away from the Hall of Justice in Kent's roadster. A warm sunny afternoon. They drove along without speaking. They had said very little to each other since they had met an hour before, Jennifer free.

Kent took his hand from the wheel and touched hers. "Darling," he whispered, "we'll be married Monday. Can't before that in this State. I haven't much money left, dear, so perhaps we had better stay here. I had an offer of a job this morning, and I think I'll take it. All of $35 a week! Think you can manage on that?"

"It'll be hard for you, Kent, to live the way we'll have to live, after you've had so much. With me, it's different. I'm not used to luxury. I won't miss it. Do you really love me enough to give up everything to marry me?"

House Rented.

Kent was smiling as he brought the car to an abrupt stop. "See that little house there, dear? Let's go in and see how much it rents for." The car was standing in front of a small white stucco house. On the green lawn was a sign, "For Rent—Furnished."

When they came out of the house 15 minutes later, Kent was poorer by $35—the first month's rent.

He turned off the residential district and five minutes later stopped before a suburban jewelry store. But when he came around to help her out, she shook her head.

"I want you to think about this, Kent. I couldn't bear it, if after we were married, you—you——"

Always Wear It.

He didn't let her finish. Gently he took her arm and drew her to the sidewalk. "Do you love me, Jennifer?"

"I do!"

"Well, that's all that matters."

While the clerk was making out the sales check for the plain platinum band Kent turned to the girl, the ring between his fingers. "When I put this on your finger Monday morning, Jennifer, it's never going to come off. Promise!"

"I promise."

"Luxury," a stirring novel about a wife who yearned for riches, but found happiness in a cottage, begins in tomorrow's Washington Post.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

IF NOVEMBER 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

The spirit of pleasure rather than business might dominate the day. Comparatively little activity may be noted in commercial life. Climate conditions will possibly be the determining factor as to the type of social activity that will be offered for entertainment purposes. A tangible evidence of someone's affection may be given to you before the day is over.

In a spirit of generosity be careful you do not give away something you may later want yourself. Idle hands are likely to get into mischief on this day, so the brainy man and woman will keep theirs industriously occupied.

If a woman and November 10 is your birthday, it will probably turn out a far more delightful one than you have anticipated. It may prove to be a turning point for good fortune in your financial affairs and while there may be no immediate manifestation of this, very shortly it might become apparent. Your strong personality will impress others with your ability and inspire confidence.

The child born on November 10, when it reaches its teens, may prove ambitious and unusually capable. It should be able to hold its own under any conditions and will make friends readily.

If a man and November 10 is your natal day, your capacity for work is unlimited and will enable you to reach an enviable position if you engage in the line of work for which you are best fitted.

Students Cheer Talk on School Concert Series

Symphony Manager Tells of Programs Arranged by The Post.

C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony Orchestra, was applauded by more than 700 students of the Taft Junior High School, yesterday, as he explained to them the series of symphony concerts arranged by The Washington Post for school children. These concerts, made possible through the cooperation of Dr. E. N. C. Barnes, director of music in District schools; Dr. Hans Kindler, director of the orchestra; members of the orchestra, and the Musicians Union will provide programs in Eastern, Western, McKinley and Armstrong High School starting early in December.

The National Symphony concerts, Mr. Cappel explained, will be patterned after the concerts given annually in Central High School.

Mr. Cappel also paid tribute to The Post's cooperation in making the series possible by guaranteeing financial support in order to allow each student to attend the concerts for only 25 cents admission.

Because of the tremendous demand for tickets to this series, only a certain number will be allotted to each school, and students who are planning to attend the series were urged by Mr. Cappel to reserve their tickets as quickly as possible.

Culbertson on Bridge

A Successful Gamble.

The advanced player is justified in making gambling bids and gambling plays which the beginner should not attempt. The fact that an expert successfully creates a swing in his favor by an unusual and daring bid does not mean that a less experienced player should attempt the same trick. On today's hand, for instance, the South player first bid a singleton suit and then jumped to two notrump on a very weak hand. He did this originally in an attempt to shut out the opponents from reaching a game which he thought they had; however, when the subsequent bidding showed South that it was more probable that the game was North-South's than East-West's, he stood by a very dangerous redoubled contract.

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer ot numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East.	South.	West.
1♣	Dbl.	1♠(1)	Dbl.(2)
Pass	Pass	2NT(3)	Pass
2NT(4)	Dbl.(5)	Pass(6)	Pass
Redbl.	Pass	Pass(7)	Pass

1—On East's Takeout Double South, because of his great length in his partner's suit, fears that the opponents have a game in one of the majors. In an attempt to bluff the opponents, South decides to make a bid over the double in what appears to be the most dangerous suit.

2—West's double is atrocious. However, the West player realizes that South's spade bid must have been on a singleton or doubleton spade because his partner's takeout double almost certainly guaranteed something in that suit.

3—South decides to throw a further barrier in the way of the enemy. Naturally, South has no way of telling that his partner has much more than a minimum opening bid and accordingly South still fears that the opponents may have a game. He knows almost certainly that his side will be able to take seven club tricks without even considering the red suits and therefore that he can always run to clubs in perfect safety.

4—North knows that there must be something unnatural about his partner's bidding. South could not have a hand which would justify a spade bid followed by a jump to two notrump but which would not justify a redouble on the first round.

5—East's double is of course sound. He has no way of telling that his partner's double of one spade was made on nothing but length in that suit.

6—South, perhaps a little bit surprised by his own audacity, decides to stand by the contract of three notrump doubled.

7—Since South decided not to run out the double, he certainly does not wish to run out after his partner has shown the strength to redouble. South previously felt that he was gambling in not returning to four clubs. He now feels he must have a good chance to fulfill his contract, and at the worst should not be down more than one trick.

West, of course, originally intended to open a spade but when South stood by both the double and the redouble, he decided the spade suit must be well stopped. He accordingly opened the heart Jack. As a result South was able to make four notrump. In addition to seven tricks, South set up a diamond, as the opponents could run but two spade tricks.

Miss Liberty was an ordinary black pop-eye fish until the World War came along. True, she was a high-class fish, like all black pop-eyes, but not outstanding. Her name was not Miss Liberty then.

Then came the war, and Miss Liberty, instead of having children of the usual (and ordinarily much preferred) black color, suddenly began producing children that were red, white, and blue. She, too, began to change color, and eventually became red, white and blue. Her name was changed to Miss Liberty, and soon she became the chief attraction at many Liberty Loan drives along the eastern seaboard.

Of all the animals that played their part in winning the war, Miss Liberty was probably the only fish that ever staged a Liberty Loan drive.

There was nothing wrong with blackmail as it used to be paid in England — it merely was another word for rent. The term did not include all rents, however, but was limited to rent paid in labor, grains, or metals not sterling—i. e., "black money," hence the name.

In northern England and in Scotland it later came to mean tribute paid to outlaws by farmers for immunity—in other words, protection money from old-time racketeers. Now, of course, the term means extortion or attempted extortion of money or property by threats.

States Mark Road Link's Completion

5,000 Virginians and West Virginians at Ceremony.

Two Governors Among Speakers on Program Atop Mountain.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Five thousand Virginians and West Virginians, including the Governors of the two States, two members of the Congressional delegation, A. Willis Robertson and Jennings Randolph, and prominent State officials held a "mother and daughter reunion" atop the 3,000-foot-high State-line Shenandoah Mountain today. The celebration marked the completion of Virginia's link in the new highway connecting the two States, which established the shortest modern road between Tidewater Virginia and the Ohio River in West Virginia.

The gathering was sponsored by the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce and Pendleton and Grant County citizens to observe the modernization of the Pendleton road link in Route 4 in Virginia and Route 5 in West Virginia between Deltaville, Va., on the Chesapeake Bay, and the Ohio River near Sistersville, W. Va.

Gov. George C. Peery, of Virginia, and Gov. H. G. Kump, of West Virginia, first cut ribbons of the two State colors directly over the State line and then clasped hands to signify a "reunited people" of the two States.

People Called United in Spirit.

The speakers, including Representative Randolph, of West Virginia; Representative Robertson, of Virginia; President Weldon Berry, of the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce; Speaker Ralph Hiner, of the West Virginia House of Delegates; Federal Judge John Paul, Western District of West Virginia; Mayor Ward Swank, of Harrisonburg, and Russell Dahmer, of Franklin, W. Va., declared the large gathering showed the State line after all was only "imaginary" and that the people of Virginia and West Virginia are "one in spirit and affection."

The two Governors, as well as the two Representatives, lauded the "old and the new dominion" States. Gov. Peery, after reviewing Virginia's road-building history, said:

"Too intimately associated with the history of Virginia ever to be disassociated is West Virginia; for West Virginia, though they belong to another political division, are Virginians and are claimed as such.

"West Virginia has developed into a wonderful industrial State with her great coal fields, her oil and gas wells, and many varied industries.

"Proud of Mother State."

Gov. Kump declared the same Anglo-Saxon race and the same pioneer spirit of these people still reigned in West Virginia as in Virginia. He said:

"We of West Virginia are proud of our mother State. We may not have made the progress Gov. Peery claims for road building in Virginia, but do not forget that we were the first to reach the top of this mountain with a modern road. We are happy you are here, Gov. Peery, to celebrate the completion of your end of this wonderful highway. We wish to congratulate Virginia upon the foresighted vision and road-building conception of your former Governor and now United States Senator, Harry Flood Byrd—your friend and my friend—upon your pay-as-you-go plan. You have paid for your roads, but we have outstanding a $150,000,000 bond issue for our roads."

Representatives Robertson and Randolph congratulated the people of the two States in getting together in a spirit of good will. Judge Paul, in introducing Gov. Peery, and Speaker Hiner, in introducing Gov. Kump, recalled when the Pendleton road was a mere trail, and it required two days to cross the mountains, whereas now it can be done in an hour.

Musical features of the program were furnished by the Harrisonburg Municipal Band and Andrew Woolf, of Harrisonburg, singer. Mr. Berry presided.

Rich Tobacconist's Home Entered by Thieves.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (AP). — A necklace valued at $10,500 and other jewelry bringing the total value up to $21,000, along with the thief or thieves who took them from the home of Jaquelyn P. Taylor, Richmond tobacconist, are being sought by police.

Mr. Taylor and his family returned yesterday from a visit to their country home in Orange County and discovered the robbery had been effected by prying open a window apparently either late Wednesday night or early yesterday morning.

A servant asleep in the house and a caretaker asleep in the garage were not aroused by the theft.

Bowers Seeks Recount.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 9.—George M. Bowers, Republican, son of the late Representative George M. Bowers, this city, indicated today he would ask a recount of the vote cast Tuesday in the contest between himself and Ward Nicklin, Democrat, for justice of the peace in Martinsburg district. The unofficial count gave Nicklin a 15-vote majority.

Holt Sees New Deal's Dawn in West Virginia

Promises to Wage War on 'Power Trust, Other Combines.'

Rush D. Holt, 29-year-old Democratic Senator-elect from West Virginia, victor over the veteran Republican Henry D. Hatfield, outlines his plans and policies in the following article:

By Rush D. Holt,
(Democratic Senator-elect from West Va.)

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 9 (AP). The election in West Virginia, in which the people gave to me the second largest majority ever accorded a candidate for the United States Senate in the history of the State, is not taken in any sense as a personal victory.

The campaign was fought on the clear-cut issue of liberalism against reaction, of the New Deal and the new day against the old deal and the older order, of Roosevelt and humanity against Hooverism and vested interests. It was my privilege to carry the progressive banner, to follow the flag of Roosevelt, and I am deeply gratified that the people of my State have given such an impressive vote of confidence to our great President and his forward-looking program.

Because, during my service in the State legislature, I exposed and denounced the corrupt political practices of powerful public utilities which have dominated West Virginia politics for 25 years, I have been called a Socialist, a radical, a Communist, an atheist and many other things.

I am glad to avail myself of this opportunity to say to honest and legitimate business enterprise that it has nothing to fear from me. Such business will always find me not only willing but anxious to assist in protecting its legal and moral rights.

I should also like to take the same opportunity to serve notice on the power trust and other combines that place property above humanity that I shall continue to expose their dishonest practices and to demand that they deal fairly with the American people.

So far as West Virginia is concerned, the significance of the election is that our people have at last thrown off the yoke of the absentee landlords. In my opinion, they will never return to the days when all legislation was determined in a star-chamber session of professional lobbyists, representing nonresidents. It is the beginning of a new deal in West Virginia politics—the same kind that President Roosevelt has given to the Nation. It means that we are to have, in reality, a government by the people.

Warren County Gets $134,000

$35,000 of PWA Advance Goes to Front Royal Municipal Building.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). L. B. Dutrow, town manager, was advised today that the Federal Public Works Administration has approved three Warren County projects aggregating $134,000.

A loan and grant of $35,000 has been made for a municipal building in Front Royal, with $49,000 for an eight-room school building and gymnasium in Front Royal and a four-room school building in Riverton, and $50,000 for an enlargement of the Warren County courthouse.

Thirty per cent of the costs of these projects will be a grant from the Federal Government. The loans for the courthouse and school projects were the subject of an election held last January and both proposed loans were approved by large majorities.

The new municipal building will be located on Royal avenue, near the civic center, and Mr. Dutrow said plans are completed and construction will begin immediately.

Linking Parks, Skyline Drive Is Virginia Aim

Chambers of Commerce in Move for Sightseeing Route.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Linking of the Skyline drive and the Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park to form an established sightseeing route for tourists will be sought by the chambers of commerce here and at Orange and Charlottesville, it was decided at Orange yesterday.

City officials will endeavor to have the present Skyline drive designated as the Skyline National Battlefield drive. The movement will endeavor to route tourists now returning to Washington through Charlottesville, Orange and Fredericksburg. Motorists now are traveling via Harrisonburg.

The Fredericksburg route cuts 50 miles from the return journey and enables motorists to visit the Civil War battlefields here and to visit the other historic shrines in this area.

Active promotion of the new return route will begin later this month at a general meeting. Chambers of commerce officials pointed out that while the Charlottesville-Orange-Fredericksburg road is now open, many tourists are not aware of this shorter route to Washington.

City repreysentatives at yesterday's meeting were Verbon Kemp, secretray of the Charlottesville Chamber of Commerce; O. B. Jones, president of the Orange County chamber; J. N. Samuels, secretary of the Orange group. Other chamber of commerce leaders were S. M. Nottingham, J. M. Coleman, Ernest W. Mims, D. N. Davidson and J. N. Vanderhoof, of the Orange chamber, and B. T. Pitts, Archer C. Smith and J. H. Ulman, of Fredericksburg.

Attendance at the trial is one of the duties remaining from his recent position as a special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States. He was directed March 15 by the Attorney General to assist the Mexican officials under the provisions of a treaty between the United States and Mexico.

$2,000,000 Fire Takes Four Lives

C. & O.'s Giant Elevator at Hampton Roads Terminal Burns.

Newport News Docks Paralyzed; Inquiry Is Launched.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—A grim pall of smoke hung over a $2,000,000 pyre of burned grain here tonight as railroad officials and Federal authorities started official investigation into the causes of and loss from a fire which killed four employes and destroyed the Chesapeake & Ohio's giant elevator at its Hampton Roads terminal.

The intense heat drove back searching parties ready to begin digging for bodies of the four victims. Four others had almost miraculous escapes.

Begrimed firemen who had been on duty for more than 24 hours continued to guard against the flames which frequently leaped through what is left of nearly 400,000 bushels of wheat, corn and rye stored for shipment. They dashed thousands of gallons of water against the fire which razed the building and paralyzed the whole Newport News water front last night.

Rail Officials Investigate.

Meanwhile an official investigation was launched by railroad company officials at the scene headed by J. R. Cary, of Clifton Forge, division superintendent. At the same time the Department of Agriculture announced Division Engineer Hylon R. Brown had been sent here to instigate a Federal investigation of the dust explosion which accompanied the fire.

L. C. Spengler, superintendent of the terminals, said a general fire insurance adjuster would arrive tomorrow.

Twenty-four hours after the blaze burst from the roof of the building and rose 200 feet in the air, firemen couldn't get into the twisted mass of iron and desolate forest of charred timber uprights which bore mute evidence of the greatest fire on the Newport News water front since 1915.

Those listed by grain elevator authorities as dead were George F. Martin, Hampton, foreman; Jacob Ellis, sr., spouter; George E. Thomasson, electrician and Charles B. Sheldon, spouter, all of Newport News.

Two Men Are Injured.

Hospital attaches tonight announced dismissal of David Price, one of two men who escaped with their lives, but requiring hospital treatment. He suffered from shock. Jacob Ellis, jr., whose father is missing, was suffering from severe burns and hospital authorities said their seriousness had not been definitely determined.

Two other employes on duty at the time of the fire escaped uninjured.

Railroad officials besides starting an inventory of the loss also directed the work of emergency crews at work restoring damaged properties adjacent to the elevator, especially pier 9, a coal loading pier. They expected to have it in operation tomorrow.

W. Virginian Held In Slaying of Kin

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). A murder warrant was issued today at Webster Springs against Henry Mitchell, 60, for the slaying of his stepson-in-law, Walter J. Harris, 40, restaurant proprietor there, last night following a fist fight in the restaurant.

There were no witnesses and a coroner's jury probed the tragedy today, finding that Harris was shot with a rifle by Mitchell.

Mitchell, when arrested, is alleged to have said "He beat me out of everything I ever had," but refused to admit the shooting.

Annapolis Jury Asks New Plan Of Accounting

Major Recommendation in Report Affects County Treasurer.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Modernization of the bookkeeping system in the office of the county treasurer was the major recommendation made in the report of the grand jury for the October term of the Anne Arundel County court, returned to Judge Francis Neal Parke.

The jury, through the foreman, William N. Crisp, declared they had found lawlessness at a minimum in the county, only a few minor offenses having been brought to their attention.

They recommended an amendment to the county beer and liquor licensing law requiring applicants for a license to post notice of their intention on the premises to be licensed for 30 days before a permit is granted. This would allow neighbors time to file protests if they so desired.

The jury reported that, in general, the county schools were in satisfactory condition, but recommended a new concrete floor and repairs to doors at the colored high school. They declared the jail was in excellent condition and the food good.

Gov.-Elect Nice Off For Week-End at Club

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Governor-elect Harry W. Nice of Maryland and a party of 16 Maryland friends will be guests over the week-end at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club, near Hancock.

The party passed through here tonight en route to the club, where they will be the guests of Henry P. Bridges, secretary-treasurer.

Dogs to Reign Today At 'Mart' in Virginia

Fredericksburg Exhibit and Trading Revives an Old Custom.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). Big dogs, little dogs, mutts and thoroughbreds will be bought, sold, traded and exhibited tomorrow when dog lovers here and from surrounding counties conduct the annual Dog Mart in the city park.

Revived from a custom instituted more than 300 years ago, when hunters traded their dogs for breeding purposes, the dog mart is being presented in its modern form under the auspices of the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce.

Exhibition of all dogs will be conducted at 12 noon, and will be followed by trading and an auction sale. Prize ribbons will be awarded in several classes.

Entrants will be divided into two classes, puppies and grown dogs. Three prizes will be awarded for each breed of dog exhibited. A special "mutt show" will be staged in addition to the breeded competition, with only those dogs eligible who possess two or more strains. Prizes will be awarded in the latter class for the best "just dog."

More than 200 dogs are expected to be entered in the mart. Entrants must register at the mart booth before noon tomorrow before participation in any of the day's events.

ABC Board Resists U. S. Profits Levy

Commonwealth Also to Protest Payment of License Fees.

Delays Its Formal Plea Against Taxes on Permits.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board will resist, through the attorney general, not only the payment of Federal income taxes on profits, but will protest payment of Federal wholesale and retail license fees now being paid, it was learned today.

Asked whether the payment of the license levies would prejudice the State's case on the income tax issue, T. McCall Frazier, member of the board, said that he does not think so, and that the State will contest the payment of all Federal levies.

"In the hurry of organization it was found," he said, "that a formal protest against the license taxes would complicate matters to a most awkward degree.

"The code restrictions prohibiting the sale by distillers to unlicensed distributers, and retailers, also provided complications which we decided made it necessary to pay the license taxes and argue them later."

The State has paid the Federal Government $25 annual license fee on each of the 65 State liquor stores, the same license paid by all dealers licensed by the State to sell beer and wine. The State also has paid $100 wholesale license covering operations of its central warehouse in Richmond.

The Commonwealth's formal protest against the claim that it should pay Federal income taxes upon profits has been acknowledged by N. B. Early, jr., collector of internal revenue here, and is being referred to the Internal Revenue Bureau in Washington, Attorney General A. P. Staples was informed.

Along the Tri-State Trail

Virginia sportsmen finished oiling their boots and had their first day of hunting yesterday as the duck season opened. Fowl shooting will be limited greatly this season because of a number of new restrictions the State conservation commission has introduced to protect migrating birds. Shooting of various geese and ducks that pass through Virginia will be permitted Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays for ten consecutive weeks. Hunters who have baited grounds in the upper tidal rivers will confine their hunting to ducks in flight.

Up in Hagerstown, Md., Robert Kountz bet Guy Brewster that Gov. Ritchie would be reelected. The "stake" was a ride through the public square in a wheelbarrow. So as soon as the last returns were counted, Brewster did the riding and Kountz the pushing.

Near Danville, Va., a night crew as well as a day crew have been put to work to complete a gas station as soon as possible. Lawyers are considering whether legal restrictions will prevent its being built. In the meantime, builders are doing all they can to finish so the decision will be "too late."

Oddities of the election are still coming in. Barbour County, W. Va., found that Howard McDaniel and Troy Stemple, candidates for county commisisoner, were equally popular with local voters. Each polled 3,387 votes.

Frank C. Richter, landscape engineer of the Virginia Highway Commission, is at work on a plan to make Virginia's roadways the most beautiful in the country. He recently declared it was the intention of the highway department to thoroughly landscape Virginia's principal thoroughfares. Trees would be planted and all of Virginia's natural beauties exploited to attract motorists from all over the East.

HERE'S THE DIFFERENCE between Florsheims and Ordinary Shoes!

● No matter how well a shoe is made it can be no better than its leather. That's why Florsheim uses only the finest imported and domestic skins.

But that is not enough. The outer edges of a skin are always thinner, rougher, and more apt to split and tear . . . so Florsheim uses only the heart of the hide. Strong, smooth, luxurious leather that can take hard punishment without losing its fine appearance.

As a matter of fact, that's one of the reasons why Florsheim Shoes are better, why they keep their good looks longer . . . just part of Florsheim's policy of sticking to fine lasts, fine leathers and fine labor.

Helen Hayes Transfers One of Her Most Telling Impersonations to Fox Screen

Scores in Play By Barrie Done Into Fine Film

Duke Ellington on Stage; Buddy Rogers at Earle; Other Programs.

"WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the stage play by Sir James Matthew Barrie, adapted to the screen by Monckton Hoffe, John Meehan and James K. McGuinness, starring Helen Hayes, with Brian Aherne, Madge Evans, Lucile Watson, Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp, David Torrence and Henry Stephenson. Directed by Gregory La Cava. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By Nelson B. Bell.

It is to the further credit of a soaring cinema that a play of distinguished authorship that has engaged the stellar attention of two of the most brilliant actresses of the native stage should be translated into terms of celluloid drama without appreciable loss of its simple romanticism, quaint humor and intense appeal to the most fundamental and responsive emotions of the human heart.

"What Every Woman Knows," by Sir James Matthew Barrie, first played on the American stage by Maude Adams and later revived with no less resounding acclaim with Washington's own Helen Hayes in the role of Maggie Wylie, has been converted into a film that reflects the same punctilious attention to the minutest details of authentic reproduction as characterized Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's recent triumphant adventure with Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

The transcription has been accomplished with something more than mere skill, a respectful regard for Barrie's original work and a deeply sympathetic approach.

A Play of Simple Appeal.

This is no play of glamour, flamboyant effects and fire. It is the simple recital of the indispensable part a modest little wife, slightly older than her husband, played in the shaping of his career as a rising young politician and eventual member of Parliament.

By the drama's extremely lucid disclosures, the title comes to mean that "what every woman knows" is that no man engineers his career exclusively himself and that his abysmal egotism is the only joke upon which the members of the distaff side may rely for an occasional escape from their menfolk's smug complacency.

"What Every Woman Knows" is no play to be seen by any man in search of a bit of flattery. It makes him out a consummate ass—which he probably is. But the whole sum and substance of the story is set forth with such disarming naivete, such whimsical charm and such commanding logic that it takes its place among screen plays, just as it did among those of the stage, as an exhibit calculated to interest the most discriminating intelligence that lends itself to the scrutiny of shadow drama.

Miss Hays Triumphs.

Helen Hays, in the role of Maggie Wylie, the canny little Scot who becomes the wife of John Shand, through a shrewd bargain put through by her father and two brothers, repeats the enormously effective performance of the role that brought her fame on the stage. She is plaintive, gently amusing and commanding, by turns, and, in close-up, reveals that remarkable interpretative faculty that has elevated her to a position of enviable importance among the foremost of the theater's artistes.

Brian Aherne, as John Shand, the young man who would never have amounted to anything worth mentioning without the aid of his wife, has the first worth-while assignment that has been his in pictures. He here reclaims something of the distinction that accrued to his interpretation of the role of Robert Browning with Katharine Cornell in the stage version of "The Barretts."

There is not, as a matter of fact, an inferior performance in "What Every Woman Knows." Especially happy is the impersonation of La Comtesse by Lucile Watson. Scarcely less effective are the portrayals of Henry Stephenson, Donald Crisp, David Torrence and Dudley Digges in the male roles of secondary interest. Madge Evans is a picturesque and strangely likable Lady Sybil, as the "menace" threatening the domestic tranquility of the Shands.

Ellington Occupies Stage.

The stage portion of the new week's entertainment is contributed exclusively by Duke Ellington and his famous orchestra, assisted by the Four Blazers, a quartet of extraordinary dancers; Ivie Anderson, singer of torch songs, and that loosely articulated exponent of questionable flexibility, Earl "Snake-Hips" Tucker.

In their gentler legato melodies—such as "Sophisticated Lady," "Mood Indigo," "Solitude" and some of the others—Duke and his boys, to me, are incomparably fine. In some of their livelier dissonances, when every rule of musical composition and interpretation is ravaged, it seems to me they are pretty terrible. Audience reaction, however, not to mention my own final estimate of the technical proficiency of their work, is all in their favor—particularly when the Duke is doing his solo piano passages.

Ivie Anderson stops the show with such items as "Rhythm" and "Give Me a Man Like That," and the double-jointed Mr. Tucker writhes all over the place to vast public response.

The elaborated and adroitly contrived new form adopted by the Fox Movietone News, enunciated by Lowell Thomas; orchestral prelude, with Max Zinder conducting while Phil Lampkin birthdays, and a Community Chest film that is too long by half complete a bill that presents a slightly daring and irreconcilable combination of Barrie and Harlem—divergent elements of entertainment that it is practically impossible to weld successfully.

Miss Landi Goes Temperamental

A new portrait study of Elissa Landi, as she appears in the role of the temperamental prima donna in Paramount's film version of Brock Pemberton's stage success, "Enter Madame." Miss Landi's temperamentalism, it should be made clear, is merely by way of making her performance in this picture the best she ever has brought to the screen, according to all reliable advance report.

Earle

"GENTLEMEN ARE BORN." First National picturization of a story by Robert Lee Johnson, adapted to the screen by the author and Eugene Solow, featuring Franchot Tone, Jean Muir, Margaret Lindsay, Ann Dvorak, Ross Alexander and Nick Foran, with Marjorie Gateson, Charles Starrett and Arthur Aylesworth. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Reviewed Friday morning by Isabel Harraman Mangum.

Buddy Rogers, as youthfully charming as in the days of his cinema fame, heads the stage show at Warner Brothers' Earle this week, with an orchestra known as the California Cavaliers and a hodgepodge entertainment of varying degrees of merit.

On the screen is the story of what life can do to four boys. It is a simple story, simply told and with all the sombre connotations of life's frustrations, sorrows and small compensating joys.

Bob Bailey, Thomas Martin, the scion of the house of Harper, and just plain "Smudge," the university's football star, are the four lads who are presented with diplomas, congratulations and a graduating speech which assures them that they are being sent out into the world "to make of yourselves what you choose."

Diploma Is Doubtful Asset.

They soon discover that their college education has no intrinsic value. Young Harper is taken into his father's brokerage office, but the others do not fare so well. Bob Bailey struggles along as a catch-as-catch-can newspaper reporter; Thomas Martin's visions of becoming a famous architect are molded into the reality of a file-clerk's job in an architect's office; "Smudge" is the least fortunate of the quartette. Unable to get a job as a coach in a college or high school, he digs ditches, drives trucks, picks up prize-fight jobs for an occasional ten dollars.

But somehow they exist—and not alone exist, but learn to laugh and love as well. Tom finds his Trudy and marries her. "Smudge" is loved by Susan, who smilingly bears the burdens of them both. Bob aspires to the debutante sister of young Harper—and over the whole story hangs the grim reality of life itself. It is a bit drawn out and overly long, perhaps, but there are gay moments and human moments and the underlying assurance that there is something wrong with our social and economic systems. But what to do about it is not explained and nothing is proved but the fact that all education is preparatory and that it is life that gives the finals, not the college.

Cast Is Well Chosen.

Franchot Tone makes Bob Bailey human and interesting; Ross Alexander, as Thomas Martin, is the spirit of exuberant youth; "Smudge" is understandingly portrayed by Nick Foran, and Jean Muir, as Trudy; Ann Dvorak, as Susan; Margaret Lindsay, as the Harper debutante, and an exceedingly excellent supporting cast satisfactorily smooth out any jerkiness in plot.

To get back to Buddy Rogers and his longish stage presentation, as an object of rapturous feminine glances Buddy has a particular appeal. Men like him, too—he's an exceedingly likable young man; but frankly, as a master of ceremonies and an orchestra leader, Buddy leaves something to be desired. His presentations border too much on the burlesque this trip. Emily Van Loesen's first dance and Jack Douglas' complete performance might have stepped right off the stage of Mr. Lake's famed Gayety.

Jeannie Scores Again.

Jeannie Lang's singing is always a treat and she does a neat "Sweetie Pie" number and a nice duet with Maestro Rogers.

The three Rhythm Rascals are amusing and we like to hear Buddy sing and do his versatile stunt with all the instruments of the band. His arrangement of "When Day is Done" is especially good and his theme song, "My Buddy," is cleverly done—which all in all makes his act a puzzling mixture of pretty good and pretty bad, sadly in need of a "big time" smoothness and polish.

A Paramount News and a Merrie Melodie animated cartoon, entitled "Rhythm in the Bow," complete the program.

"THE MERRY WIDOW." M.-G.-M.'s picturization of the Franz Lehar operetta, starring Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald, supported by Una Merkel, George Barbier, Minna Gombell, Edward Everett Horton and Sterling Holloway. Directed by Ernst Lubitsch. Reviewed, second week, by Dorothea Lewis.

It sparkles like champagne, this new "Merry Widow," with its beloved old music.

It's gay, it twinkles, it twirls, it has nice staccato moments of high farce; it's beautiful, it's funny, and it has its heroic tongue in its cheek.

It has Chevalier, again his enthusiastic, smiling, explosive self. It has a lovelier and a better Jeanette MacDonald. It has that minx of a Una Merkel (prettier than the widow), King George Barbier and his crown wrapped in newspapers; Edward Everett Horton; that hay-wispish Sterling Holloway, and the grand Maxim girls.

What more could any one want?

What of the Old One?

"The old Merry Widow?" you say. That serious, sentimental study about a Danilo who spilled soup on his lady's dress as a prelude to persuasive romance? (You do remember that Gilbert-Murray scene, don't you?)

Oh no, you pro and conners—remember the old with fondness, but welcome the chuckles of the new.

It is pure delight to watch Mr. Lubitsch unfold his directorial genius in this. There is not a touch forgotten, a laugh missed, nor a discordant note. And Lubitsch is learning to master omission of detail as well—there's very little "too much" here. There is loveliness in the settings and in the waltz scenes, but not enough grandeur to destroy the deliciously silly little fable.

Those Penguins!

Of course, no make-believe penguin—not even a Walt Disney one—could be nearly so nice and so funny and so cluck-at-able as a real one, but after our first faint disappointment at the Disney penguins, on view in "Peculiar Penguins," we decided they were probably the very best we could do this side of Little America or the Zoo. The bright little fish are nice, too.

Pete Smith's sport reel, "Dartmouth Days," has a good malequartet to end it in a burst of college harmony, and the newsreel completes a bill that is great fun.

"JUDGE PRIEST." Fox picturization of stories by Irvin S. Cobb, starring Will Rogers, with Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Berton Churchill, Henry B. Walthall, David Landau, Stepin Fetchit, Rochelle Hudson, Frank Melton, Roger Imhof, Charles Grapewin, Francis Ford and Brenda Fowler. Directed by John Ford. Reviewed (return engagement) by W. A. Whitney.

In "Judge Priest," a homely story of a Kentucky judge who believes in the legal philosophy that the spirit of the law is more to guide judicial opinion than a strict adherence to the letter, Will Rogers finds his most congenial vehicle, one which, paradoxically, permits him to act as the correlating agency for the entire action, but at the same time not necessitating that he dominate the picture.

To be sure, the entire superstructure of "Judge Priest" would probably fall without the talents of Mr. Rogers, yet he has not appeared in any picture where the members of the supporting cast are, narratively speaking, his equals.

Cast Is "Keyed Up."

The whole company seems to be imbued with the spirit of the occasion, each individual turning in a performance which he has seldom equaled. And, further, the picture is entirely built to this end, affording each person, somewhere in the course of the story, the opportunity to present a stellar delineation.

Young love is portrayed by Tom Brown and Anita Louise; the villainy (or what passes for it), by Roger Imhoff and Frank Melton, against David Landau, and the climactic courtroom scene engineered by Mr. Rogers and Henry B. Walthall. The somnolescent Stepin Fetchit and Francis Ford (the incomparable "Juror No. 12"), furnish the lustier moments of comedy. Berton Churchill is fine as Senator Maydew, and Brenda Fowler is the straight-laced sister of Judge Priest.

Support and Supplementaries.

The supporting program, also imported from Loew's Palace Theater, is headed by Will Mahoney in "She's My Lilly," a highly diverting musical-dance subject; "Holland in Tulip Time," Technicolor's iridescent capturing of blossom time in The Netherlands; "Your Neighbor's Needs," the Community Chest subject, and a release of the Metrotone News.

Leader Named By Volunteers In Relief Work

Mrs. C.A. Goldsmith Heads Committee; Individual Service Is Goal.

Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith was elected chairman of the volunteer committee of the emergency relief division at a meeting yesterday in the office of the Board of Public Welfare in the District Building.

Mrs. Florence Huff, director of personnel and training of the emergency relief division, was named secretary. Mrs. Goldsmith is chairman of the emergency relief committee of the Welfare Board.

Election of officers was accompanied by adoption of a plan of operation recommended by the planning committee named at the first meeting representative of church, charitable, civic and business associations.

Individual Service.

"The plan," in the committee's own words, "is primarily one of individual service of volunteers to help the individual families on relief. This activity will not take the place of work done by the case workers and case aids employed on the staff, but it will supplement their work and increase the services offered to clients.

"From this contact it is hoped that a wider understanding of the limitations of the emergency relief program will be spread throughout the city, that more sympathy for the unemployed and their problems will be created, that better cooperation with local groups will be secured and that generally the Emergency Relief Division can spread its service to those who need it most."

Applicants for volunteer service are to communicate with Mrs. Huff at relief headquarters, Fifth and H streets northwest, telephone District 2985.

The new volunteer service, it was said, "does not envision a broad plan to cover all fields of community social service as that field is covered by the excellent volunteer bureau of the Council of Social Agencies.

Special Need.

"There is, however, a special need for volunteers for the sole purpose of aiding the citizens of Washington who through no fault of their own 'because of unemployment and emergency,' have been forced into the emergency relief rolls. The first and most important kind of service for which volunteers are needed is direct contact with families."

Persons selected for this work must be "mature, of sound judgment and of discretion, who can be trusted not to reveal the confidences which are placed in them and who are possessed of personal and social resources," it was said.

Volunteer work is not to be used as a stepping stone to a job in the emergency relief division, it was said. The volunteer should plan a long-continued relationship with the family adopted, "free from self-seeking on her part."

Metropolitan

"ONE NIGHT OF LOVE." Columbia picturization of a story by Dorothy Speare and Charles Beahan, starring Grace Moore, with Tullio Carminati, Lyle Talbot, Mona Barrie and Louis Albernt. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Reviewed (return engagemnt, fourth week) by W. A. Whitney.

"One Night of Love" is still on view and will be through next Thursday, but, due to the management's utter disregard of the word "positively" last week, no promises of complete finality will be put forth here.

Anyway, so long as Grace Moore and her excellent supporting cast remain, the attraction at the Metropolitan will continue to be a strong competitor for the public's patronage. To have missed "One Night of Love" would be to have missed probably the finest musical ever filmed.

Ostensibly, only six days now remain in which to avail oneself of this incomparable delight, so hurry, you who have not seen it, for surely a single visit will not suffice.

An organlogue by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, a cartoon and the combined releases of Universal and Paramount News complete the bill.

Assisting in arrangements for the In-Com-Co Club's annual Harvest Moon party Tuesday are these two fair Interstate Commerce Commission employes. Left, Mrs. Jena De Imhoff Young, of Sedalia, Mo., holds a responsible position in the Chief Counsel's Office. Mrs. Young attended the University of Missouri, where she was a member of Alpha Phi Alpha Sorority. Right, Miss Hedwig Eyle, who besides being an ace stenographer, has exceptional talents in music, poetry, classical dancing and painting. Miss Eyle is a New Yorker.

By Morgan Baker.

AS ALL utility matters are of greatest interest to Interstate Commerce Commission employes, the annual convention of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners here next week, beginning Monday, will draw an enthusiastic attendance from ICC Building.

BAKER.

The ICC has long been an honorary member of the association, and it was announced this year that it had been adjoined by the members of the new Communications Commission and the Federal Power Commission.

While technical matters will engage most of the time of the commissioners, a social program has been placed on the convention's schedule. This is being sponsored by the In-Com-Co Club of ICC under direction of William A. Roberts, people's counsel of the District, who was named general chairman of the convention's entertainment committee.

The In-Com-Co Club's biggest social event of the year, the Harvest Moon Dance, has been timed to coincide with the dates of the convention and will be held Tuesday night at the Willard Hotel.

Under chairmanship of Harold M. Brown, a committee consisting of W. H. Barrington (F), Miss Emily J. Carey (P), G. A. Casey and R. R. Shaw will be in charge of a program commencing with a huge reception in the main ballroom.

The committee also will be in charge of arranging for guides and tours around Washington and nearby points of interest for the visitors.

Mr. Roberts is calling up officers of the various State societies to assist in entertaining delegates from their respective States.

Reclassification, one of the major objectives of the Federal Society of Translators, was brought to the front at the society's meeting this week at the Y. W. C. A., when it directed Miss Bluma Karp (C), Navy, to determine what the American Federation of Government Employes plans to do about this matter. This action was taken on the motion of Burton H. Lamore, State, who also urged inquiries as to the status of other resolutions.

Promotions at Agriculture.

Dr. M. A. McCall and Dr. E. C. Auchter have just been appointed as assistant chiefs of the Bureau of Plant Industry by Frederick D. Richey, chief. Both occupy important positions in the bureau, Dr. McCall as head of the Division of Cereal Crops and Diseases, and Dr. Auchter, as head of the Division of Fruit and Vegetable Crops Diseases.

In addition to their new duties, both will continue to direct the work of their respective divisions. H. E. Allanson, who as assistant chief of the bureau, has been in charge of the administrative operations for the bureau, will continue in the same capacity with the title of business manager.

Three scientists at Naval Research Laboratory, Albert H. Taylor (F), Leo C. Young (P) and Lawrence A. Hyland (C), have collaborated on the invention of an aircraft determination system which they have just invented. Their apparatus determines the altitude of a ship by the intensity of reception.

If your name is followed by F, P or C, call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to (F) Loew's Fox (stage, Duke Ellington's Orchestra and other acts; screen, Helen Hayes in "What Every Woman Knows"); or to (P) Loew's Palace (second week of Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier in "The Merry Widow"); or to (C) Loew's Columbia (Will Rogers in "Judge Priest").

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Psoriasis.

MOST skin diseases, although unsightly and annoying, are not dangerous in the sense that they destroy life. The widespread skin affection known as psoriasis has, on the whole, baffled the efforts of medical science. The condition may appear in more than one member of a family and is generally regarded as hereditary.

The disease usually manifests itself as small, reddish, slightly raised areas that are covered with white scales. The areas enlarge, forming scaly patches, and may, as the process advances, cover a considerable portion of the body. There is little or no pain, but itching sometimes occurs. The chronic character of psoriasis is well known to all sufferers. There are periods in which the skin lesions will practically disappear, only to reappear some months later. Many patients have observed that the scaling is much worse following fatigue, loss of sleep, or symptoms of indigestion. Others note that the lesions may practically disappear subsequent to an attack of acute diarrhea lasting for several days.

Some time ago attention was called to the good results that often follow the use of rather heavy doses of calcium in the treatment of psoroasis. Within recent months announcement was made by Prof. O. Gruetz, of Germany, that psoriasis appears to be essentially a disease of fat metabolism. His theory is based upon the fact that fatty substances are excreted into the skin with production of the typical scaling. Although this phenomenon was described earlier, its apparent significance had escaped attention.

Prof. Gruetz and Prof. Buerger, of Bonn, have made accurate determinations of the fat content of the blood in a large number of patients suffering from psoriasis, with the result that they find in these persons a much higher level of blood fat than in normal individuals.

It is entirely possible that the remedies ordinarily used in combating psoriasis, namely, preparations of arsenic, applications of tar and chrysarobin to the skin, the use of calcium, the employment of thyroid substance, the use of sunlight and ultraviolet, may all have had some influence upon fat metabolism.

The plan of treatment suggested by Prof. Gruetz resolves itself into a well-nigh complete elimination of fats, oil, cream, butter, cheese, etc., from the diet. The reduction is so complete that the diet contains less than 1 ounce of fat per day. The normal calory requirements of the patient are supplied by added amounts of carbohydrates and proteins. There appears to be little danger of serious loss of weight, even after weeks or months on a low fat diet. With a trial of the plan the individual patient may find that there is a certain minimum fat intake that will hold the disease in check and at the same time not be accompanied by weight loss.

Psoriasis is so stubborn and disagreeable that the results of the diet recommended will no doubt be followed with considerable interest by both physicians and patients. A reduction of even one-half of the normal fat intake may show sufficient amelioration to prove the contention that fat metabolism is at the bottom of the difficulty. At any rate, the fact remains that the blood fat in patients suffering from psoriasis is found to be 40 per cent above normal, and that reduction in the fat circulating in the blood is followed by improvement in symptoms.

Depression.

B. M. writes: You recently had an inquiry from F. F. on the subject of manic-depressive insanity. I would like to tell you my experience. Several years ago my husband became run-down, nervous, irritable, and lost his appetite. He could not sleep. Things got worse, but he refused to see a doctor and insisted he would commit suicide. It soon became evident he was suffering from a mental sickness, and a doctor of that branch of the medical profession recommended confinement in a State hospital, as we could not afford a private sanatorium. Nothing was done to determine if a physical sickness was causing the mental condition. Finally, after six hopeless months of waiting for improvement, I happened to read a book on mental sickness and the cause. This book outlined the part abscessed and ulcerated teeth, etc., play in mental sickness.

I had my husband's teeth X-rayed and found that all but a few were abscessed and infected. The teeth were removed and he steadily became better. A month later he was discharged as recovered. He has been home for over a year now and has never had a relapse.

REPLY.

In any and all cases of mental disease a physical basis should be searched for. There are many cases similar to the one you describe. You are to be congratulated.

Second Attack Made on Jury

Man Indicted for NRA Violation Challenges True Bill.

Charging the grand jury that indicted him for allegedly violating the provisions of the NRA relating to the number of hours employes could be worked weekly was illegal because one of its members held a contract with the Government, Russell F. Barrett, filling station operator, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to dismiss the indictment.

Through his attorney, Barrett informed the court that Mrs. Elizabeth G. Downey, a member of the grand jury, held a contract with the HOLC by which her property on Georgia avenue was refinanced. This, he held, made her service invalid and rendered the indictment a nullity.

The same argument was made earlier in the week by attorneys representing Sam B. Beard. No ruling of the court has as yet been made on either case.

Mrs. Downey was released from further grand jury service Thursday. Yesterday Justice Oscar R. Luhring, sitting in criminal court, swore in Wallace C. Powell, 100 C street southeast, to take her place.

Park Savings Suit Hits RFC

Transactions Between Two Illegal, Depositor Charges.

An accounting of the financial transactions between the closed Park Savings Bank and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was sought in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Cora G. Windmuller, 3165 Eighteenth street northwest, a depositor.

She charged that the bank's charter having expired August 30, 1929, the officers and directors should have terminated the bank's business, using the assets to meet all claims. Instead, she said, the bank continued to operate, and it collapsed in 1933.

Because of the expiration of the charter, she said, the various transactions between the bank and the RFC were unlawful. She demanded that collateral placed with the RFC to secure loans made to the bank, which, she said, were dissipated, be returned to the receiver of the bank for distribution among the creditors.

Attorneys William E. Richardson and E. Hilton Jackson filed the suit on behalf of the petitioner "and all others similarly situated."

Huey's Prides Due for a Fall; He Can't Rule Bounce of Ball

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Dr. Huey Long, the eminent scholar, pedagogue, humanist, theologian and statesman, is carrying an awful lot of eggs in one rather brittle basket, the same being the Louisiana State University football team coached by our old friend, Biff Jones, late of West Point.

The good doctor evidently has had little experience in football teams or he would be a little more careful with his challenges to the world. The only time to shout defiance to the world is at the end of a tough schedule, not in the middle of it.

This foot ball is a very queer game, and some very queer things happen in it. The football itself, to begin with, has a funny shape and is not to be trusted for a minute. It is nobody's friend. One minute it will run like a rabbit for the enemy's goal line, a friendly and helpful gesture. The next it will be bouncing crazily back toward your goal line at a most inconvenient time, just when you are trying to kick your way out of the coffin corner.

Defeat Is Lurking.

The wizard of New Orleans has performed many astounding miracles, but he has still to legislate the bounce of a football. And many a game is won or lost on just that.

From the recrods, Dr. Long has procured an excellent football team for his coach, but even such perfect professional machines as the New York Giants or the Chicago Bears or the Green Bay Packers have their off days and suffer defeat. I am afraid that before the season is over, what with the suicide schedule that L. S. U. is playing, Dr. Long may regret not having invested in TWO football teams. There is yet time.

Somewhere along the line, the Louisianans are going to get their ears pinned back to their skulls. It might even happen this very day when Dr. Long's team, within two hours flight of the Metropolis, is engaging a band of collegians playing for a school known as George Washington University, in Washington, D. C.

Ambition Seizes G. W.

This game is listed as a sort of a breather for the L. S. U. team and Dr. Long did not deem it necessary to have his personality there to stimulate his athletes. And that is the kind of game to worry about. George Washington, until recently, was a school about in a class with Temple. Then ambition seized it as it did Temple and it began looking around for football players interested in acquiring a knowledge of reading and writing with a dash of the classics. Last week George Washington held Vanderbilt even on touchdowns, losing 6 to 7. Vandy is no slouch.

The Stanford squad I saw work out for the Rose Bowl game last Christmas was the finest looking football team I have ever laid eyes on, bar none. But it did lose to Columbia in that New Year's day game, and they still do not know how it happened. Dr. Long is not a lucky man. I am afraid he began uttering challenges just a little too soon. And he still has Tennessee, Tulane and Oregon to beat.

I am really torn between two desires. I wish very much to see Dr. Long's fusileers come through their season unbeaten so that he will favor us with a post-season visit up North here, and at the same time I am vastly intrigued at the prospect of the good doctor cast down in defeat. What will he do? What can he do?

Rockne Comes to Mind.

There comes to mind the best (and oftenest told) of the Rockne stories which had to do with a speech the late Maharajah of all coaches was making at a banquet in which he calmly referred to Notre Dame's victorious and undefeated season. When a voice from the rear of the hall bellowed—"Hey, coach, wait a minute, what about the Carnegie Tech game?" Notre Dame having lost to Tech that year in a surprise upset, Rockne said calmly, "Ah, yes, gentlemen, I was coming to that. The Pope has annulled the Carnegie Tech game."

Will Dr. Long, if defeated, call upon the Governor of Louisiana or the Legislature to annul the defeat? Will he visit punishment on the young men who let him down at the very moment he had loosed the thunders of his challenges upon the Nation? Do you remember that long limb out on the end of which Bill Brown, of the New York Boxing Commission, once so precariously teetered? Do my eyes deceive me or is that Dr. Long, way out there on the tip?

The Firing Squad, Maybe.

This has been a bad year for football plans. Many a "big gate" game has been ruined by the curious fortunes of football and the unreliable behavior of the egg-shaped ball. I hope that Dr. Long has prepared the many facets of his spirit to receive this shock when it comes.

Otherwise, in a burst of choler, he might easily pronounce defeat as treason to the sovereign State of Louisiana, line up the miserable team with Capt. Biff Jones in the front rank before the rifles of his militia and say to the officer in charge—"Rid me of these canaille." I am all ears for news from the Washington front.

3 Big Games On Virginia Program

V. P. I. Faces N.C. State; Richmond to Oppose Davis-Elkins.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Virginia football will serve up a varied menu for the Old Dominion's sports followers tomorrow, with three games of major importance on the State's card.

If the faithful want to watch a battle for the State leadership they can move along to Charlottesville to see Washington and Lee's husky generals, the defending champions, match their fine eleven with the University of Virginia's Cavaliers.

If they want to see a Southern Conference game there's the meeting of Virginia Tech and North Carolina State at Norfolk with the embattled Techmen meeting a powerful combination coached by Hunk Anderson, of Notre Dame fame.

Spiders Play Senators.

If they want to see a couple of fast, powerful and apparently well-matched elevens, the State's Capital offers that attraction in the meeting of Richmond's Spiders and the Senators of Davis-Elkins in what may be the most keenly contested and exciting game on the program.

What the Spiders did to Cornell and Georgetown is pretty well known, but Davis-Elkins' light has been hidden under a figurative bushel. The Senators lost by a single point to a West Virginia Wesleyan team, which later trounced N. Y. U. They lost to Bucknell by a couple of touchdowns and dropped a 12-7 decision to West Virginia's strong eleven. They piled up commanding victory margins in other games.

Jack Dobson Shifted.

With Jimmy West nursing an injured shoulder, the Spiders have moved Jack Dobson from end to full back, where his triple threat abilities may be used to best advantage. He's a remarkable punter and a good passer and has been showing up well as a ball carrier in practice sessions this week.

Virginia Tech may not have power enough to match the line plunging of Ray Rex, State's pile-driving full back, but the courageous Gobblers on no occasion this season have disappointed the home folks who came to watch a closely contested football game.

Must Watch Trio.

Temple overwhelmed the Gobblers, South Carolina triumphed by three touchdowns over a crippled Tech eleven, but all other teams have found the going exceedingly rough. Duncan Holsclaw and Capt. George Smith, a pair of fine backs, and Red Negri, one of the State's outstanding linemen, are three lads the Wolfpack will have to watch.

Washington and Lee, triumphant over Tech after a great fourth-period uprising, should have easier going in its second State game, although the Cavaliers have a habit of playing their best football against the Generals.

Line Concededly Superior.

Washington and Lee line concededly is superior, but the Generals, run ragged by Navy passes a week ago, will have to watch out for the Cavaliers' aerials. Capt. Tommy Johnson, of the Virginia back field, who can run, kick or pass as his fancy and the situation at the time demand, may cause some worry.

Emory and Henry's Wasps will move over into West Virginia to play Marshall College. The State's three Chesapeake Conference members participate in league games. Randolph-Macon, the defending champion, will meet American University at Ashland, while Hampden-Sydney will engage Bridgewater's Eagles at Hampden-Sydney.

St. Charles High Ends Football Season Early

St. Charles, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). The St. Charles High School football team voted today to close its football season as it stands, and to immediately start basket ball practice.

The action followed Rogersville, Tenn., high's cancellation of a game scheduled with St. Charles today. Coach Ben Richmond, of St. Charles, also cancelled a game scheduled with Evarts, Ky.

Feature Tilt Is Slated at Syracuse

Hanson's Team to Meet Michigan State; Both Undefeated.

Navy Plays Notre Dame; Important Contests Dot Program.

THE grandest intersectional slate of the season features today's National football program, which is garnished additionally with several headline regional games like the Stanford-Washington melee on the Pacific Coast, according to the United Press.

The most significant intersectional brawl will be staged at Syracause, when Charley Bachman's powerful Michigan State eleven smashes into the strongest Syracuse University football team turned out during Vic Hanson's five-year regime. One of these outfits will be knocked off the unbeaten and untied list.

Other banner intersectional collisions are the Colgate-Tulane and Louisiana State-George Washington games in the East, and the Navy-Notre Dame and Pittsburgh-Nebraska meetings in the Midwest.

Today's hostilities may be outlined as follows:

East—In addition to the three banner intersectional meetings in which three undefeated teams invade the East, Michigan State, Tulane and Louisiana State, Georgia marches on the Yale Bulldogs and Oklahoma A. and M. invades Duquesne. In purely regional fighting, mighty Princeton has a pushover in Lehigh. Other unbeaten teams play the following opponents: Temple-Carnegie Tech., Tufts-Middlebury, and Trinity-Vermont. Army plays Harvard and Dartmouth engages New Hampshire. Fordham engages West Virginia, Columbia-Brown, Manhattan-Holy Cross and Pennsylvania-Penn State.

Midwest—Lieut. Tom Hamilton's Navy squad risks its perfect record against Notre Dame at Cleveland in the most important intersectional encounter. Another feature matches powerful Pittsburgh with the Nebraska Cornhuskers. In regional warfare, five Big Ten games are slated. Unbeaten Minnesota tangles with Indiana and undefeated Illinois stacks up against Northwestern. Other conference games pair Iowa-Purdue, Michigan-Wisconsin and Ohio State-Chicago. In the Big Six, Kansas State, a title contender, meets Missouri and Oklahoma squares off against Iowa State.

South—The only important intersectional melee in Dixie brings together Tulsa and Centenary. Three Southwestern Conference games pair Florida-Mississippi, Vanderbilt-Sewanee, and Tennessee-Mississippi State. In the Southern Conference, Washington and Lee, a title contender, meets Virginia; Maryland plays Virginia Military, and North Carolina State tackles Virginia Poly. Outside, undefeated Alabama tangles with Clemson; North Carolina opposses Davidson, and Wake Forest faces Duke.

Pacific Coast—Undefeated Stanford and Washington collide at Palo Alto in an encounter that will have prime significance as to the outcome of the conference race and the choice of a Rose Bowl defender. Other conference games bring together Southern California-California, Washington State-Idaho and Oregon-Oregon State. Outside, St. Mary's meets U. C. L. A. on Monday.

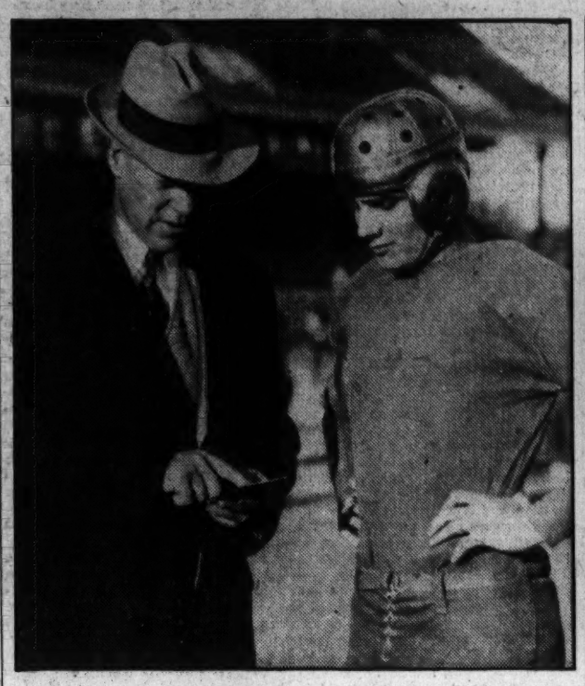
Southwest—The tension lets down somewhat, with three conference games slated. Unbeaten Rice engages Arkansas in the feature match; Southern Methodist meets Texas A. and M. and Texas plays Baylor.

Rocky Mountains—Drake invades Denver for an intersectional battle. Three conference games are scheduled in which the Utah Aggies risk their perfect record against the Colorado Aggies; Utah plays Colorado and Colorado College meets Brigham Young.

Chargers Are Hosts.

The Cleveland Chargers will play host to the Northeast Boys Club at the Friends Field on Wisconsin avenue at 2:15 p. m. tomorrow. The game is an important one of the 150-pound National Capital League.

Coaches Prime Their Aces for Griffith Stadium Fray Today



Coach "Biff" Jones, of Louisiana State U., discusses with Abe Micakl, his all-American back field hope, the plan of attack the Southerners will use against George Washington. Mickal has completed 21 of 43 passes attempted this season.

60,000 to See Notre Dame And Navy

Dry Weather Is Forecast for 8th Clash Today at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 9 (AP).—Two powerful forces in the football world, Navy and Notre Dame, swept into Cleveland today, finding conditions for their eighth encounter tomorrow far more suitable than when they last played here.

The weather forecast indicated tomorrow will be a dry day; the turf at Cleveland Stadium is in good condition; both teams, with few exceptions, are in excellent physical shape, and a crowd of at least 60,000 will see the game.

Each team went through a light workout at the stadium this afternoon.

Milchuta Replaced.

One change in the Notre Dame line-up was announced by Coach Elmer Layden today. John Milchuta, 210-pound tackle, whose leg was bruised at Pittsburgh last week, will be replaced by Harry Becker in the starting line-up.

Coach Tom Hamilton's Middies, with six victories so far this season, will make use of speed, deception and an open-work defense in the battle. Notre Dame, with plenty of power and considerable more weight, will be the strongest team the Navy has met.

Irish Have Series Edge.

Although the Irish have won six of the seven previous encounters, the Navy's first victory coming last year by a 7-to-0 score, the Middies' passing attack this year has made them one of the East's outstanding teams, and tomorrow's game is rated as a toss-up.

Hamilton brought a squad of 44 men, Layden a squad of 40. Nearly 2,500 students will arrive here before the game.

Probable line-ups:

Navy.	Position.	Notre Dame.

Long Georgetown Runs Defeat Roanoke, 20-0

SCORING twice in the final period on long runs, one with an intercepted pass, Georgetown ran roughshod over Roanoke last night at Griffith Stadium. The final score was 20-0.

The Hoyas broke the ice in the second period when Melgen, in position for an attempted placement from the 20-yard line, crossed up the Maroon and passed to Parcells on the goal line for the touchdown.

Parcells ran 72 yards for the second score after intercepting a Roanoke pass, thrown by Cook, on his own 28-yard mark. Joe Meglen place-kicked both added points. The third score was made by Joe Saverine, Georgetown captain, on a fake reverse through the right side of the line. He slid down the sidelines for 58 yards and the touchdown.

Roanoke elected to receive the first kick-off and Meglen kicked to Patrone, who returned the ball 10 yards to Roanoke's 30. The Maroon failed to gain, and Suttner kicked to Parcelle at midfield.

Georgetown brought the ball back to Roanoke's 20-yard line, where Roanoke held, and Joe Meglen tried a placement that was low. They exchanged punts before Parcells, Saverine and Meglen brought the ball back to Roanoke's 4-yard line. It looked as if the Hoyas were going to score, but Meglen fumbled and Miley, a reserve full back, recovered for Roanoke. They were battling at midfield when the first quarter ended.

Georgetown had the ball on Roanoke's 40 after the Maroon kicked in the second quarter. Four running plays made it first down on the 30. Parcells passed to Saverine for another first down on the 19. The Hoyas failed to gain through the air and Meglen dropped back for a placement kick, but crossed up the Virginians with a pass to Parcells, who took the ball going over the goal line. Meglen kicked the point afterward. Georgetown substitutes filtered into the line-up as the teams battled back and forth at midfield. Roanoke had the ball on Georgetown's 40-yard line as the half ended.

Georgetown kicked off opening the second half and Smith returned to the 30. Roanoke failed to gain and Suttner kicked to Parcells. Georgetown also failed to gain and they exchanged kicks. The period resolved itself into a session of line bucking, with honors about even. Late in the quarter Parcells fumbled Suttner's punt on the 17-yard line and Plank recovered for Roanoke.

In the fourth period Roanoke tried the line, but all avenues were closed. It went into the air, but the Hoyas batted down every pass. Another exchange of kicks gave Roanoke the ball on its own 18-yard line. Wroniewicz passed to Rice for a first down on the 40. Cook attempted to pass again, but the ball was intercepted by Parcells on his own 28 and he ran it back for the touchdown. Meglen kicked the extra point.

Meglan kicked off to Wroniewicz,

"Invite" L. S. U., Whaddayamean? Huey Long Asks

New Orleans, Nov. 9 (AP).—Football Expert Huey Long today declared that wherever his Louisiana State Tigers play a post-season game—that's where the "bowl" will be.

"I'm getting mighty tired of these sports-writer saying L. S. U. 'may be invited' here and 'may be invited there,'" said Football Expert Long, to use his new self-bestowed title.

"That's a lot of hokum and we resent that 'inviting business.' There's too many 'bowls' now—the rose bowl, the New York bowl, the sugar bowl, the cotton 'boll' and all the rest. Wherever we go, they'll be lucky we agreeded to play there."

"Because," summed up the "Kingfish" judiciously, "L. S. U. is the cherries, and wherever we play, that's where the bowl will be."

CONFIDENT of atoning for last week's 2-to-0 defeat by Western Maryland, Catholic University encounters Oglethorpe this afternoon at Brookland. The kick-off will be at 2 o'clock and the odds are 2 to 1 that sundown will find the Redbirds back on top of the winning bandwagon.

A punting duel between Tom Oliver, of C. U., and Frank Mitrick, of Oglehorpe, both full backs, looms as one of the fray's outstanding features. Against Western Maryland last week Oliver got off three prodigious kicks, one of which negotiated 95 yards over all.

The swarthy Redbird's punting average for the season is approximately 49 yards. Mitrick, however, will offer all of the competition Oliver can use if reports of his prowess are not amiss.

Has Averaged 5 Yards.

Rated the third best Southern full back this season, Mitrick is the spearhead of his team's attack, a triple-threater and high scorer for Oglethorpe this season. At running the ball, he has compiled an average of 5 yards per rush.

Catholic U., with a bevy of fleet backs, will stick to its running game for the winning points unless the husky line frustrates this mode of attack. The Cardinals, however, are prepared to go into the air should it be necessary, with Secino on the throwing end of the passes.

The same C. U. line-up that started against Western Maryland will hear the opening whistle today.

Oglethorp's record, its best in five years, is impressive. A 15-0 defeat by Auburn and scoreless tie with ABE MICKAL, one of the South's outstanding candidates for All-American honors, and his playmates from Louisiana State, one of the South's nominees for the Rose Bowl invitation, will be on exhibition this afternoon at Griffith Stadium beginning at 2 o'clock.

Tuffy Leemans, Washington's candidate for an All-American role, and his George Washington playmates will be on exhibition at the same park and same hour. A throng of approximately 25,000 fans, most of whom will be willing to wager 5 to 2 on "Biff" Jones' eleven, will be on hand for the festivities. It is George Washington's home-coming game.

Is Superthreat.

Just as Beattie Feathers, of Tennessee, swept through the enemy last season to national recognition, so this Mikals, a superthreat, is tearing along the grid highway to similar achievements this season. A highly polished player, the Tiger half back does everything but yodel between halves.

Leemans, who has borne the burden of G. W.'s attack thus far and constitutes its principal scoring threat this afternoon, will give Mickals and the fans a run for their money—a couple of runs if up to standard. Leemans has everything Mickals has excepting an L. S. U. uniform.

Strong on Passes.

Mickals' strong suit is forward passing, although there's nothing weak about his other abilities. He's only missed 3 points after touchdown in 26, kicking 18 in a row. His passes range from short flat ones over the line to long flies down field, and usually there is a man waiting for them.

Against Southern Methodist he threw one for 82 yards and another for a 72-yard gain, both for touchdowns. Then he kicked the points to gain a 14-14 tie with the Mustangs. All told he's thrown 43 passes and completed 21 for gains of 459 yards, or more than a quarter of a mile.

Adept Tosser, Also.

Coincidentally, Leemans is adept at chucking the leather, too, though not rated on par with Mickals in this one respect. Tuffy kicks and runs the ball and is a pillar of defensive strength. In a broken field he'll show the "war skule's" ace some fancy stepping and a couple of well-rounded heels.

Louisiana will match G. W. pound for pound in the line and possibly outweigh the Colonials in the back field. The George Washington line, incidentally, has not yielded a touchdown this season. All points charged against the downtown school have been made on passes.

Defensively, G. W. should hold its own; offensively, the Tigers will have a decided advantage. Fatherree, Sullivan and Cross have been invaluable to Mickals' advancing the ball. Should he be bottled up, as G. W. is planning, any one of his mates appears capable of leading the assault on the George Washington goal line.

Fatherree is the most dangerous

Commonwealth, at $15.70, Scores Surprise Victory in Pimlico's Feature Race

Older Horses Outrun by Juvenile

2-Year-Old, Trailer at Start, Circles Field to Annex Purse.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Writer).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 9. Commonwealth had the last say in the running of the Magothy Handicap, today's feature event at this race track. It was a case of the last shall be first for Commonwealth, a son of the famous Bostonian, trailed the field for three-quarters of the distance before coming to the front in a stretch drive with C. V. Whitney's heavily backed High Glee. Three parts of a length separated them at the wire. The tiring third horse was Okapi, the Brookmeade hope.

The people did not fancy Commonwealth to any great extent and the brown colt, the only 2-year-old in a field of near-stake and stake horses, rewarded with a $15.70 mutuel. In the saddle of the juvenile was the youthful Charlie Rosengarten and he did a good job of race riding.

Okapi Sets the Pace.

Okapi, winner of the Narragansett Special, set a swift pace, followed by High Glee, and along the back stretch it appeared that these two would fight it out for the main award. However, Rosengarten was saving ground with Commonwealth and, at the far turn, his pink shirt began to move around the leaders.

In the stretch, High Glee took the lead from the tiring Okapi but, Commonwealth, running in the center of the track, was taking two leaps to the Whitneyite's one and fairly bounded to victory. The time of 1:43 2-5 was commonplace.

Sonny Workman, the Washington, D. C., jockey, rode his first winner of the meeting in the fifth race. Rough Diamond, a C. V. Whitney representative, turned the trick under Workman's handling and paid a $16.40 mutuel. Rough Diamond, a gelded son of Mad Hatter, led the favorite, Beyond Doubt, to the wire by a head, with the slow-starting Brindle third, two lengths away. It was a two-horse race from start to finish between the Whitneyite and the public choice.

Red Shank Triumphs.

The day's steeplechase resulted in a victory for the favorite. Red Shank, at slightly better than even money, was restrained off the pace for a turn of the course, then went to the front and merely galloped to the finish line. He had a margin of two lengths over White Lightning and seven lengths over Making Bubbles. Slate turned in a nice riding exhibition on the winner.

The "chalk" players made it two in a row in the second race when Jim John barely lasted to take a nose decision from Headin' Home. Crowded Hours was third in the field of nine. Jim John was a meager $2.90 mutuel.

Judge Blake finally escaped from the maiden ranks in the third race. Under a good ride by Jockey Arcaro, the son of Hourless, strutted to the wire some three lengths in front of . J. Brennan, a 24-to-1 shot. Third money went to Gay Knighteess Judge Blake paid $8.70.

Knight's Gal by Head.

Another close finish marked the running of the fourth event and another favorite was added to the list of winners. Knight's Gal, earning her way as a representative of the Audley Farms, was a head better than Slapdash over the mile and a sixteenth course. Barn Swallow, the early pacesetter was third.

Stanford Star Found Injured After 3 Days

Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 9 (AP)—Discovered semi-conscious in his campus room after missing football practice three days, Charles G. Ledbetter, Stanford varsity full back, was in the Palo Alto Hospital today. Physicians said he was suffering from concussion of the brain.

Two weeks ago Ledbetter, understudy for Bobby Grayson, Cardinal back-field star, was kicked in the head. For a time he complained of headaches, but recovered and played against University of California at Los Angeles last Saturday, scoring a touchdown.

MAKING BUBBLES displayed unusual speed and held on well. NO FRILLS closed a big gap. TEAKWOOD lost rider. MOLLY O'MALLEY fell and LEI pulled up.

JUDGE BLAKE, going in his best form, assumed lead early, raced all opposition into defeat and drew away at end. M. J. BRENNAN, away well, was eased back in first quarter-mile, came with a rush in stretch. GAY KNIGHTESS moved up very fast around turn and was an easy third. TEN LAW broke well, but dropped back and finished fast. ARQUEFICATION showed good speed for half a mile, then quit.

KNIGHTS GAL in good form. She was rated along back of the pace to the top of the stretch, where she was sent up and into lead, but at the end had to be ridden hard to stall off the determined bid of SLAPDASH. The latter was timidly ridden all the way and was taken wide for entire trip. She finished very fast. BARN SWALLOW, rushed into lead, set a fast pace for seven furlongs, then tired, but hung on gamely. JABOT was never able to get up. FLAMING MAMIE was outrun.

COMMONWEALTH much the best. She broke very slow and trailed far back for the first three furlongs, began to move up in run down back stretch, came around field in final furlong and won going away at end. HIGH GLEE had no mishap. She was rated along to stretch, took lead, but could not stall off the winner's bid. OKAPI displayed unusual speed, rushed into lead, but tired in final furlong. CHATMOSS lacked early speed. MISS MONOA showed flash of speed. DARK WINTER tired badly in stretch.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—†CARBINA, $6.40, $2.30, $2.50; HAPPY GO, $2.40, $2.50; †GALLANT MAC, $2.50.

CARBINA, favored by the rapid pace supplied by the leaders, moved up steadily in the last three furlongs, then withstood a hard drive gamely to get up in the last 70 yards. HAPPY GO had a lot taken out of him racing ENTHUSIASM into submission and he weakened approaching the finish. GALLANT MAC, badly outrun for the first five furlongs, swung to the outside at the stretch turn and finished gamely. PERADVENTURE showed improvement without blinkers. BRIGHT PHANTOM went evenly. ENTHUSIASM had splendid speed for a half-mile, then stopped. The others were never factors.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. The LaPlata. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:58½. Winner, W. C. STONE MARTIN outran his field to the first turn, was rated in front until reaching home stretch, then came out smartly during the closing furlong. XANDRA, a prominent factor from the beginning, continued willingly in the final issue. MAJOR GENERAL was kept close up early and then held on resolutely in the final drive. FAIRLY WILD was going stoutly at the finish. VOLTA MAID weakened after reaching the home stretch. KIBITZER closed a good gap. MOUTHPIECE, very unruly, held up the start. He broke from the outside and raced well. The others were never contenders.

Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 9.

Dear Al:

I believe I called one. Equipoise will not start in the Riggs Handicap here tomorrow, in fact he's not even in the overnight entries. Trainer Healy says "Ekky" has a slight "filling" of his left leg, something that occurs from a slight internal hemorrhage. The horse hasn't gone lame, however, and may see action at Bowie. His absence makes today's Riggs just another race. Azucar is another which was forced to miss the $7,500 added race. Azucar was the victim of an ambitious, but reckless trip to Narragansett. After his victory at Laurel, he was shipped to New England and arrived too tired to run his real race. Azucar was then vanned back to this track and it is reported that equipment in the van fell on his leg and inflicted an injury. Like Equipoise, Azucar has as his winter objective the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap. "Just Helen" writes to ask the standing in money won between Equipoise and Sun Beau. The Whitney horse has $338,460 to his credit to $376,744 for the Kilmer star. Sun Beau is now living a life of ease at Remlik Hill, Va.

BILL.

First race—The overnight jockey lists reveal this as a hard race to figure. The worst jockeys are on the best horses and the worst horses have drawn the best jockeys. Despite the fact that the rather humpty-dumpty McGrath rides Tourist II, I'm forced to string along. This jumper appears to have found the spot that suits. Spinach will be at home in a field of this sort and may surprise. Tanaringo for the show.

Second race—Rustic Rest has several promising races as a recommendation in this maiden affair. Little Woman was heavily played on at least one occasion this fall and appears to be second best. Red Ribbon for the minor award.

Third race—Manager Bill is a rather consistent fellow these days and turned in a fine performance last out. Figures high in this field. Lawless Lady was stimulated when she won at Laurel, according to racing officials. She could be close here without any attention. Resurrection is far to sharp to be disregarded entirely.

Fourth race—Foxland Hall would be a hard horse to beat in if he wiggled off the also eligible list. The entry of Kozak and Diecaster will be ready if the top one makes mistakes. Rock Coventry is not outclassed in this company and may be heard from.

Fifth race—Tabitha ran well at Laurel and appears to be suited by conditions in this race. Bit of Sorrow and the slow starting Stegal to take care of the others.

Sixth race—I prefer the entry of Good Goods and Inlander in the day's features. Mr. Khayyam did well up in New England way, but may need a race. Watch Him showed evidence of form last out and may be the surprise.

Seventh race—Lealett showed a lot of speed behind better than these over at the other course. Has a fighting chance to upset the favorites. Church Call, the probable favorite, for the second money. Fizzaz to show.

Eighth race—Jamison was only kidding in that last race. Watch him burn the oil tomorrow. Keep Out and Speedmore for the place and show positions.

Gonzaga Scores Early in First Quarter, Holds to Lead to Upset Eastern, 7 to 6

Aerial Nets Margin for Victors

48-Yard March Brings Touchdown; Foe's Late Rally Is Futile.

HIGH SCHOOL football continued in Washington yesterday, with Coach Orrel Mitchell's fighting Gonzaga eleven upsetting Eastern High, 7 to 6, at Eastern Stadium. Rough, clean play marked the game. Neither team appeared affected by the official edict canceling the inter-high series and the hard tackling of good football obtained from start to finish.

The Gonzaga victory came as one of the major upsets of the local scholastic season. Eastern, undefeated in inter-high competition, and with a much better record than the Mitchell outfit, found its light opponents able to poke over a touchdown and an extra point in the first period and hold their lead until the end.

Held on 16-Yard Line.

Gonzaga staged a 58-yard march down the field soon after the opening whistle, but was held for downs on the 16-yard line. Eastern kicked out and Gonzaga then drove to a touchdown from its own 48-yard line. Curran and Durkin gained 10 yards on two plays, and a pass—Johnnie Boyle to Roach—put the ball on the Eastern 16. Durkin, on a reverse, made 4 yards and on the next play big Malcolm Leubkert, quarter back, skirted his right end for 12 yards and a touchdown. Leubkert passed to Curran for the seventh and what proved to be the winning point.

Shortly after the start of the second quarter, Eastern took the ball on downs, on the Gonzaga 39-yard line after Leubkert had been thrown for an 11-yard loss. Glenn (Hawk) Shaw, Chick DiJulian and Frank Principe led a drive to the 13-yard line. Shaw picked up 12 yards on three plays, but Principe was held for no gain on two plays from the 1-yard line. Shaw then went over for the touchdown. Charlie Brosnan, usually accurate Eastern place-kicking guard, missed his try for the extra point.

Threatens in Fourth.

Eastern threatened seriously in the final quarter when it penetrated to the Purple's 1-yard line, where the Mitchell men stopped the drive.

Eastern gambled on a field goal attempt, but Brosnan's kick went wide.

of the trio, and it is he, rather than Mickals, that many L. S. U. supporters expect to steal the individual laurels this afternoon.

George Washington tapered off yesterday after a strenuous week of practice, running through signals and rehearsing for the last time new plays to be used this afternoon. One change in the line-up was made by Head Coach Jim Pixlee—Bill Brewer for Sid Kolker at guard.

A 195-pound full back, Brewer was sent to guard to speed up the running attack. He makes a quicker getaway than Kolker and is the latter's equal at blocking.

Otherwise, the line-up will be the same that started against Vanderbilt last week.

Petersburg Trounces Franklin High, 33 to 0

Peretersburg, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—Petersburg High defeated Franklin High School, 33 to 0, here today. The visitors played a fine defensive game but were unable to stop a passing attack that netted three of the touchdowns.

Virginia Eleven Host Today To W. & L.

Seeks First Victory Over Generals Since 1930; Johnson Back.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—For the first time this season the University of Virginia will be treated to something approaching a big home football game when the Cavaliers attempt to turn back the favored Generals from Washington and Lee in Scott Stadium tomorrow afternoon.

Listed as the homecoming attraction, hundreds of alumni are expected to return hoping to see the Cavalier team score its first touchdown and victory over the Generals since 1930.

Capt. Tommy Johnson, Virginia's triple-threat back, will answer the opening whistle for the first time in a month, and if his injured shoulder holds up, the Generals will be confronted with all sorts of trouble. Coach Gus Tebell has developed an offense for this week based on passes, and more passes, forwards and laterals, with Johnson on both the throwing and receiving ends.

Strong Back Fields.

With Johnson leading his ball-carrying mates, Garnett, Fryberger and Berger, the Cavaliers will offer a back field considered equally as good as Washington and Lee's Mattox, Moore, Seaton and Bailey.

The probable line-ups:

Virginia.	Position.	Wash.-Lee.
Levy	L.E.	Ellis
Andrews	L.T.	Owings
Zimmer	L.G.	Berry
Hallett	Center	Glynn
Hoge	R.G.	Bonino

"Secret" Data on New Set-up At Virginia Due December 1

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). — The now famous "secret" report calling for the reorganization of University of Virginia athletics will be made public on December 1, it was announced today by President John Lloyd Newcomb.

The report was completed about two months ago by a special committee appointed to make a study of intercollegiate athletics with the aim of formulating a new set-up for Virginia. It was scheduled to come up before this week's meeting of the board of visitors, governing body of the university, but due to the absence of Frederic W. Scott, of Richmond, official action was deferred.

Carried On in Secret.

Members of the committee have carried on their work with utmost secrecy, and President Newcomb said today that the contents of the report are now being withheld in order to prevent possible "squabbles" during the football season. A great deal of alumni comment is expected.

It is understood that the recommendations of the committee call for the consolidation under one head of the physical training department, the department of intramural athletics, and the program of intercollegiate competition, thus bringing the regulation of intercollegiate sports more completely under faculty control.

May Be Relegated.

The principal change would be elimination of direct student and alumni participation in the forming of athletic policies. The athletic council, composed of faculty, alumni and student members, has for many years supervised intercollegiate activities, but under the new proposed set-up it is thought that this group would be shorn of its powers and relegated to an advisory capacity if it is retained.

Members of the committee who submitted the report are William H. White, jr., of Washington, chairman; Prof. Lawrence T. Ludwig, of the physical education department; Dr. John H. Neff, of the medical school; Prof. George B. Eager, of the law faculty; James G. Driver, director of athletics, and Christopher B. Garnett, of Cherrydale, member of the board of visitors.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Woodberry Forest Academy came through with a touchdown in the last five minutes of play to defeat Randolph-Macon Academy, 6 to 0, here today.

After fighting off two R.-M. A. advances to its 5-yard line, both in the last quarter, Woodberry staged an offensive in the closing moments to drive down the field for the winning touchdown.

W.-L. High Wins Over Luray Gridders

Triumphs, 26-6, After Foe Assumes Early Lead; Fifth of Season.

BALLSTON, Va. (Spl.).—Washington-Lee High School rang up its fifth victory of the season here today, vanquishing Luray High, 26 to 6.

The visitors jumped to a 6-0 lead in the first few minutes of play when they staged a touchdown march of 75 yards. After the Luray lads ripped off four first downs to place the ball on their opponents' 15-yard line, Campbell, half back, shot a pass to his fellow back, Baker, who snared the ball over the goal line.

In the next quarter, Baker fumbled for Luray on his own 20-yard line and Dick Apperson, W.-L. tackle, recovered. Orlando Birch, quarter back, slipped through tackle for 12 yards, and a pass from Birch to Jim Fixx, full back, put the ball on the 2-yard line. A 5-yard penalty for offside set the home team back, but Wade Boswell, W.-L. back, slammed to a touchdown from the 7-yard line. He place-kicked the extra point to give W.-L. the lead.

Makes 65-Yard Run.

Fixx ran back the kick-off starting the second half 65 yards, to the Luray 15, and Birch passed to Boswell on the next play for the second score. The third came not long afterward. A pass, Boswell to Fixx, gained 30 yards to start the march. Birch swept left end for 7 for the touchdown.

Ray Wheeler, substitute full back, galloped 50 yards for the last score in the final period after intercepting a pass. Luray never threatened after its opening touchdown.

C. U. Is Favorite In Battle Today

Howard are the only blemishes. Poor field generalship lost the Auburn game, and a pass missed behind the goal line cost the Petrels a victory over Howard.

Mitrick ripped Auburn's line to shreds. He carried the ball 40 yards on a 60-yard drive from beneath Oglethorp's goal line, and possibly would have carried it the remaining distance. But the quarter back called for a pass. It was intercepted and returned 75 yards for a touchdown.

Oglethorpe's line will be as large as Catholic's, with the weight more evenly distributed. The back field will be considerably lighter but as speedy.

Carver Stars, St. Alban's Wins, 19-2

Full Back Scores All Three Touchdowns Against Friends Eleven.

ST. ALBAN'S, warm contender for the prep school championship of Washington, kept its season's slate clean against local opposition by defeating Friends School, 19 to 2, yesterday afternoon on the Friends' field.

Zan Carver, versatile full back, was the big gun for the winners, not only scoring all three touchdowns, but paving the way for all of them with his running and passing.

The Saints were unable to score in the first period, but staged a 62-yard march in the second quarter with Carver ending it by scampering over for a touchdown on a 20-yard run. Charlie Soule, half back, rushed the extra point over.

Score Follows Fumble.

St. Alban's then kicked off and Friends fumbled on its own 30, the Saints recovering. A 10-yard pass, Carver to Finley, put the ball on the 2-yard line as the quarter back ran 18 yards through a broken field. Carver on the next play plunged over for the second touchdown.

Friends made its only score when the St. Alban's center, Henderson, passed wildly over the end zone from his own 5-yard line before the half ended. It was an automatic safety.

The Saints scored their third touchdown in the third quarter after an exchange of kicks. Taking the ball on the Friends' 35-yard line, the Albanites pounded to the 20. Carver twisted off left tackle for the score.

Alexandrians Win From Hopewell

Twins Near State Title With 13-6 Triumph; Shu Runs 65 Yds.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.). — Alexandria High School continued its march toward State football honors by downing Hopewell today, 13 to 6. This was the first victory the Twins have scored over the Powder City eleven in four seasons.

The driving of Varney and sweeping end running of Lee Fones and line bucking of Shu accounted for the Twins' first touchdown after Apperson had intercepted Pritchard's pass in midfield. Shu finally bucked over from the 2-yard line. Varney added the point with a drop kick.

After the kick-off, Fones intercepted another of Pritchard's tosses on the Twin's 35-yard line. Paul Shu, aided by excellent blocking by Jack Varney, then skirted his left end for 65 yards to score standing up.

Hopewell Eleven Scores.

Hopewell put over its only score in the last five minutes of play. Hammerlsley kicked to Hopewell's 20-yard line and Stewart downed Jones before he could take a step. Jones took the pass from center, faded back, and threw a 20-yard pass to Homer Dise, left end. Dise took the ball at top speed behind Alexandria's secondary and encountered no opponent between the 40-yard line and the goal line.

During the course of the afternoon the Twins line continually backed the visitors toward their own goal line and not once did the Hopewell running attack make a first down—the work of Fritter, Luckett, Saunders, Stewart and Beach in the Twins' forward wall.

Fones, Shu, and Varney divided the back field honors.

Pritchard and Dise were the biggest threats for Hopewell.

Lane Gridders Score Again, 12 to 6

Defeat Thomas Jefferson of Richmond to Stay in Unbeaten Class.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—Lane High School, undefeated this season, whipped Thomas Jefferson High, of Richmond, here this afternoon, 12 to 6.

The local eleven excelled in ground gaining, but the Capital City squad twice launched air attacks that threatened to pull the game out of the fire.

Lane registered a touchdown in the first quarter on a 75-yard march featured by spectacular runs by R. Deane and Payne, and added another in the second period, R. Dean dashing around right end to score.

A 40-yard pass, Moore to Lawless, netted the only touchdown for the visitors, who lost another chance to score in the third quarter when Sargent intercepted a pass on Lane's 4-yard line and raced to midfield.

Negri, V. P. I. Star, Banned On Protest

Star End Ousted After Virginia U. Reveals He Played at Vermont.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Nov. 9 (AP). Warren A. "Red" Negri, All-Conference end and Conference heavyweight boxing champion at Virginia Tech, today was declared by the faculty chairman of athletics to be ineligible to compete in sports.

The ruling followed receipt yesterday of information given by athletic authorities at the University of Virginia that Negri had played freshman football in 1929 at the University of Vermont.

Called at once before the coaches and faculty chairman, Negri admitted playing in Vermont, apologized and voluntarily wrote a statement absolving from any blame the coaching staff, faculty committee and anyone connected with athletics at Virginia Tech.

Negri's Statement.

Negri's statement read: "I attended the University of Vermont in 1929. Neither the coaching staff, chairman of the faculty committee, nor anyone connected with athletics at V. P. I. had any knowledge of this fact. I did it of my own volition and without any knowledge whatsoever by the coaching staff and athletic association."

The news of charges against Negri and the quick action on them took the campus by surprise and caused wide discussion.

Tech athletic authorities expressed deep concern that for three years they had unknowingly played an ineligible man. "Our only regret," C. P. Miles, faculty chairman of athletics said, "is that this information was not received sooner and that we had not found it out ourselves. I have tried to impress upon Negri the damage he has done Virginia Tech. I am criticizing no one for attempting to clear up ineligibility. We at Virginia Tech can only reiterate the mistake was unintentional. We sincerely apoligize to every opponent against whom Negri has competed."

Had Been Questioned.

Miles pointed out that when Negri matriculated in the fall of 1931 he was closely questioned by coaches and the faculty chairman as to eligibility and that he failed then and later to divulge either his attendance or participation in athletics at the University of Vermont. He submitted only his high school credits to satisfy entrance requirements.

Negri, now ruled ineligible for all sports, was captain-elect of boxing and mainstay of the infield of the varsity baseball team as well as a power at end on the gridiron.

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 9 (AP).—The cadet corps cheered the eleven as it left tonight for tomorrow's tilt with N. C. State at Portsmouth. Coach Redd named Mac Barnes, 210-pound sophomore to replace at tackle Red Negri, who today was ruled ineligible for competition in sports.

Boys Latin Gridders Defeat Landon, 6-0

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 9 (Spl.).—The Boys Latin School football team defeated the Landon School of Washington, 6 to 0, at Mount Washington today.

Early in the first quarter a short pass from Vickers to Spilman completed a march of 50 yards for the lone tally of the game. Spilman's drop kick for the extra point was unsuccessful.

The winners were held in check throughout the remainder of the contest, chiefly by the hard tackling of Stallings and Brown.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—A new wave of buying swept stocks upwards at a brisk pace in the last hour of trading today.

As the post-election advance was resumed, the market broadened materially. With a turnover of more than 500,000 sharees in the final hour, the day's volume increased to 1,228,590 shares, the largest in a month, compared with 843,310 yesterday.

The advance, with many active issues up 1 to 3 points at the close, lifted the Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks 1.5 points to 73.9, the highest since late August. It has risen about 4 points in the past week.

Speculative Interest Quickens.

Quickened speculative interest in shares gave reflection to hopes in the financial district for business improvement, and the belief that inflationary forces still were a market influence.

Building and motor shares and groups associated directly or indirectly with the construction and automobile industries attracted the bulk of the buying. Traders favored them on the prospect of expanded activity in both lines next year, especially in building under Government stimulus.

International Cement, Johns Manville, Penn Dixie Cement preferred and Congoleum spurted about 1 to 3 points. Among motor and motor accessory issues, Chrysler, General Motors, Bohn Aluminum, Briggs Manufacturing, Motor Products, Electric Autolite, Borg Warner, Murray Corporation and Eaton Manufacturing scored net gains of about 1 to 3.

Steel Shares Strong.

Steel shares turned strong and traders heeded forecasts the industry faced an improved outlook the rest of the year. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and American Rolling Mill were active at advancing prices.

Rails joined the upswing, with Santa Fe, New York Central and Northern Pacific up a point or more at the close.

Except for scattered buying in specialties, the market followed a routine course until the late buying spurt.

Relief was expressed in financial quarters over the new French cabinet set-up and the franc recovered to above the gold point after substantial shipments of the metal had been arranged from Paris during the political crisis.

Optimistic trade observers, while conceding heavy industry was slow in showing improvement, painted retail trade in bright verbal colors. Dun and Bradstreet estimated sales were running as much as 30 per cent ahead of last year in some areas.

High Interest Rates for Long-term Credits Called Chief Obstacle Against Recovery; Fear of Inflation Blamed for Condition.

By Special Writer of The Post.

In an article entitled "A European View of American Business Conditions" Prof. Ernst Wagemann, director of the German Institute for Business Research, says: "Against the recovery program there appears to me to be one chief obstacle. This is the high interest rate for long-term credit. * * * In order to stimulate investment—a stimulation of consumption alone is not sufficient—the long-term rate of interest would have to sink considerably below the level of the postwar period or even below the level of the last prewar years—that is, let us say, to 4 per cent."

This emphasis upon the importance of lower interest rates is in accord with the views of the Administration, as shown by President Roosevelt's recent Executive order that Federal housing loans should not carry a rate in excess of 5 per cent. The efforts made by Chairman Jones of the RFC to force down interest rates on capital issues are also a matter of record.

It takes more than a low rate of interest, however, to stimulate a demand for new capital for productive use. An abundant supply of cheap commercial credits has not brought about a corresponding expansion of commercial loans, because of a lack of opportunity for their profitable employment. Similarly, a reduction of long-term interest rates will not encourage investment expansion if prospective borrowers are doubtful of their ability to utilize loans safely and profitably. Dr. Wagemann, indeed, admits this fact when he says that at the present time even the securest investments in this country "appear to offer no great attraction to liquid capital. The causes of the lack of confidence are evidently to be sought in another field—the fear of inflation."

Investment Rate of Interest Expected to Remain High.

This is undoubtedly a correct diagnosis of the present situation and, until fears of inflation are exorcised, the investment rate of interest will remain relatively high, as a partial recompense to the lender against the danger of a decline in the purchasing power of money. The preference for short-term issues shown by investors at the present time reflects this uneasiness about the future and accentuates the spread between long and short term rates.

It is extremely doubtful, moreover, whether a reduction in long-term interest rates is as important as it is said to be. In the first place, the so-called general rate of interest is arrived at by computing average yields on certain classes of investments. These yields vary constantly from day to day, as well as over a long period of time. Thus Moody's bond yield averages show that high-grade corporate issues were selling to yield 3.87 per cent at the beginning of November, while the average yield of 120 domestic corporate issues was 4.88 per cent. If the record of bond yields for the predepression years is examined, it will be seen that present yields compare most favorably with those for the earlier period.

At the present time the situation is especially confused because of the limited number of investment outlets which attract wary investors. As a result, certain high-grade corporate issues sell at prices which yield much lower returns (even with due allowance for the supposedly lesser risks) than those obtained from other kinds of investments.

There is no sharp line of demarcation, moreover, between long-term and short-term investment operations. Savings may be shifted from one field to the other. Banks, for instance, use funds to meet commercial borrowing demands or to invest in securities with varying maturities.

Billions of Bank Credits Have Not Been Employed.

The Association of Reserve Bankers estimates on the basis of an extensive inquiry that from 8 to 10 billion dollars of credit lines made available to customers of commercial banks have not been used. If liberal and cheap credit accommodation of this type fails to attract business borrowers, there is no reason to suppose that cheaper long-term investment offers will meet with much response under present conditions.

But that revival is not to be expected until investors are reasonably sure that Government policies will not deprive them of a chance to earn a fair return and to reclaim their principal unimpaired. With Government competition with private business developing, with Government spending threatening to increase the costs of future borrowing, and with the possibility of serious inflation always in the background, new capital issues, as distinct from refunding offerings, will probably continue to be severely limited, irrespective for the rates of interest ruling for long-term loans.

London—Business on the stock exchange was mostly confined to investment buying yesterday, under which gilt-edged securities were strong, registering gains of a half to 1¾ points. Home rails and industrials also improved, but German bonds, gold-mining shares and transatlantic issues eased. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Favorable reaction to the rapid settlement of the cabinet crisis was reflected in the bourse yesterday, where prices advanced. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Almost a complete absence of business caused a general decline in prices on the bourse yesterday. Some stocks, however, closed above their lows.

Bonds Record Gains Despite Some Declines

Trading Highly Selective as Sales Volume Rises to $12,599,000.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Moderate gains predominated in today's bond market, although there were a number of outstanding strong and weak spots in evidence.

The trading volume, expanded to $12,599,000, par value, against $11,379,000 yesterday, and the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced two-tenths of a point to 84.5.

There was not much inflationary sentiment apparent in the day's proceedings. Advices from Washington seemed to indicate that further inflation was not an immediate factor in New Deal policies, and that parts of the recovery program might be revised along more conservative lines.

Trading Is Selective.

At the same time, trading in bonds was of a highly selective character, individual situations dominating most bids and offers.

Federal Farm Mortgage 3s and all of the Home Owners Loan issues firmed two thirty-seconds to nine thirty-seconds of a point, but Treasury securities were unchanged to off six thirty-seconds. The turnover in the Government section was not abnormal, amounting to only about $2,900,000.

Among some of the best corporate gainers were Atlantic Gulf & West Indies 5s, up at 3¼ at 46; Certain-teed 5½s, up 3 at 66; Chicago & North Western General 4s, up 1¼ at 56; Chile Copper 5s, up 1½ at 75; Erie General Lien 4s, up 2 at 74; Parmelee Transfer 6s, up 6½ at 31½; Portland General Electric 4½s, up 2¾ at 52½; Southern Rails 4s, up 1 at 59, and Studebaker 6s, up 1¾ at 49.

Standard Oil Loses.

Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s were quite active at a loss of 1½ points at 103¼. The decline was attributed partly to reports the company might call the issue.

Among other losers were Allegheny Corporation 5s, off 2 at 56; Rock Island General 4s, off 2 at 48; McCrory Stores 5½s, off 2½ at 79½, and Kings County Elevated 4s, off 1¼ at 91½.

In the foreign department a firm undertone was shown by obligations of Uruguay, Norway, France, Chile and Argentina. The Germans were mildly irregular.

Curb's Prices Advance in Late Trading

Specialties Record Gains as Sales Increased to 185,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—After early indecision, the curb market worked into a brisk rise in the late trading today. Closing prices were generally fractions to a point or so higher in the more active parts of the list.

Specialties continued to show the widest gains. Utilities and metals were rather narrow, while oils and alcohols ruled firm.

Singer Manufacturing was off 2, after having risen 22 points in the two previous sessions. Aluminum Co. of America and Electric Bond & Share erased small early recessions. Dow Chemical, General Tire & Rubber and Mead Johnson ended about 2 higher. Smaller gains were shown by Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Great Atlantic & Pacific, Parker Rust Proof, Swift & Co., South Penn Oil, International Petroleum, Hiram Walker and Newmont.

Transfers increased to 185,000 shares, compared with 163,000 yesterday.

Wheat Climbs Fractions on Corn Estimate

Cotton Prices Rise Under Buying; 7 to 10 Points Higher.

Chicago, Nov. 9 (AP).—Influenced by correct belief the Government crop report would prove bullish and by forecasts of unwelcome rain in Argentina, grain values scored moderate advances today.

Traders tonight construed the Government report as bullish because the official estimate of 1934 corn production was only 11,000,000 bushels less than sensational recent private figures indicating severe shortage. Rains in Argentina, experts said, would do much to augment danger of rust damage to wheat.

Wheat closed firm ⅜ to ⅞ above yesterday's finish; May, 99⅛ to 99¼; corn, ⅝ to 1 cent up, May, 81 to 81⅛; oats, at ⅛ decline to ½ advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22 cents.

Corn and oats borrowed strength not only from anticipation of the Government estimates of corn yields but also from proposed extensive purchases of corn for relief purposes Northwest.

Provisions advanced, responsive mainly to hog market upturns.

Cotton Market

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—After a comparatively quiet forenoon, cotton turned active in the late trading today and prices reached high ground for the week on most positions.

Offerings were light and the market responded readily to trade buying and covering promoted by the late strength of the stock market. March contracts sold from 12.26 to 12.39, closing at 12.38. The final tone was very steady at net advances of 7 to 10 points.

Very little Southern selling was in evidence here after the opening, and indications of a continued strong spot situation, together with reports of a fair business in cotton cloths this morning, were regarded as factors in the advance. The relative firmness of near months had a favorable effect on sentiment.

Exports today, 18,911, making 1,549,127 so far this season. Port receipts, 35,140. United States port stocks, 3,154,836.
